SYRIANS CHEER AS FRENCH BOW TO THE BRITISH

Tribune Man Tells of Death, Ruins

Reds Send Note

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—The soviet government tonight said it "considers that speedy measures to stop the military operations in Syria and Lebanon must be taken, and the conflict which has arisen must be settled in a peaceful manner." The Moscow radio announced that a note had been addressed to the French, and to Britain, the United States, and China, because to them "belongs the initiative in the creation of a postwar organization for peace and international security."

Citing the fact that France, Syria, and Lebanon are members of the nations participating in the San Francisco conference, the note said: "Events in Syria and Lebanon do not correspond to the spirit of the decisions adopted at Dumbarton Oaks, or to the aims of the united nations conference for the creation of an organization to insure peace and security."

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 1—Relief came to this battle scarred, casualty filled ancient city this afternoon after two days of French shelling, bombing, machine gunning, and pillaging. This development followed after France yielded to a British request to cease fire.

The first British Sherman tanks reached the city along the road from Beirut [Beyrouth] at 5:35 p. m. Damascus' main street trembled with the weight of the big tanks as they moved into the square in front of the railroad station, then moved to positions thruout the city.

The bedraggled men, women, and children of this oldest capital on earth, still dazed by the horrors they had lived thru in the vicious warfare that struck Tuesday night, cautiously crept into the streets, then burst forth with whistles and screams as they waved frantically at the tanks. They tossed their hats into the air and raced along beside the big Shermans.

French Return to Barracks

The French troops received orders shortly after 9 o'clock this morning from Gen. Oliva-Roget to return to their barracks. The last of these troops were taken there from outlying districts of the town about 30 minutes after the British arrived.

The doors of the Orient Palace hotel, from which I had been forced to flee Wednesday when French mortar shells and machine guns were bringing it down around my ears were locked, but that made no difference—the doors had no glass in them.

Water from the broken mains had formed a lake in the lobby, not one window pane was intact, and the furniture was splintered and scarred by bullets. A little dog huddled forlornly in a corner, apparently forgotten by some fleeing resident.

Of all the rooms in the building the one I occupied had fared the worst. On Wednesday there were a dozen holes in the walls caused by a machine gun firing from the French garrison a block down the

Reds Threaten Berlin's Nazis with Reprisals

PURGE REPORTED
Sen. Brewster is told Russians are liquidating high professional men in Germany to promote Communism. Story on page 2.

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—Anti-Russian activity in the Berlin area was indicated tonight in a broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Arthur Werner, the soviet-appointed lord mayor of Berlin, warned the population that 50 former members of the Nazi party would be shot in reprisal for every attempt against the life of a Red army soldier or soviet official. The same penalty will be applied for every case of arson committed for political purposes.

The broadcast said any one who knew of an intention to kill or burn and failed to report it to the police, would receive the death penalty.

A NUMBER KILLED

The federal communications commission reported that Werner said in the broadcast that an unspecified number of persons had died in Berlin as the result of acts of violence by Nazi elements and warned that the actual perpetrator of any such crime, "as well as 50 Nazi hostages, would be put to death."

Werner said some of the acts have been directed against soviet forces occupying the city but did not specify whether any Red army men were among those killed.

"Acts of Madness"

Members of the former Hitler Youth corps were prominent among the "criminals and deluded persons" who are carrying out "such acts of madness," Werner indicated in directing his threat of the death penalty "particularly" to them, the FCC said.

Werner referred to the efforts already made by Berlin residents to "repair the consequences" of the war crimes carried out by Hitler. Whoever "wants to impede us in these efforts is an enemy of the people," he said.

"Berliners, stern but just and energetic action will be taken against all who disturb the peace and order in our native city and who want to bar our road to reconstruction," the lord mayor asserted. "Help, all of you, to bring the deluded and misguided persons to reason.

"Hand Them Over"

"As for the criminals, hand them over to a just punishment. Whoever has knowledge of an intended act of arson and does not inform the police immediately will meet the same punishment as the perpetrator."

Warning that criminal attempts directed against members of the Red army constitute a "provocation of the occupying power," Werner said this was "as senseless as it is criminal, because the good relations of the occupying power with the population are the first and indispensable prerequisite for the establishment of normal conditions and the commonweal."

3 Inch Hail Stones Strike Chicago Area

Scattered hailstorms which broke hundreds of windows in homes and automobiles and crashed thru canvas roofs of some cars served as June's opening day greeting to Chicago.

The area around Homewood and Hegewisch, in southern Cook county, was hardest hit by the hail pellets, which measured up to three inches in diameter. The storm struck the south side at 2:30 p. m. yesterday. Waukegan and Zion on the north shore experienced a severe hailstorm between 2:35 and 2:55 p. m. No serious injuries were reported from either area.

Not Record Breaking

The Chicago weather bureau said three inch hailstones are large but not record breaking. The largest single hail pellet in weather bureau records is one five inches in diameter which fell near Potter, Neb., July 6, 1928.

Pupils of the Gallistel public school, 10347 Ewing av., were forced from desks near windows when the large hailstones broke most of the panes in the south and west walls of the building. The teachers' quick action in moving the children away from the windows prevented any injuries.

Hail as large as golf balls shattered more than 1,000 panes in greenhouses owned by L. T. Larsen at 1342 Glen Flora av., and approximately 1,000 panes in the greenhouses of William F. Hahlbeck at 2134 Ash st., both in Waukegan. Larsen estimated his damage at $1,500 and Hahlbeck, adding the loss of 400 heads of cabbage, figured his at $700.

Crop Damages Light

Tunis Holleman, South Holland, manager of the Illinois Onion Set exchange, said there was no serious damage to field crops or vegetables growing in that area.

The flash storm produced no hail in the Gary-Hammond area, but the downpour of rain was of sufficient intensity to flood street intersections.

Kenneth Spangler, 44, a farmer in Lockport township, Will county, was struck by lightning and killed yesterday while planting corn on his farm with a tractor.

Sheridan road traffic will be detoured around the 4700 block as a result of a sewer cave-in which occurred during yesterday's rain storm. The street was under repairs from two previous cave-ins in the last six months, and yesterday's accident will necessitate major alterations in the sewer system, said Thomas D. Garry, city superintendent of sewers.

The weather bureau explained the occurrence of hail in this way: Vertical currents of warm air rise from the ground into the cloud level, where the moisture in the air condenses to form raindrops. The rain, instead of falling, rises higher into the air, carried by the warm currents. It continues upward until reaching freezing levels, which yesterday were 14,000 feet above ground level.

The rain freezes, forming hail, and the resultant weight causes it to fall, picking up a coating of moisture on the way. The hail stones continue falling until reaching another vertical level of warm air, which carries them upward again to the freezing level. Large hail stones result from three to five of these air trips to the freezing level, and very large stones may show as many as 10 rings, indicating that number of up and down movements.

SCHOOLS OF CHICAGO LEAD COUNTRY IN PAPER COLLECTIONS

Chicago's public school children have collected 44,123,899 pounds of scrap paper in the last school year to lead all school systems in the nation in paper salvage, John R. Robinson, general chairman for paper salvage, said yesterday.

High schools collected 12,000,000 pounds this year up to yesterday, when a one-day drive was held in all high schools except Amundsen. The Amundsen collection June 5 will close the high schools' paper salvage drive for the season.

Elementary schools have collected 32,123,899 pounds in the last school year, including 3,979,075 pounds collected in the first three weeks of a current drive which will end next Friday. Since Feb. 17, 1944, elementary school pupils have collected nearly 51,000,000 pounds of paper.

3 BIRDS HATCHED IN GAS LOG NEST DELAY VACATION

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Krueger, 1328 S. Wisconsin av., Berwyn, are waiting eagerly for three young birds to get their wings. Then the Kruegers will take a planned vacation, Krueger said yesterday.

Krueger three weeks ago heard a scratching in his fireplace. Inside the gas log he found a nest and three blue eggs, slightly larger than robins' eggs. About a week later, the birds were hatched. The mother, who enters the log thru a vent in the wall, sets up a noisy chatter when Krueger goes near. The species of the birds is not known.

Krueger said he supposed that the birds could take care of themselves, but he's delaying his vacation anyway to be around when they fly away. Mrs. Krueger says she wants to be around to clean up.

2 Girls 'Play House'; Baby Is Found Dead

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1 (AP)—A three month old baby who was taken from his carriage yesterday and later found dead on the grounds of a vacant house died of a broken neck, police announced today after an autopsy. Detectives are searching for two young girls who were seen playing with the baby in the vicinity of the spot where the body was discovered.

Dr. William S. Wadsworth said there was no doubt the baby, Thomas V. Ripley Jr., succumbed to a fracture of the neck which might have been caused by a fall, rough handling, or being dropped.

Six Blocks from Home

The baby's body was discovered six blocks from his home eight hours after his mother, Mrs. Barbara Ripley, reported he had disappeared while she went to a near-by store. The body, nude but wrapped in a blanket, was still warm. Efforts to revive the infant failed.

Police in their search for the two girls questioned more than 100 others between the ages of 10 and 14 years but said they had not uncovered any tangible clews.

Detective Lt. Irvin Mock said the baby may have died from an injury suffered when the two girls "played house" with him. He said circumstances indicated the girls took the baby from his carriage in the rear of his home as part of an elaborate game of playing house. "They probably fondled him and dressed and undressed him as they would a doll," the detective theorized.

Unusual, He Says

Mock said apparently no one was suspicious of two young girls playing with a baby "because it is not unusual these days to see an infant in the care of young children."

Mrs. Ripley, 30, became hysterical and collapsed when she was taken to a hospital to identify the baby.

The baby's father, Thomas V. Ripley, a former marine, has been staying with his parents in Ventnor, N. J.

Yanks Who Wish Will Be Discharged in Europe

PARIS, June 1 (AP)—Supreme headquarters said today that American military personnel eligible for immediate discharge in the United States will be granted overseas discharges if they desire. Some soldiers prefer to be discharged overseas rather than return to the United States. The announcement said the army will provide those discharged here with transportation to any point in the theater they choose but not to the United States.

YANKS CAPTURE SHURI AND PUSH ON; PRESIDENT DISCLOSES WAR PLANS

American Forces Will Be Doubled, He Reports

MESSAGE IN FULL

BY WALTER TROHAN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Washington, D. C., June 1—President Truman today gave congress and the nation his plans for bringing about the unconditional surrender of Japan by hurling by land, sea, and air the massed might of an army of 7 million men and a navy of more than 3 million men against the enemy in the Pacific.

In a 6,000 word message which was read to both houses of congress, the chief executive announced the military program calls for concentrating overwhelming power against the Japs wherever they are and applying the relentless pressure of superiority of ships, planes, artillery, and other weapons to defeat the foe.

Bigger than European Army

The army will be maintained at a strength of 7 million men so that an overseas force of twice as many men as now are on duty in the Pacific or a force larger than the 3,500,000 men in Europe on V-E day can be employed to crush the Japs, Mr. Truman said.

To carry the war against Japan it is intended that every physically fit soldier in the United States, who has not seen overseas service, be sent into the Pacific theater and that all able bodied men under 30 years of age, who have been deferred, be inducted for combat service as soon as they can be replaced.

The army will be cut from its present strength of 8,300,000 to 6,968,000, Mr. Truman said, with some two million men slated to get discharges.

Only a small percentage of the men now in Europe who are slated to go to the Pacific, will be employed against Japan without receiving leaves at home, he said.

Surrender or Destruction

In detailing the might of the United States, the President called upon the Japanese people to surrender or their country will suffer the same destruction as Germany, which will mean that the whole modern industrial plant and organization, which has been slowly building during the last 100 years, will be wiped out.

The President asserted this nation has no desire to destroy or enslave the Jap people, but that only

SCOUT MASTER KILLED DEFYING JAPS IN SILENCE

JOLO, Sulu Archipelago, June 1 (AP)—Three American civilians chose death to imprisonment when the Japanese invaded the rich Moro island citadel of Jolo on Christmas eve, 1941.

Most prominent perhaps was J. Scott McCormick, an American educator who spent many years in the Philippines and played an important role in establishing American educational methods there. In 1941 McCormick gave up his government post in Manila and came to Jolo to help educate the Moros. He was made superintendent of schools. The Boy Scout movement was a pet interest of his and McCormick became Boy Scout commissioner for Sulu and Mindanao.

When it was plain the Japs intended landing a strong force on Jolo, Moro teachers implored their American superintendent to run away. They promised to sail him to a distant island where he could hide among friends.

Refuses to Quit Post

But McCormick refused. On the day of the Japanese landing he dressed himself in full Scout regalia. Then he went to Jolo High school and set his papers in order. Again teachers begged him to leave but the superintendent said he would not desert his post.

He left the schoolhouse with a few Moro friends and returned to his home. It was there that the Japanese soldiers found him.

When they broke in the door they found McCormick standing proud and erect, without a weapon. His khaki Boy Scout uniform which he had chosen for his last hours proved a death warrant. The Japanese riddled him with bullets.

Met by Fusillade

When invasion became imminent, Macklan provided his wife and children with food, and sent them to an old Moro stronghold in the mountains. He stayed behind.

Two days later the Japanese sent two small landing craft loaded with soldiers to Macklan's place. As they streamed ashore they were met with a fusillade of small arms fire. Six Nipponese died before Macklan was killed.

The third American, Antoni Franklan, also a planter, never left the streets of Jolo. When the first Japanese soldier approached him, Franklan spit in his eye. He was immediately shot.

GUAM, June 2 [Saturday]—(AP)—United States troops completed capture yesterday of the fortress city of Shuri, keystone of Nippon's southern Okinawa defense line, and drove southward against diminishing resistance.

The central areas of the American lines, which had bulged northward as four divisions virtually encircled Shuri while the Japanese held tight in that citadel, were straightened and shortened by the day's gains, Adm. Nimitz reported.

Strong elements on both flanks made new penetrations toward the south into enemy ground. Progress was so great that Nimitz reported "mopping up operations were in progress in newly captured areas behind the lines."

See Battle Over in 10 Days

Several hours earlier, Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th army corps, had said that only bad weather could stop the Yanks. He said that to all outward appearances organized Japanese resistance on Okinawa was on the verge of collapse, and that his officers believed the battle would be over in 10 days.

Detailing the ground action, which was supported strongly by marine aircraft and heavy naval guns, Nimitz reported:

The 6th marine division moved forward to occupy about 1,000 yards of the north bank of the Kokuba river. It met considerable resistance from Japanese in the vicinity of Kokuba village, but forward elements crossed the river and penetrated southward.

Capture Two Hills

The 1st marine division captured Shichina hill after an advance of 2,000 yards, which gave them positions overlooking the Naha-Yonabaru highway crossing the island from east to west.

In the central sectors the 24th army corps reorganized its infantry forces and mopped up remnants of the Shuri fortress garrison.

Launching a powerful attack on the east, the 7th infantry division advanced 400 to 1,000 yards to capture positions in the southern Ozato Mura hills, meeting the most stubborn resistance of the day.

23 U. S. Ships Sunk

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—An official navy spokesman told a news conference today that since the beginning of the Okinawa campaign on April 1, the United States navy has lost 23 ships in addition to two merchant ammunition ships. Adm. Nimitz's official announcements have revealed 13 warships sunk and more than 44 additional vessels damaged.

Two fleet air wings operating from land bases in the area, the naval spokesman said, during the month of May sank, probably sank, or damaged 152 Japanese craft of all types.

The navy announced the loss of a medium landing ship and a large support landing craft in the Okinawa area as the result of enemy action. They were identified as the 700 ton LSM [R] 194 and the 227 ton LCS [L] [3] 15.

Casualties, including dead, injured, and missing, on the LSM totaled 37 and on the LCS 25. The normal complement of each vessel was about 60.

Reveal U. S. Aid After Dunkerque

BY E. R. NODERER
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

LONDON, June 1—In the dark days after Dunkerque, when Britain momentarily expected German invasion, the United States rushed 1,200,000 rifles and a large number of automatic weapons and field pieces to this country to reequip its defense forces, the war office revealed today.

The bulk of the arms and equipment, which was of World War 1 vintage, was issued from the Rock Island, Ill., arsenal, and the greater part of it reached this country safely despite German submarines.

Cash and Carry Deal

The weapons came here on a cash and carry deal, for which an American source estimated the British paid $40,000,000. The first 100,000 rifles reached Britain in July, 1940, and delivery was completed by the end of November. The rifles were .30 caliber Lee Enfields and Springfields.

The remainder of the equipment, the war office said, consisted of 17,200 Vickers or Browning medium machine guns; 70,250 Lewis or Marlin light machine guns; 25,000 Browning automatic rifles; 300 Stokes mortars, and 993 75-millimeter field guns. Ammunition included 140,000,000 rounds for the rifles and machine guns, 1,300,000 rounds for the revolvers, and 1,000,000 75-millimeter shells.

Twenty-two thousand Browning automatic rifles and 7,000 Browning medium machine guns are being returned to the United States. The rest of the weapons have been used to equip French forces.

Home Guard Equipped

These weapons were used after Dunkerque to equip the home guard, anti-aircraft units, coast defense units, and for arming merchant ships and escort craft. With most British equipment lost in the retreat thru Dunkerque, the supplies from America filled a vital need at a time when many home defense troops were armed with pikes and ancient blunderbusses. Military authorities said they breathed easier when the American weapons arrived.

Between March, 1941, and March, 1943, an organization known as the "Defense of British Homes Committee in the United States," collected arms and equipment of all kinds from private individuals and dealers in the United States and sent them to the United Kingdom as a gift.

A BRITISH RUSE
The British faked a story of invasion by Germans for propaganda purposes, newspaper says. Details on page 3.

86 SQ. MILES BURNED OUT

GUAM, June 2 [Saturday]—(AP)—American Super Fortresses, "melting the clouds in flames," have brought their total area of destruction in Japan's great war centers to more than 86 square miles, with Friday's daylight attack on Osaka.

The Osaka mission—the second mass fire raid against Nippon's second largest city in three months —followed similar heavy blows against Tokyo and Yokohama within a week.

More than 450 B-29s from Marianas bases, shielded by 150 Mustang fighters, scattered 3,200 tons of incendiary bombs on Osaka's industrial area. Ten were lost, an announcement by the 20th air force said. Crews returning reported excellent results.

Yokohama Partly Destroyed

As the fires still burned, the 21st bomber command announced here that 6.9 square miles of Yokohama were destroyed in Tuesday's daylight attack.

This, with the ruins added to Tokyo's fire blackened area by two pre-dawn raids last week, brought the B-29s' score to 86 square miles of ruined city districts without including Osaka.

The announcement of the Yokohama raid said: "The principal portion of the city is virtually destroyed and the areas of devastation represents approximately 44 per cent of the built up area of the city." The 6.9 square miles burned was in addition to the two square miles laid waste in an April 15 attack.

Comparative densities of population in Osaka, bombed by Super Forts, and two largest American cities. Each dot represents 500 persons per square mile. Numbers on squares indicate number of dots. For instance, for Osaka, 90 times 500 is a population density of 45,000.

22 Targets Wiped Out

Photographs showed fires had swept Yokohama's southern wharves and docks and had levelled much of the inland industrial area. The announcement said 22 military and industrial targets were destroyed, including power plants, warehouses, carbon, soda and other factories, the Takashima freight yards and the dock area.

While the Osaka mission was still under way, a fifth Marianas field for the growing 21st command's fleets of Super Fortresses was being dedicated on Guam by Adm. Nimitz.

"Because this field was built so quickly," he told the army-navy construction force which had completed it in two months, "the war may end more quickly."

NAVY 'SCOURGE' HITS 2 JAP SHIPS IN AIR ATTACK

OKINAWA, May 30 [Delayed]—(AP)—The admiral commanding fleet air wing 1 tacked the title "Scourge of the Yangtze" on four Privateer planes that attacked Japanese shipping, including two large transports, at the river mouth near Shanghai today. The planes damaged perhaps a dozen ships, including two transports of about 14,000 tons each.

The tail of one Privateer was shot away and it lost 50 per cent of its rudder control. A gunner was wounded seriously and the navigator slightly hurt by anti-aircraft fire. All planes returned safely.

NEW 12TH ARMY ORGANIZED BY BRITISH IN ASIA

CALCUTTA, India, June 1 (AP)—Formation of a new British army for operations in southeast Asia was announced today by Adm. Mountbatten's headquarters. The new force, made possible by increased resources will be known as the 12th army, and will be based at the Burmese capital of Rangoon.

The army will be commanded directly by Lt. Gen. Montague Ford, former British 14th army head who led the Burma drive from Imphal in India. Ford will operate under Lt. Gen. Oliver Leese, commander of allied land forces in southeast Asia, who will be general commander.

Units of the new army were not announced. The announcement was expected to presage greatly expanded operations from Rangoon against nearby Thailand and Malaya and in the sea area which embraces Singapore.

Two Bag 7 Jap Planes Each in Fights Over Japan

GUAM, June 1 (AP)—Two flying majors with seven kills each over Japan to their credit are the ranking pilots of a five plane group of Iwo based Mustang fighters which has accounted for a total of 24½ Japanese planes. They are Robert W. Moore, Anchorage, Ky., and James B. Tapp, Eveleth, Minn.

GEN. AURAND NEW ALLIED 'GROCER' IN CHINA AREA

BY ALFRED WAGG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

KUNMING, China, June 1—United States forces in the China theater have a new grocer and supply chief whose job is not only to supply China's armies but also to help the Chinese develop their own sources. He is Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, who replaced Maj. Gen. Gilbert Chieves as commanding general of supply services in the China theater. Gen. Aurand left his post as commanding general of the Normandy base section on V-E day to take up his new post. On him falls all the problems of supplying allied armies for the greatest land battles left in the war. Born 51 years ago in Tamaqua, Pa., Aurand was graduated from West Point Military academy in 1915 with the class that included Generals Eisenhower and Bradley.

10,000 New Automobiles Authorized for Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1 [Special]—Canadians are to be allowed 10,000 new passenger automobiles. They may not get them until next year and only those who can show that they are essential users will be able to purchase them at a price to be fixed by the price board. Munitions Minister C. D. Howe has granted permits to General Motors of Canada, the Chrysler corporation, and Ford Motor company of Canada to produce the cars.

Japs Push South

CHUNGKING, June 1 (AP)—Japanese units along the western side of their China land corridor withdrew under pressure at points along a 900 mile front today, while other enemy forces to the east pushed along the Chekiang province coast in an area vulnerable to American invasion, the Chinese high command announced.

From the French Indo-China border northward to the area of Shanhsien in Honan province the Japanese were pulling back from exposed salients under heavy attack by United States 14th air force planes.

Japanese troops lashed out southward along the east China sea coast in the area north of Formosa, and reached Pingyang on Sunday in a 10 mile advance from Julan, the Chinese high command said. Pingyang is 150 miles northeast of recently liberated Foochow from which Chinese divisions are driving up the coast thru Fukien province. A collision of the two forces in the coastal area appeared likely.

New Zealand Cuts Meat Rations to Feed Europe

Wellington, N. Z., June 1 (AP)—New Zealand's minister of supply, D. G. Sullivan, today announced reductions in butter and meat rations, effective June 11, in order that export contributions to Britain and liberated Europe may be increased. The butter ration will be cut from eight to six ounces a week and the meat ration by three pence worth weekly. As a result the meat export should be increased by 15,000 tons to a total of 35,000 tons a year.

BREWSTER SAYS REDS LIQUIDATE HIGHER GERMANS

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], back from Europe, today asserted reports are current that the Russians are "liquidating" the upper crust of Germany's professional life to communize the beaten nation.

Sen. Brewster

Brewster, who toured Anglo-American occupied areas of Europe with the Mead committee, told a reporter he heard the story from "competent" authority in both London and Paris.

He said the authority was so high that he, personally, was not inclined to doubt it.

The story was, Brewster said, that the soviet officials are "doing away" with German lawyers, business men, and other "professionals" while "encouraging the proletariat."

Medical Men Untouched

He said they have not disturbed the doctors and dentists.

The senator was told that this program of liquidation was the primary reason why the soviet authorities have denied Anglo-American people, and the American press, access to Berlin and other areas they control.

The Mead committee, a senate adjunct assigned to investigate war spending, was refused permission to visit Berlin.

"The Russians should realize," said Brewster, "that these reports —which we heard from competent authorities—will continue as long as they refuse access to the American press."

The committee is preparing a report showing how much American material in Europe can be used for the Pacific war. It also will deal with lend-lease but the findings are so controversial, Brewster said, that none of the members cares to comment until the report is made public.

Farming Makes Comeback

Brewster and Sen. Ball [R., Minn.] said the destruction wrought in Europe is beyond description. The Maine senator said, however, that in Germany the population appears to be getting its agriculture under way rapidly, the only problem being transportation.

At Augsburg, the committee found that 146 of the 160 policemen installed by the allies were former members of Heinrich Himmler's state police [not the Gestapo].

They explained that there weren't any other men qualified," Brewster said.

SINK 5 SHIPS IN MALAY, BORNEO, FORMOSA RAIDS

MANILA, June 2 [Saturday]—(AP)—Gen. Kenney's far eastern air force sank five Japanese ships and blasted Japanese ground installations from the Netherlands East Indies to Formosa and Malaya yesterday.

Allied flyers, chiefly American, sank or heavily damaged 2,117,482 tons of Japanese shipping from Jan. 1 thru May 31, Gen. MacArthur reported in today's war bulletin.

Heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, dropped 200 tons in the Takao sector of southwestern Formosa, blasting warehouses, shipyards areas, and anti-aircraft defenses.

Along the Malay peninsula, bombers sank two freighters and downed two intercepting planes.

For the fourth straight day bombers attacked Japanese bases on Borneo. They cratered runways at Kudat and Jesselton air fields and destroyed barracks buildings and warehouses at Sandakan, Sein, Sibu, and Balikpapan. Offshore they sank three coastal vessels.

SLICE RED TAPE TO AID FILIPINO, TYDINGS PLEADS

Calls Manila Damage Indescribable

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Sen. Tydings [D., Md.] returned from an inspection of the Philippines today and promptly pleaded for a "cutting of governmental red tape" to provide "quick and prompt help" for the islands.

In a statement issued six hours after his arrival, Tydings, who headed a nine man presidentially appointed mission, said:

"In a word, the Filipino nation is stricken badly. . . . The devastation in the Philippines and particularly in the capital city of Manila is far beyond description. Manila is practically laid flat."

Tydings said he planned to report to President Truman personally next week and also intended to make a full report to the senate on his findings and recommend measures for relief.

"Answers" Dispatches

In an apparent answer to Manila dispatches which said Tydings' and his committee's departure after six days in Manila took Philippine officialdom by "surprise," Tydings said:

"We would have liked to stay there longer, but we considered it to be in the interest of the war effort and to a gallant ally, who has fought by our side, to make every haste possible in helping them solve their difficult problem.

"Once we had the picture pretty complete, we hastened back as fast as we could in order that we might start the machinery moving to get the Filipino economy going again."

Secures More Ships

He said his mission had "already secured more ships, with Gen. MacArthur's approval, to carry needed aid and help and supplies. . . . Shipping tonnage for this purpose will be rapidly increased. We are trying to aid the quick transportation of food, clothing and medicine."

Tariff commission representatives and war production board members also are working toward reestablishing trade relations with the islands and looking into the priorities question, he added.

Tydings praised the assistance his group had received from Gen. MacArthur and the Filipino government.

BRITISH HOUSE PASSES BURMA 'FREEDOM' BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 1—The house of commons today passed the bill under which Britain promises Burma will receive a political status equal to that of Britain itself. It was charged in leftist circles here, however, that the measure means Burma's "political clock is set back 20 years."

In a defense of the bill against heckling by Laborite M. P.s, L. S. Amery, secretary of state for India and Burma, said it will continue the administration of the British-appointed governor general until the end of 1948 before restoring what self rule the Burmese had at the time of the Japanese occupation.

U.S. SUBS SINK 14 JAP SHIPS; NAVY TELLS EXPLOITS

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—The navy said today that United States submarines have established such mastery over Japanese shipping that they need no longer be a silent service.

In line with the relaxation of secrecy rules, announced by Secretary Forrestal, the navy told the story of the submarine Wahoo, which sank a whole Japanese convoy, and the saga of the submarine Salmon, which whipped, on the surface, the escort of another convoy.

The announcement of the Salmon was coupled with a report on recent submarine activity showing 14 more Japanese ships, including a destroyer and four other combatant vessels, sunk. That list brought the total of Japanese ships sunk by submarines to 1,142 and boosted enemy losses of merchant ships to 1,006.

Sinks Entire Convoy

"The reduction of Japanese control and power, which makes a relaxation of security rules possible, is due in no small measure to the submarines themselves," Forrestal's statement said. "They have driven Japanese shipping and convoys either to cover or to the bottom of the Pacific. They have helped to isolate the island links in Japan's chain of conquest, causing the lifelines of Japan to atrophy."

The Wahoo was lost in 1943. Today the navy at Pearl Harbor permitted disclosure of one of her greatest feats. The Wahoo spotted a convoy of four large Japanese ships steaming toward New Britain, loaded with men and munitions. With torpedoes she sent every vessel to the bottom, including a destroyer.

At another time a Japanese destroyer charged the Wahoo after a torpedo missed. The Wahoo circled and tried again. The late Comdr. R. D. W. Morton of Los Angeles commented later in his report:

"Then we clipped him amidships and we broke his back. The explosion was terrific."

Fights on Surface

The Salmon's exploit started when she and other submarines closed in on an escorted tanker. Before the Salmon reached firing position a sister submarine torpedoed the tanker but didn't sink it.

Under heavy pressure from four enemy escorts the Salmon drove in and finished the job with torpedoes. The escorts covered the area with depth charges and the Salmon had to surface.

The Salmon was spotted by a searchlight and with her deck guns engaged two of the enemy ships so effectively that they fled after the damaged submarine found cover in a rain squall. She came to port under her own power.

A Presidential unit citation has been given the Salmon for the engagement, which the navy reported as only one of her daring operations against the Japanese.

FILIPINOS WELD MORALE, GUNS —AND HAVE ARMY

Tribune Writer Sees Mindanao Center

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MINDANAO, P. I., June 1—Northwest of Davao, 45 minutes away by liaison plane, is this fantastic spot, the nerve center of the Philippine organization aiding the Americans in the battle of Mindanao.

Ragged, barefoot men diligently drill on its parade ground. They lack almost everything, but they do have the two essentials of a soldier—weapons and high morale. In front of headquarters stretches a 3,500 foot gravel surfaced airstrip that they built with their hands so that American transport planes could bring in arms and ammunition.

Three thousand men built the air strip, with work progressing 24 hours a day. Floodlights were used at night.

Eighteen Years in Army

In the distance a column of dust approaches at 40 miles an hour. It is spearheaded by a jeep with the top and windshield down. The jeep comes to a stop in front of headquarters, and a chunky Filipino in a zippered air force uniform and duckbill cap jumps out. He is a veteran of 18 years' service in the Philippine army. He has returned from a visit to the front in the division's only jeep brought in recently by air.

He chuckles as he reviews recent fighting.

Fourth Blow Wins Bridgehead

"On April 25," he says, "we advanced three miles and reached the Ising river. There we hit a strong Jap prepared position and did not gain an inch until May 13. We charged across the river and planted the American flag. The next day we were chased back. The Japs crossed the river three times, but we crossed four times and made it stick. We fired thousands of rounds of ammunition, and once almost ran out just as the Japs were breaking thru. A fresh supply arrived."

The colonel puts down his cigar as a column of straw hatted, weary men approaches, staggering under their burdens. "They have brought a dismantled 37 mm. gun from far northern Mindanao," he says. "They have been on the way for a month. There is no road, only mountain trails."

Danes Say U. S. Seeks to Buy 17 of Their Ships

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 1—The United States is interested in purchasing 17 Danish ships now lying in North American ports, the newspaper Extrabladet says. A large sum is mentioned partly for purchase and partly as freight money for war time charter to the United States government. Because the vessels have been altered and would be difficult and expensive to refit for normal use it may be advantageous for the Danish shipping companies to sell.

LIDICE TODAY: 2 WHITE CROSSES AMID THE GRAIN

Only 2 from Murdered Czech Village Live

Guilty One Caught

WITH THE BRITISH 2D ARMY, June 1 (AP)—Col. Gen. Kurt Daluege, SS police chief of Bohemia-Moravia who ordered the razing of Lidice, has been caught by the British.

BY EDWARD D. BALL

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press]

LIDICE, Czechoslovakia, June 1—At the lower end of a gently sloping wheat field, polka-dotted by a million blood red poppies, is a freshly-painted sign saying: "Here stood the village of Lidice."

That is the epitaph of Lidice, a quiet Czech village erased from the earth by vengeful Germans.

All the world heard about Lidice, as trumpeted by the Nazis themselves following the assassination of Hangman Reinhardt Heydrich in 1942, of the killing of its male population and its extermination.

They stripped Lidice's men naked and slaughtered them. Women and children were packed off to concentration camps. They left not a stone of the village's 112 buildings.

Blanketed by Wheat

Today the mile square area which was Lidice [pronounced Lo-djeet-say] is an open field partly covered by fat, ripening wheat, partly by a stubble of wheat already harvested.

Out of 667 people in Lidice that night of June 9, 1942, only two are known to be alive. Both are women in a hospital, one a tubercular patient.

The men were marched naked to a hillside cemetery early on the morning of June 10 and shot in rows of ten. Their bodies were dumped into a hole in what was the center of town.

Even the cemetery was leveled—its tombstones hauled away.

Scattered in the wheat stubble are small stones, once a part of St. Martina's church and the elementary school next door.

There, too, is the stump of a pear tree, sawed off to the ground. It stood in front of the elementary school. Under it the Germans shot Father Stemberka, 75 year old pastor of St. Martina's.

Rocks and the stump are all that is left of Lidice. New maps printed by the Czech government do not show Lidice. Lidice is a hallowed name to the Czechs and they want to let it live in memory only.

Crosses in the Clay

A plot 25 feet square in the center of the stubble field has been cleared away as a simple memorial to Lidice's dead.

The edges of the powdery, yellow clay square are kept banked with bright, fresh cut flowers. In the center are two dirt mounds with neatly inlaid crosses of snow white pebbles.

On the north side of the plot the red, white, and blue flag of Czechoslovakia flies on the right and the red flag of Russia on the left. Between them is a two foot high crucifix with a placard reading: "Here lie bodies of Lidice's victims, murdered June 10, 1942, by the German invaders."

Mrs. Anna Striboney from a nearby village today told what happened. "The Germans said they found traces of the men who killed Heydrich in Lidice," she said. "This was not true. Heydrich was killed by men dropped by parachute and were never near Lidice. During the night the Germans rounded up all the women in the school house. The men were marched to the cemetery and shot with machine guns, rifles, and pistols. The village was set afire and burned for three days. Artillery then shelled the ruins and everything left was carried away.

"Jewish prisoners were made to bury the dead. There were 172 bodies in the graveyard. Others died and burned in their homes."

[Heydrich was killed at Lieben, a suburb of Prague, by three members of the Czech brigade in England who landed in Czechoslovakia by parachute, a Reuters dispatch from Prague said. The parachutists, the story said, contacted the Czech underground, and ambushed Heydrich with Sten guns and grenades when his car slowed at a sharp bend.]

ALGERIANS ROUT ARMED BAND IN SEQUEL TO RIOTS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

PARIS, June 1—That order is not yet fully restored in parts of Algeria where food riots coincided with the celebration of V-E day is indicated in a dispatch from Algiers.

The report says "an armed band" from Setif looted a farmhouse five miles from that town of 34,000 inhabitants in Constantine department. The band threatened to march on the villages of Taher and Jijelli, but loyal Moslems armed with old shotguns and bludgeons kept them at bay until the arrival of Senegalese infantry, which soon restored order.

UNARMED YANK HAMMERED AND SHOT BY NAZIS

20 Civilians Looked On, Court Told

AHRWEILER, Germany, June 1 (AP)—Signed statements by three German civilians on trial for the fatal shooting and clubbing of an American flyer last August were introduced by the prosecution tonight as the climax of its case. The military commission conducting the first civilian war criminal trial struck a snag, however, when the American officer representing the defendants requested that the statements, telling their version of what took place, be translated into German.

Eyewitnesses Testify

The testimony of eyewitnesses was that the unarmed American flyer—still unidentified—met his death at the hands of the civilian population of the town of Priest, which had never been bombed before that night. The flyer had parachuted from his plane.

The witnesses said that several shots were fired by a man not yet arrested. The flyer was knocked down by each shot, but got up every time.

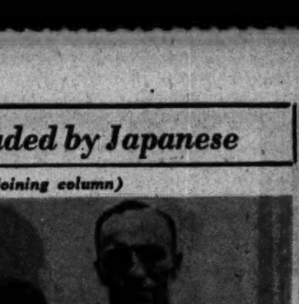
The witnesses said that Peter Kohn, 32, a crane operator, then hit the airman on the head several times with a three foot club, and that the flyer fell on his face, still alive.

Wielded Stone Crusher

Matthias Gierens, 37, a railroad worker, then held the flyer's head with his left hand, and struck him several heavy blows on the head with a hammer ordinarily used for crushing stones, the witnesses added. Photographs of the exhumed skull showed a large hole in it.

Matthias Krein, a former member of the German rural police force, made no effort to protect the American airman, altho it was his duty to have done so, the testimony disclosed.

The principal witness for the prosecution was Nicholas Nospes, 74, a wheat farmer who told of seeing 20 people standing around the flyer while he was being beaten and shot to death.



Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Meyer, among others reported beheaded.

Australia to Cut Army 50,000 Before December

CANBERRA, Australia, June 1 [Reuters]—Joseph B. Chifley, acting prime minister, announced today that the war cabinet had approved reduction in Australian forces of at least 50,000 by December.

JAP BEHEADING OF 12 IN BAPTIST GROUP REPORTED

New York, June 1 (AP)—The American Baptist Foreign Mission society today reported that 11 Baptist missionaries and a 9 year old boy were beheaded by the Japanese in 1943 on Panay Island in the Philippines.

The executions occurred Dec. 19 or 20, 1943, but the society said it had not received permission from the war and state departments until now to make the information public.

Those put to death had fled to a mountain refugee which they named Hopewell, in order to carry on their "preaching, teaching, and healing mission" after the Japanese invasion in December, 1941, the society said.

Names of Victims

Miss Jennie C. Adams, nurse, of Page, Neb.

James H. Covell, teacher, Athens, Pa., and Le Roy, N. Y., and Mrs. Covell.

Miss Dorothy A. Dowell, evangelist, Denver, Colo.

Miss Signe A. Erickson, teacher, Warren, Pa.

Dr. Frederick W. Meyer, physician, New Haven, Conn., and Mrs. Meyer.

The Rev. Francis H. Rose, Norwich, Conn., and Lowell, Mass., and Mrs. Rose.

The Rev. Erle F. Rounds, Eau Claire, Wis., and Richmond, Cal., and Mrs. Rounds.

Erle Douglas Rounds, 9, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Rounds.

Betrayed by Guerrilla.

The society said the missionaries had escaped the Japanese for two years but finally were betrayed by a captured Filipino guerrilla officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Covell had written at one point, in a letter eventually brought out by submarine:

"We live in a grass hut with a bamboo floor. The people around supply us with plenty to eat. . . . The Japanese came very close one day in February, and we have moved out thrice to hide . . ."

Born In Eau Claire.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 1 [Special]—The Rev. Erle F. Rounds, who was among the 12 persons beheaded by the Japanese, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Rounds of Eau Claire. He was 44.

He was graduated from Eau Claire High school and later from Eau Claire State Teachers college. He played football and basketball at both and afterwards attended Moody Bible Institute at Chicago.

His wife, the former Louise Cummings, also was a native of Eau Claire. They were married in 1926 and were sent to the Philippines in 1930.

Their older son, Donald, 17, is the only survivor. He was attending English school in Manila at the time his parents and brother were executed. He was released from Santa Tomas concentration camp after Gen. MacArthur's conquest of Manila.

Japs Claim They Make 'Malaria Cure' from Hair

New York, June 1 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that a scientist at the Keijo Medical college had discovered an effective substitute for quinine "obtained from a certain element contained in human hair." "It is claimed that one injection of this remedy is sufficient to cure malaria," said the broadcast.

FIRST DAD-GI JOE BOND RECIPIENT CALLS IT 'SWELL'

Chicago's first soldier recipient of a Dad to GI Joe club war bond was heard from yesterday in a letter dated Austria in which the GI said "the whole idea is pretty swell all around."

The idea, suggested by THE TRIBUNE on April 21, has swept the country. Thousands of war bonds have been purchased by fathers, mothers, and others for sons, relatives, or friends in the army and navy. Treasury officials have made it the theme of pay roll savings purchases thruout the United States for June.

The Chicago GI heard from is Pvt. 1st Class Lewis F. Brody, 3722 Eastwood av., 20, and the father who sent him a V-mail notice of the bond purchase is Ald. Brody [39th], president of the city council Dad to GI Joe club. It was he who introduced a resolution indorsing the idea which was unanimously adopted. Young Brody has been in the army since Dec. 7, 1943.

PETAIN BOAST: I HELPED REMEDY A LOST BATTLE

BY ROBERT SAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 1—"A battle was lost in 1940. I helped to retrieve it." This was the boast made by Marshal Petain today at Fort de Montrouge, when he was questioned by a commission of examiners from the high court of justice in a preliminary to his trial on treason charges.

Petain said that immediately upon being appointed vice premier, a week after the German invasion of Belgium and Holland, he went over the situation with Gen. Weygand, who was then chief of the French army, and they decided that France's battle had been lost.

Asked about the circumstances of the French armistice with the Germans, the marshal replied:

"I consider that I took the attitude most useful to France—that which was militarily necessary. I regret nothing."

REVEALS BRITISH INVASION FAKE AIMED AT NAZIS

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—The Daily Sketch said today that a story of an attempted German invasion of England in 1940 was a half truth deliberately circulated by British agents to discourage the Nazis from making any real effort to land on England's shores.

S. Oliver Jones, writing in the Sketch, said that the British covered the English channel with oil and set the fuel on fire. That experiment, together with "planted" stories of charred German bodies brought in by the tides, actually protected the island from invasion, Jones said.

Churchill Remained Silent

A story of high loss of life by the Germans in the blazing channel during an invasion attempt was reported from Belgium last August, but was neither confirmed nor denied by Prime Minister Churchill.

Jones said that oil was piped into the sea at all vulnerable points and in the utmost secrecy. As patches of black spreading oil floated over the sea, a Very pistol fired them. Billowing smoke towered above the flame, as the blazing oil lapped out across the waves. On the beaches a second line of oil defense was prepared.

Repelled Nazi Planes

"During the experiment German planes circled about but the sudden fury of flames leaping skyward repelled them," Jones said.

The secret service thru agents on the continent, some of them Belgian nurses, helped to spread the story of the fire among German soldiers, he added.

"There were few men in the wehrmacht [Germany army] who did not hear it," he said. "Few, too, wished to attempt an invasion after they had listened to the grim embellishments of the story—rumors of invasions repelled, of charred and multilated bodies being brought in by the tides."

STERILIZATION MEASURE WINS ALABAMA TEST

Montgomery, Ala., June 1 (AP)—A bill authorizing the sterilization of inmates of state insane hospitals and other persons adjudged to be afflicted with hereditary mental diseases was passed by the Alabama senate, 18 to 9, yesterday and was sent to the house where a battle is expected.

Debate of nearly five hours, during which the opposition was led by Sen. Vincent Kilborn of Mobile, preceded the senate vote.

"I believe the senate has voted in complete disregard of religious rights," Kilborn said.

WORLD G-MAN GROUP URGED TO SIFT WAR CRIME

U. S. Demands Penalty, Delegate Says

LONDON, June 1 (AP)—Delegates of 16 nations attending a conference of the allied war crimes commission moved today to perfect an international Scotland Yard or world-wide counterpart of the American G-Men to collect evidence against axis war criminals.

Col. Abe McGregor Goff, a representative of the Washington war crimes office, told delegates that the United States was determined to exact a full price from every war criminal—"white or yellow." He said the United States was "anxious to play its full part in the commission's work."

There were indications that the pool indictment plan was gathering strength. Originally advocated by Judge Samuel Rosenman, adviser to the late President Roosevelt, the plan provides a means of bringing to trial the membership of such terror organizations as the German Gestapo and SS and simplifying convictions.

Central Office Urged

Lt. Col. J. V. Hodgson, American member of the commission and a former Honolulu prosecutor, urged establishment of a central recording office for war crimes. Such a system, he declared, would show that "particular organizations or units had systematically committed war crimes."

Hodgson said that the 16 member nations were searching out war criminals separately and "without regular liaison with other national offices."

"Thus," he said, "when crimes were detected and investigated by these 16 operational agencies the information and evidence was filed in 16 separate and independent offices. Except for the [investigating] government itself, presumably no other government had knowledge or access to its records."

Trials to Be Open

Hodgson hinted that governments of axis countries would be held accountable for crimes committed by underlings.

In Paris the supreme allied commander's press chief, Col. R. Ernest Dupuy, disclosed that trials of German war criminals would be open to all correspondents accredited to supreme allied headquarters under the rules of a court martial procedure.

Haw Haw Became German

LUENEBURG, Germany, June 1 (AP)—A senior intelligence officer of the British 2d army said today it had been established that William Joyce [Lord Haw Haw], who broadcast for the Nazis, became a national of Germany in 1940.

SIGHTLESS MAN DONATES 16TH PINT OF BLOOD

Otto Doerrlamm, 52, of 5105 North av., who lost his eyesight while still an infant, yesterday received the white ribbon from the Red Cross blood bank at 5 N. Wabash av., after he had donated his 16th pint of blood for the armed forces.

Otto Doerrlamm

"I hope the war doesn't last long enough for me to receive the blue ribbon," he said as the presentation was made.

The blue ribbon is presented to persons who have donated 24 pints. There are no blue ribbon holders in Chicago yet.

Doerrlamm, a news vender at Clark and Lake sts. from 1919 to 1937, recently opened a rental library and tobacco store at 5105 North av. He was the only sightless member of his graduating class at Marshall High school in 1912. Doerrlamm moves freely about the city alone and never has had a "seeing-eye" dog.

One of his proudest possessions is a letter of congratulations from Gen. Eisenhower for his part in the war effort.

Ike, Monty, and Zhukov Expected Soon at Berlin

LONDON, June 1 [Reuters]—Field Marshal Montgomery, Gen. Eisenhower, and Marshal Zhukov, members of the allied control commission, will meet in Berlin within the next few days, the British Press association's diplomatic correspondent said today. They will fix the date on which the control commission shall begin to operate and discuss where it shall have its headquarters, the correspondent added.

NIGHT SESSION CALLED TO BREAK FRISCO IMPASSE

Stettinius Presents Plan to Speed Up Parley

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 1 — Goaded to action by the American delegation, State Secretary Stettinius appealed to the Big Five powers at a meeting late tonight for an effort to get the international security conference off dead center on the veto and several other issues.

The American delegates in two protracted sessions today decided emergency action is necessary to expedite the construction of the new league of nations to enforce peace and agreed on a program for such action.

This program, if adopted, would wind up the conference within the next 10 days in accord with the wishes of President Truman, whose meeting with British Prime Minister Churchill and Russian Dictator Stalin is to take place as soon as the San Francisco conference adjourns. The President is to appear at the final session and deliver an address formally launching the world peace ship.

Other Issues Pending

In addition to the veto issue the major pending controversies include the provisions for future amendment of the peace league charter, the election of the secretary general to administer the league, the election of judges to the international court, the expulsion of members, recruitment of the international police force, and numerous economic and social problems.

For nearly two weeks the conference has been bogged down on the veto question. The majority of the 44 small nations are in revolt against the proposed voting procedure in the peace league's security council whereby any one of the Big Five could veto peace enforcement and even peaceful settlement of an international dispute to which it was not a party.

In an effort to appease the small nations the Big Five evolved an interpretation of the veto power assuring informal consideration of peaceful settlements but leaving the veto still applicable to formal invocation of conciliation or other pacific methods of adjustment.

Given Russian Views

This interpretation was telegraphed to the Big Five capitals and replies accepting it were received from all except Moscow. In reply to an inquiry by an American today, Russian Ambassador Gromyko was evasive regarding Moscow's reply. Thereupon the American delegation demanded the emergency meeting of the Big Five and Stettinius complied.

At the meeting the powers were shown a statement on Moscow's views. There was no announcement, however, as to what Premier Stalin had forwarded here in this connection.

In addition to Stettinius and Gromyko participants in the meeting tonight were British Ambassador Halifax, French Delegate Paul-Boncour, Chinese Premier Soong, and American Delegates Vandenberg and Connally.

Sen. Vandenberg Speaks

At a meeting of the committee on security functions of the general assembly, Sen. Vandenberg today made a brilliant speech which will probably be incorporated into the records as the official interpretation of the Big Four amendment providing that the general assembly shall be empowered "to recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situations, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations."

The speech was delivered when the question arose whether specific language should be adopted giving the assembly power to recommend revision of treaties. Vandenberg said in substance that before coming to San Francisco he had wanted an explicit reference to the problem of treaty-revision and believed the general assembly should have the power to recommend revision of treaties.

He had since come to the conclusion that the Big Four formula was a far better approach to the problem because two slides of the question had to be borne in mind.

Might Mean Heavy Load

To spell out a direct provision for specific revision of treaties, he continued, might result in the burdening of the assembly with the problems involved in some 10,000 existing treaties. What is wanted is a balance between respect for treaties and revision of treaties. Maintainance of the general welfare and promotion of general welfare might often include respect for treaties and revision of treaties, too.

The words "regardless of origin," Vandenberg said, would definitely include situations arising from treaties.

Fernand de Housse of Belgium lauded the Vandenberg interpretation. Egypt moved and Mexico seconded that it be recorded as the official interpretation, that the Big Four amendment be accepted as it stood, and all other amendments withdrawn. The motion was not voted upon pending further speeches, one by Gromyko, but general sentiment appeared to be for the motion, Gromyko privately expressing indorsement of the Vandenberg interpretation.

Australian Foreign Minister Evatt won his fight for a pledge to work for the achievement of "full employment" and other purposes of the economic and social branch of the league.

Opposed by Stassen

By a vote of 34 to 1 a committee adopted an amendment that "all members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the organization for the attainment of these purposes." Comdr. Stassen of the American delegation had opposed the Evatt amendment, asking why it was necessary for the members to take a special pledge. His attitude reflected the American suspicion that the provision masks an intent to intervene in the domestic affairs of the United States to establish "full employment" on the communist model.

MACHINISTS' UNION AGENT APPOINTED TO SERVE IN GERMANY

James McDonald

James McDonald, for seven years a business agent of district 8 of the International Association of Machinists, has been appointed an aide to Brig. Gen. Joseph D. Keenan, deputy director of the war man power division in Germany.

Keenan recently received the army rank and was appointed to serve in Germany under Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, deputy military governor of Germany. Keenan is on leave from his post as secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor and as deputy chief of the war production board.

McDonald, who before becoming business agent of district 8 was employed for 10 years as a machinist for the Chicago Surface Lines, said he had been notified by Keenan to be in Washington by next Friday for assignment in Europe. McDonald understands that he will have the rank of lieutenant colonel and has been instructed to report in uniform.

'ORNERY' HERO GETS THE GIRL WHO WAITED

Smiles Reward Long Stay in Jap Jail

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN CALCUTTA, India [via air mail]—About the last thing Lt. Roy Wentz did that fateful day in early December, 1943, before climbing into his Liberator bomber and leading his squadron over Rangoon, was to get off a letter to his fiancee.

"Just a few more weeks and I'll be coming home," he said. "Hope you aren't tired waiting."

Rangoon turned out to be a hot spot that day. Jap fighter planes shot down 10 Liberators, including Wentz's. The war department notified Wentz's parents at Springfield, Ill., that he was missing in action. They also told his fiancee, Patty Norburg, in Jacksonville, Ill.

"He's all right," Patty said. "He's too ornery for anything to happen to him."

But Things Happen—All Bad

Wentz was all right. He had parachuted from his plane. Frightened Burmese would not shelter him, and so the Japs caught him and took him to Rangoon.

There in the city jail cells, with American flyers and natives so tightly packed there was hardly room to lie on the floor, Wentz met 56 of his buddies.

After seven months in the cells, the 57 were moved to another prison. No sun! Rice and tea! No medicine! Filth! In a year 25 were dead.

On April 29 of this year the Jap guards threw a note into the prison and vanished. "We give you permit to leave," it said. "We hope to meet you again on battlefield somewhere." Five days later allied troops entered Rangoon.

All Over Except Wedding

Wentz and the other prisoners were brought to the hospital here. The first thing Wentz did was send a cable to Patty. Days passed without answer. "She didn't wait," he feared.

Just a few minutes ago a little smiling brunette walked into the hospital ward. "Patty!" Wentz shouted.

When the greetings were over, Patty explained. She came to India a year ago as a government girl. "I knew I could find you," she said.

"How did you know I was all right?" Wentz asked.

"You had to be," she said, running a hand thru his hair. "You're too ornery."

The wedding will be any time now.

WRITER RESIGNS FROM 'NATION' IN ROW OVER REDS

New York, June 1 (AP)—Louis Fischer, foreign correspondent and author, has resigned as contributing editor of the Nation in a controversy over editorial policy. He has been associated with the magazine for 22 years.

In a letter of resignation published in the current issue of the weekly, Fischer said the Nation "now has a 'line' and omits whatever does not fit the 'line.'" He added that he found "its presentation of current events so misleading that I cannot continue as its contributing editor."

The Nation's editors in a published reply said: "We say what we believe. What we believe is very different from what Mr. Fischer believes. We believe Russian policy is primarily a security policy, not an imperialist one."

San Francisco, Cal., June 1—As happy as children with money to burn at a candy counter, the foreign delegations to the security, economic, and social advancement conference here are taxing this city's swankiest stores with demands for mink coats, sports clothes, jewels, wines, yard goods, and delectable foods.

Some pay cash, literally in bundles of American bills, and others stick to the principle of doing business on credit. The Saudi Arabians like the feel of cash and disdain the use of either credit or checks.

They have strong boxes filled with American dollars in their rooms. One of them peeled off $1,400 recently for a single purchase of bolts of prints and other textiles delivered to his Nob Hill hotel.

Conference directories list the names of more than 750 delegates and attaches in town, and some have brought their families. All appear to have pockets full of cash, even those from the most impoverished nations, and their credit is good in any store.

No Trouble Over Credit

Merchants say they have not asked for state department assurance that the charge accounts opened by the foreigners will be guaranteed.

"We just make sure that these customer are with the delegations," one business man said, "then they can open personal accounts. Of course, we don't let assistants to second secretaries go too far, but we have not had any trouble. About a third of them use credit, about a third use checks, and the others insist on paying cash. My, those Arabs!"

Many of the visitors had been beguiled by reports of sunny California weather and came unprepared for San Francisco's cool days and nights. They have corrected their wardrobes. Sport coats and slacks have become a vogue, and many men have stocked up extra supplies to take home to friends. Women write checks for $4,000 or $5,000 for fur coats, and harass shopgirls with demands for rayon hose.

Rivals for $15 Shorts

The men from some countries compete for elegant shirts, neckwear, and underthings. One wandered forlornly thru the most expensive shops yesterday looking for a pair of shorts that cost $15. He had heard that one of his rivals had found such an article, and he would not wear anything less expensive.

Wines and other items to be used in entertainment are charged to embassies. Many individuals like to lunch at night, evidently, in their hotel rooms, and delicatessens have reported a call for such toothsome fare as oranges in grenadine, stuffed with nuts and cherries; dates in brandy; pickled walnut meats, and cold white turkey meat at $2.75 a pound.

Special Service from OPA

The office of price administration has set up a special board, No. 17, to serve the foreigners. They are allowed shoe stamps, and some who establish proof of temporary residence have applied for food stamps. They are allowed to buy specified quantities of processed foods and rationed canned goods, without points, for mailing home.

Merchants report some visitors have purchased bolts of yard goods and quantities of food for shipment home to countries where they cannot do such shopping. The customs office here said today that no such shipments have been cleared from this port, altho export licenses may have been obtained in Washington.

To help the delegates get what they want in San Francisco a conference shopping service offers them guides who speak English and their native tongue.

GEN. ROMULO ASSAILS EMPTY PROMISES OF FREEDOM IN WORLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 1—Scorn for the "beautiful, empty" promises of self-government for dependent colonial peoples being written into the world security charter here was voiced today by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, chairman of the Philippine delegation to the international conference.

"We understand only one word, and that is independence," he said. "Where would America be today if those men in 1776 had issued a declaration of self-government instead of a declaration of independence? There is a world of difference. A people may have so-called self-government but still be part and parcel of another government against their will."

Gen. Romulo told reporters he will fight in commission hearings and later on the floor of plenary sessions, if necessary, to have the word "independence" included in the general policy of the trusteeship system.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH FROM FRISCO: GREEN

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1 (AP)—Gov. Green of Illinois today asserted the world security organization now being planned at San Francisco will render "tremendous service" even if it provides only a forum for airing grievances among nations.

Advising against expecting too much from the allied nations conference, Green, in an address at a dinner sponsored by a Pittsburgh department store, said:

"It now seems probable that the world organization being fashioned will start out with rather limited powers. I do not consider this a too discouraging fact; for, while America will enter the new organization with full sincerity, it is well that we do so without any starry eyed illusions that thereby we have by one stroke solved the problems of world peace."

Dewey Writes Truman He Will Be 'Glad to Talk'

Albany, N. Y., June 1 (AP)—Gov. Dewey, 1944 Republican presidential nominee, today accepted the invitation of President Truman to confer with him in Washington. Dewey wrote Truman, who last week invited him and Alfred M. Landon, 1936 G. O. P. nominee, to the White House, that he would be glad to talk with the President the next time he was in Washington.

Defense Worker Goes on Offensive, and Japs Die

OKINAWA [Delayed] — (AP) — Marine Pvt. Theodore J. Skill, 26, Ottawa, Ill., former defense worker, has gone on the offensive. In a few hours' activity as a grenade launcher, he blasted out a Jap mortar with three shots and knocked out a Jap machine gunner.

TRUMAN WARNS JAPS OF MIGHTY BLOWS TO COME

Bombs Will Wipe Out Cities, He Says

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Following is the text of President Truman's war review message read today to congress:

"To the congress of the United States:

"The primary task facing the nation today is to win the war in Japan—to win it completely and to win it as quickly as possible. For every day by which it is shortened means a saving of American lives.

"No one can recount the success of the forces of decency in this war without thinking of the one man who was more responsible for victory than any other single human being—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"Under his guidance, this great nation grew to be the most powerful military force in all history.

Germany Crushed

"Under his leadership, the allied strategy was developed which broke down Hitler's fortress, crumbled Germany itself into ruins and unconditional surrender, and has brought us within striking distance of Tokyo.

"But there can be no peace in the world until the military power of Japan is destroyed — with the same completeness as was the power of the European dictators.

"To do that, we are now engaged in a process of deploying millions of our armed forces against Japan in a mass movement of troops and supplies and weapons over 14,000 miles—a military and naval feat unequaled in all history.

"I think it appropriate at this time to inform the congress and my countrymen of some of the problems, difficulties, and dangers which confront us in finishing this war—and how we expect to meet them.

DISCHARGES PLANNED

Two Million Soldiers to Be Released

"Those who have the heavy responsibility of directing the nation's military efforts do not underestimate the difficulties of crushing an enemy defended by vast distances and animated by desperate fanaticism.

"And yet, we have adopted what is a new development in military history. In the face of a conflict with a numerous and fanatical enemy we have undertaken during the next 12 months to discharge approximately 2 million of the best soldiers the world has ever seen.

"The program for the defeat of Germany was accomplished with an accuracy seldom attained in war—yet we had but little margin at the finish. On April 1, 1945, the last American division to arrive in France entered the battle line.

"The strategy of the war in Europe was to have all the men that could be effectively deployed on land and sea to crush the German military machine in the shortest possible time.

Same Plan Against Japan

"That is exactly what we plan to do to Japan.

"Up to the time of the collapse of Germany the United States navy, under the superb leadership of Fleet Adm. King, was carrying on two great campaigns thousands of miles apart from each other—one in the Atlantic and one in the Pacific.

"These campaigns were distinctly different. The Atlantic campaign consisted essentially of anti-submarine and amphibious operations. Even as the war neared the end, our navy had to cope with a submarine blitz which was intended to hit our coast in April.

"The Pacific campaign has involved to a major degree all the surface, air, amphibious, and submarine aspect of naval warfare; but anti-submarine operations have played only a subordinate role.

"At one time in 1943, the United States navy was employing over 1,100 planes in its anti-submarine warfare in the Atlantic; and, in mid 1944, over 900 ocean going escort vessels.

SHIPS SENT TO PACIFIC

Few to Be Retained in Atlantic

"All of our escort vessels have been, or will be, sent to the Pacific, except for a very few to be retained in the Atlantic for training purpose or to meet any remotely possible emergency.

"Our navy, in addition to the miraculous job of convoying our endless stream of men and materials to Europe did its full share, under over-all British naval command, in amphibious operations in that theater. The use of its landing craft and carriers, and the fire support of its battleships, cruisers, and destroyers, made possible the landings in north Africa in 1942, in Sicily and Italy in 1943, and in Normandy and southern France in 1944.

"Even before the invasion of France, some of our Atlantic naval force had already been sent to the Pacific. After out troops were firmly established ashore, fighting ships were moved to the Pacific as rapidly as they could be released from the requirements of the European and Mediterranean theaters and from anti-submarine warfare. The Japanese have already felt the presence of those ships—and will continue to feel it more and more.

Four Major Phases

"In the Pacific the naval campaign has gone thru four major phases.

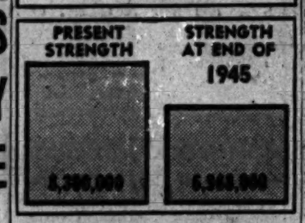
"The first was the defensive of 1941 and of the first half of 1942, when we fought in the Philippines and the East Indies, in the Coral sea, at Midway, and in the Aleutians.

"The second was the offensive-defensive in late 1942 at Guadalcanal.

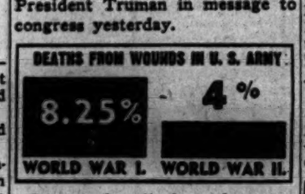
"The third was the limited offensive in 1943 when we advanced slowly thru the Solomons and retook the Aleutians.

"The fourth was the full offensive of 1944 and 1945 when the forces of the Southwest Pacific area under General of the Army MacArthur and those of the Central Pacific area under Fleet Adm. Nimitz made their great seaborne sweeps to the Philippines and Okinawa.

War Statistics



Reduction in army strength for the Pacific war, as announced by President Truman in message to congress yesterday.



Improved medical care has more than halved deaths from wounds in battle, Truman reported.

FOUR BIG SEA BATTLES

Jap Navy Reduced to Remnant in Hiding

"During this time the navy has fought four full-scale sea battles: The Coral sea, Midway, the Philippine sea last summer off Saipan, and the three-pronged battle for Leyte gulf last October.

"The Japanese surface navy has now been reduced to a fraction of its former self. We have driven their ships into hiding and their naval aircraft back to their shore bases.

"A large part of this success is due to our present carrier based air power, which has permitted us to carry forward, for many hundreds of miles at a time, the air cover that is needed for a successful amphibious attack. The carriers that made possible these enormous strides were laid down in 1940—a year and a half before we entered the war. Had they not been started then, our fast advances in the Pacific could not have occurred until much later.

"The Japanese merchant marine, in spite of a large program of building, has now been reduced to less than a quarter of its pre-war size. In fact we have sunk more Japanese merchant tonnage than they had at the time of Pearl Harbor.

Huge Amphibious Fleet

"For this and for the reduction of the Japanese navy, we can thank our submarines, our army and navy shore-based aircraft, and our fast carrier task forces. Today, no enemy ship can proceed between Japan and her southern conquests without running the most serious risk.

"The outstanding feature of the Pacific war—the one which sets it apart from all previous wars—has been the number of amphibious operations.

"We have constructed a great fleet of special vessels for this purpose: attack transports, attack cargo ships, landing ships, and landing craft. These ships make it possible to put troops and equipment ashore on open beaches in the minimum of time.

"The navy has a great share in every amphibious attack. For instance, one attack which involved landing 45,000 troops required the use of 125,000 naval personnel. In general it may be said it takes two to three sailors to put one soldier or marine ashore. It takes half a million tons of naval shipping for each division in an amphibious operation.

BATTLE OF ATTRITION

Blockade of Japan Being Tightened

"The navy is now engaged in a series of grim tasks: a battle of attrition with the Japanese air force in the waters around Japan and Okinawa; a tightening of the blockade of Japan; redeploying its own forces from Europe; aiding the army to redeploy; and preparing for the climactic operations yet to come.

"As we approach the enemy's homeland, the density of his air power naturally becomes greater. A year and a half ago, the enemy had more than 5,000 operating airplanes to guard perhaps 18 million square miles of area. We could attack wherever we saw that the defense was thinly spread. Since then, we have reduced his total air power very much, but the area he is now forced to defend has been shrunk so much more quickly by our rapid advance, that the density of his air power is four or five times as great as it was.

"This means tough fighting in the air. It means the loss of ships. It means damaged ships that must be replaced or brought back thousands of miles for repair.

"We at home can hardly imagine either the delirium of Japanese suicide attacks on our troops, air fields, and ships or the heroism of our men in meeting them. As we approach the main islands of the enemy the damage to our ships and the loss of our men are becoming more severe. In the future we shall have to expect more damage rather than less.

Need More Vessels

"In carrying out its future tasks the navy will need not only all of its present great fleets, it will need additional vessels. These vessels are now being built—partly to replace anticipated losses in future operations and partly to reënforce the fleet for the final operations it will have to conduct in enemy home waters.

"The navy is deploying all but a handful of its men from Europe to the Pacific. But, unlike the army, the navy, after the collapse of Germany, did not have a surplus of personnel. There cannot be even a partial naval demobilization—until the Japanese are defeated.

"The navy still needs civilian laborers, particularly in the yards where ships are repaired. Working continuously under the concentrated air effort of the enemy, the fleet suffers daily damage. Many vessels have come back wounded in varying degree. To tell the number would give information to the enemy, but the number is substantial. The navy must get these ships back into the fight with the least possible delay.

"We have in our navy yards the machinery and mechanical equipment to deal with the mounting load of battle damage. But civilian workers are needed now in ever increasing numbers. I know that the patriotic workers of the nation will rally to the aid of the navy in this emergency as they have rallied in past emergencies. For they know that every day saved in getting a damaged ship back into service shortens the war and saves American lives.

"In the air we have shown what America can do with land based planes and with carrier based planes—in strategic bombing and in tactical bombing.

STUDY BOMBING EFFECT

Nazi Industry Wrecked by Air Power

"We are now able in Germany to investigate and examine the results of our strategic bombing. In spite of the most desperate resistance of the luftwaffe and in spite of murderous barrages from anti-aircraft guns, the American and British air forces smashed at German industry day after day and night after night until its support of the German armies caved in.

"Our strategic bombardment did a complete and masterly job of destroying the sources of strength of the German air force and the German military machine. Our bombers dried up the flow of vital oil and gasoline supplies, not only to the German air force but to the rest of the German army and to German industry as well.

"We have had experience, too—deadly experience for the Nazis—with our tactical air forces as distinguished from strategic bombing. They wrecked the bridges and roads, the railroads and canals on which the German army counted. Germany's best panzer divisions—entire army corps, in fact—were immobilized.

Jap Air Force Weaker

"The air force of Japan is not as strong an opponent as the luftwaffe. Japanese industry is neither as great nor as scattered as Germany's. The planes we are using and will continue to use against Japan will be larger in size and more powerful in action than our bombers in Europe.

"Our army planes and our navy ships and planes are now driving Japan out of the air, and when our strategic air force reaches the Pacific in full might it will demolish the enemy's resources of production. Our strategic bombardment of Japan is now well beyond its initial phase. The missions of the 20th air force are mounting in size and intensity. Substantial portions of Japan's key industrial centers have been leveled to the ground in a series of record incendiary raids. What has already happened to Tokyo will happen to every Japanese city whose industries feed the Japanese war machine. I urge Japanese civilians to leave those cities if they wish to save their lives.

"Our tactical air forces, experienced and battle wise, will soon be ranging over the Japanese homeland from near-by bases.

"The Japanese air force will be shattered by our army and navy flyers as surely and relentlessly as the luftwaffe. The concentration of Japanese industry, so long an advantage, will now contribute materially to Japan's downfall.

"The army air forces began its redeployment last December, when a heavy bomber group returned to this country from Europe and received B-29 training before moving to the Pacific. The following month a B-25 medium bomber group came to this country and proceeded, after training to fly A-26 attack bombers against the Japanese.

TRANSFER AIR GROUPS

Move to Pacific by Way of U. S.

"During the last month 20 bombardment groups have received orders to move from Europe to the far east by way of the United States.

"Our ground armies, our corps, and our divisions have followed the best traditions of the American soldier for courage and skill; and their leadership has been of the uniformly high quality which results in victory.

"The United States has been fortunate in having as the chief of staff to the commander in chief of the army and navy a man of so great experience and ability as Fleet Adm. Leahy.

"We have also been fortunate in having at the head of our land and air forces men like Gen. Marshall, Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. MacArthur, and Gen. Arnold. They have provided the inspiration and the leadership for all our army operations.

Praises U. S. Soldier

"The American soldier of this war is as brave and as magnificent as the American soldier has always been. He has the initiative and ingenuity he has always had. But in this war he is a better soldier and a more successful soldier than he has ever been before. For in this war he has gone into battle better trained, better equipped, and better led than ever before.

"In the face of the formidable Nazi hordes which had secured a stranglehold on western Europe, our armies, shoulder to shoulder with those of our allies, forced a landing on the shores of France. In the short space of 11 months they drove that enemy from France, Belgium Luxemburg, and Holland and forced him to unconditional surrender in the heart of his own homeland.

"To the south our troops and those of the allies wrested North Africa from the axis, fought a dogged advance thru Italy from Sicily to the Alps, and pinned down a force that otherwise could have brought substantial aid to the enemy on the eastern and western fronts.

"The heroism of our own troops in Europe was matched by that of the armed forces of the nations that fought by our side. They and the brave men in the underground movements of the occupied countries—all gave their blood to wipe the Nazi terror from the face of the earth. They absorbed the blows of the German military machine during the many months in which we were building up our expeditionary forces, and they shared to the full in the ultimate destruction of the enemy.

"The same courage and skill which brought about the downfall of the Nazis are being displayed by our soldiers now fighting in the Pacific. Many of them are veterans of the grim months following Pearl Harbor.

ADVANCE 4,000 MILES

Push Japs Back from Island Conquests

"Since 1942 our army troops and marines in the South Pacific have thrown the enemy back from his furthermost advances in New Guinea and the Solomons, have traveled 1,500 miles up the New Guinea coastline, have conquered the Admiralty Islands, Biak, and Morotai. Meanwhile, marines and army troops have been cleaning up in the Solomons and the Palaus. In October of last year these magnificent achievements culminated in the landing of our troops in Leyte. Four months later they freed Manila.

"Westward across the central Pacific other marines and army units, in hard fought battles, have forced the Japanese back four thousand miles. Tarawa, Kwajalein, Saipan, Guam, Iwo Jima have been the stepping stones. Today army and marine divisions are slowly but steadily sweeping the Japanese from Okinawa.

"All of our campaigns in Europe and in the Pacific have depended on long lines of communications and upon quantities of supply unheard of in prior warfare. One of the marvels of allied achievements has been the organization, guarding, and operation of these world girdling supply lines.

Few Sickness Casualties

"For this we have to thank management and labor in our war industries, our farmers, and miners and other Americans—who produced the equipment and supplies for ourselves and our allies; the gallant members of our merchant marine — who transported them overseas under the guns of our navy; and the men of our army service forces—upon whose work in clearing ports, rushing up supplies, and constructing roads, railroads, bridges, highways, and gasoline pipe lines, the fate of battle often depended.

"There are also included in our experience in this war miracles of saving human life as well as miracles of destruction of the enemy. Since the invasion of Africa in November, 1942, in all our operations in Europe and in Africa, we have lost about 1,600 soldiers from sickness. In the Civil war the Union forces, never more than a third as large as our forces in Europe, had 224,000 deaths from sickness. In the three years since April, 1942, the army forces in the disease infested islands of the Pacific lost fewer than 1,400 men from sickness.

"Surgery in this war has reduced the percentage of death from wounds in the army from 8.25 per cent in the last war to 4 per cent in this one. This is due to many factors: the high professional skill of the surgeons and nurses, the availability of blood and blood plasma, penicillin, and other new miracles of medicine; the devotion of the medical corpsmen who rescue the wounded under fire, the advanced position of surgical staffs right up behind the front lines.

RAPID TROOP SHIFT

Process of Transfer Gains Momentum

"Shifting our ground and air strength from Europe to the far east presents transportation problems even greater and more complicated than those involved in the initial deployment of our forces to all parts of the world. Millions of men and millions of tons of supplies must be moved half way around the globe.

"The movement of troops from Europe has been swift in getting under way. They are coming by ship and they are coming by air. Every day the process of transfer gains momentum.

"After the first World war—when the only problem was getting men home and there was no bitter, powerful enemy left to fight—it took nearly a year to complete the evacuation of 1,933,156 men. This time the army transportation corps and the air transport command plan to move 3 million troops out of Europe before a year passes.

"It is not easy to visualize the volume of supplies that must precede, accompany, and follow the soldiers going from Europe and the United States into the Pacific. To maintain our forces in Europe the army shipped across the Atlantic 68 million tons of equipment and food—nearly eight times the total shipped in all the first World war.

Six Tons Per Man

"Now we must reclaim all of this equipment that is still serviceable. We must supplement it with new production. And we must make shipments of comparable size to the Pacific over supply lanes which are three times as long as those to Europe.

"The initial requirement of equipment for each man fighting against Japan is about six tons and an additional ton is needed each month for maintenance.

"Finding the ships to transport these supplies is not the only difficulty. We must continue to develop in the Pacific new harbors and bases out of practically nothing, install roads, and build power systems.

SPEED HOME TRIPS

Few to Go Directly to Far East

"Great as these problems of redeployment are, we are not losing sight of the human aspect in shifting men from one side of the world to the other. Wherever it can be done without slowing down the pace of our projected operations in the Pacific, we are deploying our soldiers by way of the United States so that they may have a chance to visit their homes and loved ones before they go on to tackle the Japanese.

"On the basis of present estimates, only a small fraction of the men now in Europe will have to go directly to the far east without first stopping off at home.

"The remainder of our present European force will go to the Pacific thru the United States, will be assigned to necessary military duties in this country, will be discharged, or will be kept in Europe for occupation duty. Most of those who will go directly to the Pacific are in supply and service units whose presence in the new theater is essential to the immediate construction of harbors, bases, communications, and air fields—from which to step up our blows against Japan.

"The army is mindful that those who come thru this country want to get home with the least possible delay once their ship docks or their plane lands. Everything is geared for speed to accomplish this at the air and sea ports. Within 24 hours in most cases they are aboard a train at government expense bound for one of the 19 army personnel centers, where the men immediately eligible for discharge are separated from those who are destined for further service.

"Men who are to remain on active duty are promptly 'ordered' home from the personnel center at government expense, for a period up to 30 days, plus travel time, for rest and recuperation.

Draws Full Pay at Home

"The period spent at home is not charged against the man's furlough time nor is it classed as leave of absence. It is 'temporary duty' and the soldier draws full pay for the period. His only instructions are to have the best time he knows how until he reports back to the personnel center. That is what I mean when I say that we have not forgotten the human side of redeployment.

"Relatives and friends of service men can do their part in this program by not crowding around the ports and personnel centers thru which the men pass. The men will get home as soon as is humanly possible. Troop movements on the nation's railroads will become increasingly heavy from now on. I ask for full public cooperation in preventing any aggravation of this burden on domestic transportation, for it would slow down the rate at which soldiers can be reunited with their loved ones.

"At the same time as we step up the movement of men and munitions to the far east, we have been exerting every effort to increase the number of ships available to return men to this country for discharge.

"Three hundred and sixteen cargo ships are being converted to help soldiers get out of Europe faster. They are not the most luxurious ships ever seen, but they will get the men home. In addition, the British are letting us use their three proudest passenger liners—the Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mary, and the Aquitania.

USE GERMAN VESSELS

800 Planes Transport Soldiers Home

"These, added to 50 of our own transport vessels, 800 bombers and transport planes, and such ships as we are able to use out of the German merchant fleet, will make it possible to bring men home for discharge without interfering with the main job of transferring troops and equipment to the war against Japan.

"The army's system for selecting the soldiers for release to civilian life represents a democratic and fair approach to this most difficult problem. A poll was taken among enlisted men in all parts of the world. They were asked what factors they believed should be taken into consideration in deciding who should be released from the army first. More than 90 per cent said that preference should go to those who had been overseas and in combat longest, and to those with children.

"The army spent two years developing a program of point credits designed to carry out these views expressed by the soldiers. It checked and rechecked its program, and made comprehensive surveys in order to make sure that the plan would achieve the objectives.

"The system applies equally to the members of our army in all parts of the world. It embodies the principle of impartial selection that we applied in drafting our citizen army and that we shall continue to apply in meeting the man power requirements of our armed forces until Japan is defeated.

Reduce Army Strength

"By reducing the strength of the army from 8,300,000 to 6,968,000 and by maintaining the army calls on selective service at a level substantially higher than requirements for actual replacements, it will be possible to restore to their homes during the next year a total of two million officers and men, including those who will leave because of wounds, sickness, age, and other specific causes, as well as those who will leave under the point system.

"To accomplish this while continuing to be liberal in the deferment of men 30 years of age and over, it is the administration's policy to induct all nonveterans under 30 years of age who can be replaced and who can qualify for the armed forces. Many of such men who have thus far been irreplaceable will become available for induction when the plants in which they are working are cut back or when they can be replaced from time to time by cutback-production workers and returning veterans.

"In the three weeks since the point system became effective 2,500 officers and 33,000 enlisted men and women from every theater of war hav received final discharge papers at army separation centers. During June, 50,000 high-score men are scheduled to leave Europe for this country, and 33,000 are scheduled to come from the Pacific and Asia. The great majority of these, a few days after they arrive, will be civilians again.

PEARL HARBOR TRIAL EXTENSION IS GIVEN APPROVAL IN HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 1—The house voted today to extend the time for prosecution of persons involved in the Pearl Harbor disaster until six months after the end of the war with Japan.

Rep. Short [R., Mo.], who sponsored the measure, said its purpose is to make possible courts martial of those connected with the catastrophe. The time for courts martial would have expired Dec. 7, 1943, but has been previously extended by congress to June 7, 1945.

The army and navy have so far refused to hold court martial trials for Adm. Kimmel, and Maj. Gen. Short, Pacific commanders at the time of the attack, altho both have sought trials to tell their story. Today's bill, already passed by the senate, was returned to that body for concurrence in a minor amendment.

PLAN 7 MILLION ARMY

Double Present Force in Pacific

"Let no one be under the delusion that these discharges are being authorized because the war is nearing an end or because we feel the Japanese are easy to beat. They are being made because our military leaders believe that we can reduce the over-all strength of our army at this time without jeopardy to our cause in the Pacific or to the lives of the men fighting there.

"The joint chiefs of staff, after consultation with Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz, have decided that our army can deliver its heaviest blows in the Pacific and win final victory most quickly with a strength which a year from now will be about seven million.

"By maintaining our army at this size, we shall be able to more than double the force we now have in the Pacific and hurl against the Japanese an overseas force larger than the 3,500,000 men who united with our allies to crush the wehrmacht and the Luftwaffe.

"These are the men who will be carrying the fight to the enemy, but obviously they cannot operate effectively unless there are adequate reserve troops in training in the United States, and also an adequate base from which our advance troops can be supplied and serviced.

All to Go Overseas

"It is our plan that every physically fit soldier in the United States who has not yet served overseas be assigned to foreign duty when he completes his training or, if he is fulfilling an essential administrative or service job, as soon as he can be replaced by a returning veteran. This has been the army's policy since the beginning of the war. It will be rigidly adhered to in the redeployment period.

"If it were not for the overwhelming ascendancy established by our air and fleet units, we should have to send many more men to the Pacific than we now intend. The Japanese have more than four million troops under arms—a force larger than the Germans were ever able to put against us on the western front. To back up this army, they have several million additional men of military age who have not yet been called to the colors. We have not yet come up against the main strength of this Japanese military force.

"The Japanese army is organized into 100 combat divisions. Its air force, despite the heavy losses it has suffered, still comprises over 3,000 combat planes. We are cutting heavily into Japanese aircraft production thru our Super Fortress raids, but Japan remains capable of producing planes at the rate of 1,250 to 1,500 a month.

NO EASY WAY TO WIN

Massive Attacks on Enemy Planned

"Army casualties on Okinawa from March 18 to May 29 totaled 3,603 killed and missing and 14,661 wounded. The marines in the same period reported 1,889 dead and missing and 8,403 wounded. Navy and coast guard losses were 4,729 killed and missing and 4,840 wounded, an over-all total for all services of 10,221 killed and missing and 27,704 wounded. Japanese deaths were nearly six times as great as our own. On May 29, the total of Japanese killed on Okinawa was 61,066.

"That is an example of the increasing toughness of this war as our troops get closer to Tokyo.

"It is this kind of fighting we must be prepared for in our future campaigns. All of our experience indicates that no matter how hard we hit the enemy from the air or from the sea, the foot soldier will still have to advance against strongly entrenched and fanatical troops, thru sheer grit and fighting skill, backed up by all the mechanical superiority in flame throwers, tanks, and artillery we can put at his disposal. There is no easy way to win.

Our Military Policy

"Our military policy for the defeat of Japan calls for:

"[1] Pinning down the Japanese forces where they now are and keeping them divided so that they can be destroyed piece by piece.

"[2] Concentrating overwhelming power on each segment which we attack.

"[3] Using ships, aircraft, armor, artillery, and all other material in massive concentrations to gain victory with the smallest possible loss of life.

"[4] Applying relentless and increasing pressure to the enemy by sea, air, and on the land, so that he cannot rest, reorganize, or regroup his battered forces of dwindling supplies to meet our next attack.

"Of course, the differences between the war in Europe and the war in the Pacific will cause differences in war production. The composition of the army will be different, as will the equipment issued to troops. There will be changes in strategic plans and in replacement factors.

LESS HEAVY ARTILLERY

Boost Production of Aircraft Bombs

"Until the expanded pipelines for the Pacific war are filled, and until equipment arrives in substantial amounts from the European theater, war production must continue at a high rate.

"The navy program will continue on an even keel.

"There has been a sharp reduction in the program of the army air forces.

"Similar sharp cuts in the program of supplies for our ground troops are now being put into effect. Some new items of equipment will be added. The emphasis will be shifted in others.

"Thus, there will be a decreased production in heavy artillery, artillery ammunition, trucks, tanks, and small arms.

"There will be increased production in aircraft bombs, atabrine, steel barges, wire and insect screening cloth, combat boots, cotton uniforms, amphibious trucks, raincoats, distillation units, radio relay units, special railway equipment, and motorized shop equipment.

"In a number of important items there will be little change in demand for an indefinite period. These include food, clothing, petroleum products, lumber, and certain chemicals. It is likely that all these will remain on the critical list. Leather is tight. So are textiles. There is a shortage of cotton duck and fabrics for clothing. The food problem has been accentuated by the steadily increasing numbers the army has been called upon to feed.

"Accordingly, production for the Japanese war cannot be taken as a matter of course. It will require a high percentage of our resources.

Munitions Near Peak Rate

"War Production Board Chairman Krug has stated that during the balance of this year, our munitions production will run at an annual rate of 54 billion dollars, which is almost equal to the rate of 1943, and more than nine-tenths the rate during the peak of 1944.

"With these production objectives before us, we must not slacken our support of the men who are not preparing for the final assault on Japan. War production remains the paramount consideration of our national effort.

"These then are our plans for bringing about the unconditional surrender of Japan. If the Japanese insist on continuing resistance beyond the point of reason, their country will suffer the same destruction as Germany. Our blows will destroy their whole modern industrial plant and organization, which they have built up during the last century and which they are now devoting to a hopeless cause.

"We have no desire or intention to destroy or enslave the Japanese people. But only surrender can prevent the kind of ruin which they have seen come to Germany as a result of continued, useless resistance.

JAP DREAMS SHATTERED

No Longer Boast of Dictating Terms

"The job ahead for this nation is clear.

"We are faced with a powerful Japanese military machine. These are the same Japanese who perpetuated the infamous attack on Pearl Harbor three and one-half years ago; they are the same Japanese who ordered the death march from Bataan; they are the same Japanese who carried out the barberous massacres in Manila.

"They now know that their dreams of conquest are shattered. They no longer boast of dictating peace terms in Washington.

"This does not mean, however, that the Japanese have given up hope. They are depending on American tiring of this war—becoming weary of the sacrifices it demands. They hope that our desire to see our soldiers and sailors home again and the temptation to return to the comforts and profits of peace will force us to settle for some compromise short of unconditional surrender.

Should Know Better.

"They should know better.

"They should realize that this nation, now at the peak of its military strength, will not relax, will not weaken in its purpose.

"We have the men, the material, the skill, the leadership, the fortitude to achieve total victory.

"We have the allies who will help us to achieve it. We are resolute in our determination—we will see the fight thru to a complete and victorious finish.

"To that end, with the help of God, we shall use every ounce of the white flag can save them from the kind of ruin that will come from useless resistance, such as Germany offered.

AMERICAN FORCE FIGHTING JAPAN WILL BE DOUBLED

Truman Tells Plans to Crush Pacific Enemy

Mr. Truman cautioned the American people that the task in the Pacific is not an easy one. He said the Japs have 4 million men under arms and additional millions of untapped men of military age, a force far greater than the Germans were able to muster.

100 Combat Divisions

At present, he disclosed, the Jap army is organized into 100 combat divisions. He said the Jap air force, altho severely crippled, still has more than 3,000 combat planes, and Jap industry, despite heavy bombardment, is turning out between 1,250 and 1,500 planes a month.

In this connection the President solemnly called the attention of the nation to the destructive fury of Jap suicide attacks on American troops and ships, saying that those at home can scarcely realize the delirium of these attacks.

As American forces are approaching the mainland these attacks are becoming more effective, he said, and they can be expected to do more rather than less damage in the future.

As an indication of the destructiveness of the suicide planes, he reported the navy needs civilian laborers, particularly in the yards where ships are being repaired. He said many vessels have come back wounded.

Repair Equipment Available

There is machinery and mechanical equipment in the yards to make the needed repairs, but workers are needed, he asserted. He emphasized that every damaged ship put back into service saves American lives and shortens the war.

Mr. Truman reported that the strategic bombardment of Japan is well beyond its initial stage, and noted that during the last month 20 bombardment groups have been ordered from Europe to Japan by way of the United States.

In this connection he reiterated the previously announced intention of bringing 3 million troops out of Europe in 12 months, thus indicating that the American occupation force in Germany will number 500,000 men.

The President reported the Jap navy has been reduced to a fraction of its former self, that the Jap merchant marine has been cut to less than a quarter of its pre-war strength and that Jap industrial production has been materially reduced.

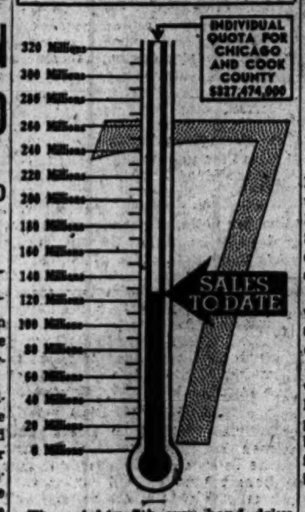
Tributes to Leaders

The President paid high tribute to Admirals Leahy, Nimitz, and King, and to Generals MacArthur, Marshall, Arnold, and Eisenhower.

The stepping up of the tempo of war in the Pacific, he reported, will require a shift in American production. He said naval production would continue at an even keel, but there will be changes in army production because of the differences in operations in the two theaters.

He divided the Pacific war into four phases: [1] The defense of 1941 and 1942, featured by the fall of the Philippines and the fighting in the Coral sea, East Indies, at Midway, and the Aleutians; [2] the offensive-defensive of Guadalcanal in late 1942; [3] the advance in the Solomons and retaking of the Aleutians in 1943, and [4] the full 1944-'45 offensives of MacArthur and Nimitz still underway.

More Bonds Sold



The mighty 7th war bond drive received fresh impetus yesterday at the army's On To Tokyo show, officially inaugurated here for a 10 day run by Maj. Gen. David McCoach Jr., head of the 8th service command.

A huge throng packed State st., fanning out from the State St. council's war bond platform at Madison st. where entertainment was highlighted by Eddie Cantor, the Flying Varieties All-Soldiers show, and the Gardiner General Hospital band. State st. traffic was closed off.

Parked along State st. to remain thruout the show are many of the huge war machines typical of the kind used to smash the axis. From Lake to Congress sts. combat and technical shows will be staged daily from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. Bond buyers will have an opportunity to ride in weasels, scout cars, and ducks.

Sales of war bonds to individuals in Chicago and Cook county have reached $127,251,000, or 38.9 per cent of the quota of $327,474,000, Lawrence F. Stern, chairman of the war finance committee, reported.

BIG 3 TO MEET DESPITE SYRIAN CRISIS: TRUMAN

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—President Truman said flatly today that neither the crisis in Syria and Lebanon nor possible delays at the San Francisco world organization conference would interfere with an early meeting of the Big Three.

He made it clear that Britain's virtual ultimatum to Gen. De Gaulle and her move to halt French-Syrian clashes had his unqualified support.

The President said his meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin definitely will take place in the not far distant future but that a broadening of the conference to include China and France is not under discussion.

Might Meet in U. S.

He told his weekly news conference that a meeting in this country is a possibility altho it is not very probable.

These developments sparked a fast question-and-answer meeting with the press and radio in which he maintained his record as a source of "hot copy" by disclosing that:

1. He has persuaded Judge Samuel Rosenman of New York to remain as his special counsel until Japan is defeated. Rosenman investigated relief needs in liberated western Europe and negotiated with the British on trials of war criminals on assignment from the late President Roosevelt.

Speeds Release of Prisoners

2. He is doing everything within his power to speed the release of American war prisoners of the Japanese and to expedite movement of relief supplies and mail to the men.

3. He is in favor of the principles of the Wagner-Dingell expanded social security bill and will confer with congressional leaders Monday on his own emergency proposal to use federal funds to raise unemployment compensation for displaced war workers to $25 weekly for men with dependents until a long range program can be perfected.

4. He has some definite ideas of his own on post-war universal military training which do not coincide fully with those of either the army or the navy or members of house and senate military committees. He prefers to withhold details until a definite policy can be worked out.

Wants Parley on Syria

The President verified Guy M. Gillette's announcement of his resignation as chairman of the surplus property board, asserting the former Iowa senator wants it effective not later than July 15.

He would be interested in a tripartite meeting to discuss the Syrian question but he hasn't been advised of any official plans for such a conference.

The French-Syrian dispute will not affect his meeting with De Gaulle, he said, but no definite date has been set for what he called De Gaulle's conference.

He said he had been following the crisis in Syria closely, but said he hasn't had any message from the French whatsoever.

Despite some reports from San Francisco that the post-war security meeting may run on for some weeks, the President said he is looking for it to end within 10 days.

He said he hasn't received any personal reports from Harry Hopkins, his special emissary to Moscow, or from Joseph E. Davies, who made a mission to London, but he expects them back within about 10 days.

"Before your father starts advising you how to invest the money you've saved, I want to tell you what happened to the bank account I had when I married him."

JAP SNIPER ENDS MARINE FATHER AND SON TEAM

BY THOMAS MORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OKINAWA, May 8 [Delayed]—The 1st marine division decided to honor its father and son team with a Father' day radio broadcast. So Staff Sgt. Vic Kalman of New York City, a combat correspondent, wrote a piece about the pair. It read:

"Eight years ago, an 11 year old youngster sat in a Shanghai ball park and yelled to the pitcher, 'Strike him out, dad.'

"Today, the former pitcher and the youngster met in a battered Okinawa farm house.

Exchange Letters

"'Hello, son,' said Col. Francis I. Fenton, 1st division engineer.

"'Glad to see you, sir,'" answered Pfc. Michael J. Fenton, 826 Juniper st., San Diego, Cal.

"It was hard to say who looked more rugged, the gray haired colonel who has spent more than half his 53 years in the corps, or his athletic son, a former football and baseball star at St. Joseph's High school, Baltimore, Md.

"They had mail from their favorite correspondent, Mrs. Mary Fenton of San Diego, and traded letters. The Fentons have seen much of the world together. The colonel had his family at Guam, Shanghai, and Tientsin. He was provost marshal during the Japanese incident in Shanghai, 1937.

Killed by Sniper

"Michael said: 'I'm leaving the marine corps to you and Ike [his brother, 1st Lt. Francis Jr., 22, also serving in the Pacific]. This is one Fenton who is going to be playing baseball after the war.'

"The colonel smiled. He had said the same thing himself in 1917, when he first donned a uniform.

Now the broadcast will never be made. Michael was killed by a sniper as he advanced toward Naha. He was buried in Okinawa's 1st division cemetery. His father was present.

Physician Gets Probation on Illegal Morphine Sales

Dr. Henry R. Gross, 59, a physician, was placed on three years' probation yesterday by Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court on Gross' plea of guilty to charges of illegal sale of morphine sulphate tablets.

MAJ. R. B. MAYER WINS STAR FOR SERVICE IN ITALY

Maj. Robert B. Mayer.

Maj. Robert B. Mayer, who left the vice presidency of Maurice L. Rothschild to enter the army in September, 1942, has been awarded the bronze star medal for meritorious service in support of combat operations in Italy. He is a member of the Michael Reese hospital evacuation unit. The citation, signed by Gen. Martin, surgeon of the 5th army, stated in part that "as registrar and commanding officer of a detachment of patients of an evacuation hospital, Maj. Mayer displayed outstanding executive and administrative ability in organizing and operating an efficient system of admission, distribution, and evacuation of patients." The citation stated further that Maj. Mayer's executive ability and devotion to duty "resulted in the saving of many lives and the relief of much suffering."

TAVERN MANAGER ENDS LIFE

Walter Neumann, 40, was found shot to death, apparently a suicide, yesterday in his bed in the rear of a tavern at Milwaukee and Center avs., Wheeling, which he managed for his mother, Mrs. Anna Beucher, 65, a blind widow.

WARNING GIVEN SCHOOL BOARD IN EAST CHICAGO

Removal of the Washington and Roosevelt High schools in East Chicago, Ind., from the accredited list of the North Central association of Secondary schools and colleges, because of undue interference in school affairs by the East Chicago school board, was threatened yesterday in a letter to the board from Dr. Carl F. G. Franzen, chairman of the Indiana state committee of the association.

The committee charged that the school board, headed by John J. Dreesen, had continually interfered with the authority of the school superintendent, A. C. Senour, had adopted salaries schedules without his approval, had unjustifiably demoted Frank Cash, physical education director, and had irregularly and hastily suspended a teacher, Miss Nellie Mills. All this, the committee found, "tends to create discord and does not promote the best education for students."

Miss Mills was originally accused of making slurring remarks against the late President Roosevelt, but has since been cleared by Supt. Senour, who has recommended dismissal of the resultant charges against her. School officials had no public comment to make on the Franzen warning, but admitted privately disaccreditation might work a disadvantage to high school graduates affected.

SYRIANS CHEER AS FRENCH BOW TO BRITISH ARMY

Hundreds Killed or Hurt in Damascus

street. Since then the number had been increased to almost 30. One must have been the granddaddy bullet. It had left a hole as big as a man's head over my bed. It had gone right thru the bathroom wall and out into the corridor. In addition to this damage, some one had stolen my prized slippers.

Buildings Still Smolder

Leaving the hotel, I drove thru a street lined with cheering crowds, past the French garrison, which holds Circassian troops. The windows were shuttered and there were no signs of life except as an occasional head bobbed into view as I passed.

A few hundred yards beyond the garrison, on the other side of the street, were the remains, half a block square, of buildings still smoldering from fires which had completely destroyed them.

Several other fires were still burning in the city, and hastily reorganized Syrian firemen in their silver helmets scooted in and out in their old trucks on their way to fight them, now that peace had come.

But it was not until I reached the citadel, in the oldest and most congested section of Damascus, that I saw what 48 hours of warfare waged with modern weapons against an almost defenseless city can do. It was a scene from the depths of hell.

Many Prisoners Killed

The citadel is the ancient Damascus prison and contained 750 prisoners when the Syrian gendarmerie hurriedly converted it into a fortress and defended it against the French attacks.

It had been subjected to constant artillery and mortar fire, and twice it was bombed by lend-lease American Baltimores which the French used against the city.

The worn, haggard gendarmerie commander said about 160 prisoners were killed. He said he could not be exact because they were still trying to match heads, arms, legs, and torsos. Four gendarmes were killed and 36 wounded.

About 50 prisoners died when one bomb struck in the center of the courtyard, and another hit the roof over the cells. More than 30 bodies lay like grotesquely smashed dolls in the yard. The others were sprawled in cells, whose poor furnishings had been blown to smithereens.

Women Search for Husbands

Two wailing Moslem women wandered among the corpses, picking at one, then another. The commander said they were trying to identify their husbands, who were prisoners.

The Syrian parliament building was sacked by French Senegalese troops early Wednesday morning. The deputies' desks were overturned and their papers were strewn about the room. The walls were pocked with bullet marks. At Government house there was similar wreckage.

Back in the center of town, a big limousine, guarded by armored cars, swept in front of the Orient Palace hotel. It was the British middle eastern theater commander, Gen. Bernard C. Paget, and the British minister to the Levant, Terence Shone. In a few minutes, the American minister, George Wadsworth, arrived, accompanied by Dr. James Pinkston of Dadeville, Ala., dean of the American university in Beirut.

Americans Provide Medical Aid

The Americans' principal purpose was to extend all possible medical aid to the tremendously overburdened Damascus hospitals. Pinkston said he had already visited a small British missionary hospital where more than 400 patients had been treated. Anti-tetanus serum, dressings, and penicillin were being rushed from Beirut tonight. Wadsworth arranged for an American plane to fly from Cairo tomorrow with blood plasma.

President Shukri Quwatli sent messages of thanks to Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman from his sick bed. He told diplomats tonight he would do all he could to see that Gen. Oliva-Roget is named as a war criminal.

Syria's president also outlined his terms for treating with France in settling the Levantine dispute. These terms were:

All "troops speciales," which are Syrian levees under French command and total approximately 18,000, must be given over to Syrian control and the French command must be terminated.

All French troops must stay in their barracks and the Senegalese troops must be removed from the country with the greatest speed.

All French controled Syrian installations, such as telephones and railroads which were built under French supervision with Syrian taxes, must come unconditionally under Syrian ownership and control.

The French delegation must be dissolved and must be replaced with a regularly established legation on a purely diplomatic basis such as all other countries have in Syria.

Seek Reasonable Solution

PARIS, June 1 (AP)—French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, replying to a note from the United States, assured United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery today that once order has been established in Syria "and calm restored to minds," a reasonable solution to the Levantine problem can be found.

At the same time the French government issued a bulletin confirming that French troops in Syria had been ordered to cease firing, thus complying with a request by Prime Minister Churchill.

De Gaulle to Outline Stand

The bulletin said that because Churchill's message to De Gaulle was read in commons by Foreign Secretary Eden before it was transmitted to De Gaulle, the French leader did not feel obliged to make a formal reply.

The bulletin said that France intended to create "if possible, an atmosphere more favorable to talks with Britain and America." It gave no intimation of whether De Gaulle himself would agree to discuss a solution of the problem with Britain and the United States.

Intimates of De Gaulle asserted he was in no mood to discuss the problem with other powers. He is expected to appear at a press conference tomorrow and make a full exposition of the French stand. The bulletin suggested that Russia should have been informed of developments in the middle east.

Receives Truman Message

From an official French source came word that De Gaulle had received "a friendly message" from President Truman and that he was preparing a reply.

Bidault said that recognition of the independence of Lebanon and Syria "is the foundation of French policy."

He recalled that De Gaulle proclaimed the independence of those countries upon the arrival of allied forces there in 1941, and added that "recently again the provisional government of the republic has given new proof of its feelings by intervening with the four great powers for admission of Syria and Lebanon to the San Francisco conference."

Bidault said that France does not consider that defense of business interests in the Levant is irreconcilable with the independence of those states.

"The crisis which actually has arisen unexpectedly proves that certain local elements, favorable to a policy of violence, whose consequences would be serious for all, are ready to seize the first pretext for causing a disturbance in the country," Bidault said.

He said that French movement of troops in the Levant was carried out "in line with the military rule which applies in Syria and Lebanon just as in the territory of all allied powers." Similar troop movements since the start of the war have never provoked protests, the minister added.

"The reactions which have just been produced, in their very violence, make it possible to believe they have been prepared a long time in advance," he said. "If measures are taken to assure the defense of French soldiers and their dependents, I can assure you it has never been in the thoughts of my government to go back on previous commitments."

The bulletin, issued by the presidency council and probably from the hand of De Gaulle, said that the French had suffered only a dozen killed and had placed the situation under control before Prime Minister Churchill's message to De Gaulle had been received in Paris.

PERSIAN GULF COMMAND ENDS RED SUPPLY JOB

TEHRAN, Iran, June 1 [Reuters]—The United States army Persian gulf command today ended its activities as far as the transport of war supplies to Russia by the Persian gulf route is concerned, Brig. Gen. Donald P. Booth, who heads the command, announced today.

In its two years, nine months, and two weeks of activity the command delivered about 4,500,000 tons of supplies and ammunition to Russia. The total did not include the tonnage delivered by the British thru the Persian corridor.

ARGENTINA GAGS PRESS; FORCES MANY TO FLEE

Report 3,000 Political Prisoners Held

BY ROMAN JIMENEZ

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 1 (AP)—Argentina has reestablished press censorship, arrested numerous prominent citizens, closed several newspapers, and detained or expelled several well known journalists.

A stream of expelled persons and political fugitives from the Argentine government is reaching this city. They are the source of much of this information.

Since Argentina declared war on Germany and Japan, scores of former political prisoners have taken refuge here. Among them are persons who spent months—some more than a year—in jail or concentration camps.

Czech Jailed for Year

I met a Czechoslovak who had been released after more than a year's imprisonment. He said he had been arrested with many other Europeans and Argentines on the ground he was working for the allied nations.

Persons opposing the Argentine regime estimate Argentine jails still hold nearly 3,000 political prisoners, of whom, they say, only 10 per cent were axis sympathizers.

The number of prisoners was swollen recently by a series of arrests after the Argentine government announced that a subversive terroristic plot had been uncovered. Exile sources here say most of those charged with implication were found not guilty by a military court.

Informants here are skeptical of the announced willingness of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell's regime to hold a general Argentine election. They say such elections, if held, would be carefully engineered.

Thru its declaration of war, the Argentine government became armed with a set of decrees purportedly assuring secrecy of the national defense, but which in fact may be used to suppress criticism.

Sources here told of continuous arrests of newspaper men and of violent methods employed by Argentine police in curbing proallied demonstrations when Berlin fell and on V-E day.

Pedestrians Searched

One traveler, a retired Argentine navy officer, said he and his wife were searched by 16 policemen armed with pistols, submachine guns, and carbines in a hotel in Buenos Aires.

The same informant said that on the day Berlin fell traffic was completely halted on many Buenos Aires streets and pedestrians were violently searched.

Tono Salazar, the expelled Salvadorean cartoonist, said he was told that a free press existed in Argentina, but was given a choice of leaving the country or ceasing to draw cartoons "unsympathetic" to the government.

According to latest reports, soldiers with bayonets still are standing watch outside newspaper offices, cable companies, and radio stations in Buenos Aires.

Trieste to Get 240 Tons of Food Sent by Cardinal

TRIESTE, Italy, June 1 (AP)—Arrangements were completed today to distribute 240 tons of food sent to Trieste by Cardinal Alfredo Schuster, archbishop of Milan. Archbishop Antonio Santin of Trieste said he had requested that no further supplies be sent following a Yugoslav newspaper's charge that the food was being used as a political instrument.

REPORT TRUMAN IS 'NOT HAPPY' OVER ARGENTINA

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—A government official quoted President Truman as saying today he is not happy about the Argentine situation.

Other authorities, similarly anonymous, took the position that the "current situation within Argentina is unsatisfactory." The view was expressed that the South American nation has not satisfactorily carried out her commitments under the act of Chapultepec signed at Mexico City and pledging her to full inter-American coöperation along democratic lines.

Under inter-American agreements no other American government can intervene as long as Argentina's internal affairs are not deemed a menace to her neighbors. Just when they might be declared such would depend upon consultations and agreements reached by other American governments, it was considered here.

No matter what the "Octane Rating" of the gasoline you buy—expect Premium Performance on the road when you use

LUBRI-GAS

PROCESSED GASOLINE

ANY REGULAR GRADE OF GASOLINE + LUBRI-GAS CHEMICALLY TREATED OIL = PREMIUM PERFORMANCE GASOLINE

THE Anti-Knock qualities of Lubri-Gas have been attested by the actual performance reports of thousands of Lubri-Gas users. Lubri-Gas is a Premium Performance Gasoline because it is not only Anti-Knock, but also Anti-Friction, Anti-Carbon, Anti-Gum, Anti-Sludge.

WHAT LUBRI-GAS DOES

Lubri-Gas enters the combustion chamber in the form of a fine oily mist or fog. This fog will not burn at motor temperature. It condenses back to clean oil and bathes the valves, spark plugs, cylinder walls, pistons and piston rings with a protective film.

Carbon, gum and sludge are loosened and discharged through the exhaust.

Lubri-Gas users report that Sticky valves are freed—Knocks disappear—Motors run cooler with more power and up to 30% more miles per gallon through the regular use of Lubri-Gas.

GASOLINE DEALERS AND GARAGE OWNERS:

Lubri-Gas is a real sales producer. One service station owner in Metropolitan Chicago reports that his sales jumped from 6700 gallons to 10,000 gallons since he introduced Lubri-Gas to his customers.

You too can increase the number of your satisfied customers with Lubri-Gas. For full information phone Randolph 4049 today.

111 MILLION CUT IN BUREAU FUNDS ASKED IN HOUSE

Requests for 17 Agencies Are Slashed

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Seventeen home front war agencies were started on the road to abolition today by the house appropriations committee.

Sending to the floor a sharply cut supply bill for the fiscal year starting July 1, the committee commented that the measure "marks the beginning of the end of these agencies." The report called for easing and removal of domestic controls as soon as possible.

The committee made cuts averaging about 12 per cent and ranging up to 40 per cent in budget estimates for the agencies. Their original budgets already had been trimmed just a month ago by direction of President Truman. The committee cuts were in addition to those the President had recommended.

OWI Funds Reduced

For the first time in several years, the committee refrained from singling out any of the agencies for sharp criticism, altho it was mildly critical of some operations. The office of war information, generally a target for committee fire, escaped criticism altho it took a 7 million dollar cut in the 42 million dollar budget estimate of the President.

A $320,000 fund for operation of state marine schools was the only item in the whole bill that was not touched.

However, the committee withheld all funds for the office of price administration, the foreign economic administration, and the fair employment practices committee.

FEA's allotment was held up pending receipt of budget estimates for lend-lease operations. Legislation extending the price control act and OPA and making permanent the FEPC has not cleared congress.

The $769,764,850 total in the bill was $111,812,650 below budget estimates and $209,348,880 under current year appropriations.

Marine Budget Slashed

The war shipping administration, which operates the nation's expanding merchant fleet, was allotted $437,325,000 of the total, even tho it was cut $48,270,000 below estimates.

Other large allotments, and the reductions from budget estimates, included:

Office of scientific research and development, $70,000,000, down $7,500,000.

War production board, $35,000,000, down $4,148,000.

Office of strategic services, $20,000,000, down $18,166,000.

Office of censorship, $13,000,000, down $1,350,000.

Reduction for ODT

Office of defense transportation, $7,000,000, down $700,000.

National war labor board, $13,320,000, down $85,000.

Selective service system, $52,000,000, down $2,500,000.

War relocation authority, $25,000,000, down $140,000.

Alien property custodian, $2,500,000, down $870,000 [limitation on administrative expenses from funds previously provided].

Office of economic stabilization, $196,250, down $750.

Smaller War Plants corporation, $7,000,000, down $1,000,000. [This is a limitation on administrative expenses from funds already granted.]

Office of war mobilization and reconversion, $3,955,400, down $41,100.

Miscellaneous disposal agencies, $40,000,000, down $20,000,000.

Would Halt Censorship

If Byron Price, director of censorship, has his way, censorship will end on the echo of the last shot fired against the Japanese.

Price told the house appropriations committee it "would give me great pleasure personally to recommend that censorship be abandoned entirely and without delay." But, he added, "that could not be done wisely" so long as there is a war against Japan because "machinery still is needed to continue a curtailed voluntary censorship of press and radio domestically."

The appropriations committee in recommending an allotment of $25,000,000 to wind up the work of the war relocation authority, pared down the agency's request for $30,000,000.

Plans Closing This Year

Threatened violence against Japanese-Americans was described as a "major problem" facing the WRA. Dillon S. Myer, WRA director, told the appropriations subcommittee the WRA expects to close its eight remaining relocation centers for Japanese-Americans by the end of the year. He said it will turn the segregation center at Tule Lake, Cal., over to the justice department at that time.

This will require moving about 53,000 persons to communities they select and aiding them to reestablish themselves, Myer said.

During hearings on the fair employment practice committee's activities, the appropriations committee was told that 500,000 Negroes have left the south for war production centers in the east, midwest, and on the Pacific coast. Malcolm Ross, FEPC chairman, told the committee, in testimony made public today, that Negroes have obtained their greatest war employment in industries that are going to be cut back first. As a result, he said, there is likelihood of many Negroes being out of work.

Maury Maverick, head of the Smaller War Plants corporation, in a plea for funds for that organization said veterans seeking to go into business are encountering "burocratic detours and blind alleys."

He suggested to the appropriations committee that his agency should be authorized to handle business loans for these veterans, and also furnish advice on establishing businesses.

A Guard Against Floods

The appropriations committee was told the army is taking no chances on a short war with Japan.

It has asked for $8,055,000 to protect three transcontinental rail lines against western floods. Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Robins, assistant chief of the army engineers, told the committee this was "part of the war program."

"During floods, those railroads go out of commission for a week or 10 days, and the worst thing is that all of the war traffic down to the west coast will be tied up for miles back of it," Robins said.

Some golfer left it at Hiram's house so he uses it as a feed bag.

PLAN TO RECRUIT 10,000 TO CATCH TAX CHISELERS

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 1—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, with the backing of President Truman, today asked the house and senate appropriations committees to approve a 36 million dollar plan to send 10,000 new treasury sleuths after tax evaders. He told reporters the committees were sympathetic to the plan and that he was ready to "go ahead full steam."

While Morgenthau was meeting with the committees, Mr. Truman issued a statement indorsing Morgenthau's program and blistering "black market operators or any other racketeers."

"We are not fighting this war to make millionaires," the President stated, "and we certainly are not going to allow black market operators or any other racketeers to be in a favored class when the men in the armed forces, and our citizens generally, are sacrificing so heavily."

To Recruit Soldiers

The President said the civil service commission will coöperate in the special tax drive and has stationed an official at every army discharge center in the country to recruit qualified veterans for the treasury forces as soon as they are discharged.

Morgenthau said he was confident of getting an immediate appropriation of $16,300,000, now before the house appropriations committee, to start an initial program with 5,000 investigators July 1. Later, he said, he will ask for an additional 20 million to bring the special staff to 10,000.

170 to Stay on Job

The reception accorded him today by the congressional committees encouraged him to start immediate recruiting of new agents, Morgenthau said. Using a $500,000 unexpended balance for treasury agents, he has already arranged to retain 170 civil service investigators who were slated for dismissal July 1, he revealed.

Morgenthau told the senators and representatives that the broadening of the tax base had increased the treasury department's collection difficulties, with the number of taxpayers having increased from 4 million before the war to 50 million at present.

Liquor Black Market

"As the tax burden increases," Morgenthau said in a statement to the two committees, "there is more and more inclination by the greedy and dishonest to evade their taxes, and it is the problem of enforcement of our tax laws against that kind of individual that I address myself . . . recent disclosures have persuaded me that our sights have been too low."

Morgenthau cited several cases, without naming firms, of tax evasion, including one of a New York operator in black market liquor who had received nearly 2 million dollars in "side money." The transactions were discovered in an income tax investigation.

Other cases, Morgenthau said, included one against a middle western war contractor which is expected to net 5 million dollars in back taxes, penalties, and interest. Black market diversions of sugar and other scarce commodities intended for army and navy food manufacture account for many millions of dollars in lost federal revenue, he said.

His Entire Stock

Joseph Niedziela, 858 N. Winchester av., looks forlornly at a single spare rib, all he had to offer his customers yesterday.

Cancellation of lend-lease and foreign relief meat shipments during July, August, and September would have little effect on supplies of meat for civilians, Chicago meat experts said yesterday.

Unless changes are made in the war food administration orders governing in one lump sum the meat set aside for army, navy, lend-lease, foreign relief, island possessions, the war shipping administration, and all other government procurement agencies, no increase for civilians is possible, packing house spokesmen explained. No change in set-aside orders was indicated in the disclosure from Washington yesterday that meat shipments to Europe may be halted.

Even if the meat formerly destined for Russia, England, and other nations goes into civilian channels, the effect will be negligible, it was said. Foreign allocations have decreased in the last six months, amounting to 325 million pounds in the April-May-June quarter. If civilians were to receive that amount instead it would give them only two or three pounds more meat apiece in a three month period.

FARMER DEFIES BUROCRATS OVER KILLING 2 COWS

The legal status of the carcasses of two cows that were struck by a train and then slaughtered Monday by Elmer Bastian on a farm near Hinckley, De Kalb county, was uncertain yesterday, office of price administration officials in Chicago said. But Miss Verna Lee, chief clerk of the ration board in Sandwich, which serves Hinckley, said the two men had obeyed regulations.

"Bastian obtained a permit to process the carcasses," she said, "and we authorized him to sell the meat on condition that he demand points for it."

New Ruling on Injured Animals

The circumstances of the slaughtering prompted Robert M. Harper, district director of the Moline OPA office, in whose jurisdiction Hinckley lies, to announce a series of meetings of farmers to clarify the tangle of red tape and regulations surrounding home butchering.

"We are going to tell the farmers," he said, "that altho a permit ordinarily is required before slaughtering an animal, in case of injured animals a farmer is free to go ahead with the slaughtering and to notify us immediately afterward."

The Bastian cows, with a third, had strolled into the path of a Burlington freight train early Monday. One animal was killed and the carcass sent to a rendering works. Legs of the two others were broken.

When Bastian started to slaughter the injured animals an OPA investigator, W. L. Pratt, who was driving past, warned him not to proceed until he had obtained a permit, the farmer reported.

He proceeded with the slaughtering, however, and Thursday was tendered an order by Pratt and George Greenaway, another OPA agent, to appear at the Chicago office yesterday morning. The order ended: "Fail at your own peril."

Both Fail to Appear

Yesterday Greenaway and Pratt admitted that the order was not a legal summons, but an "invitation." Greenaway said he had appended the ominous warning because the phrase appeared on regular subpenas, and he thought it would be a good idea.

The order was directed to Berge Skartveit, a tenant on the farm owned jointly by Bastian and a partner. Neither Skartveit nor Bastian showed up in Chicago to be questioned. Pratt and Greenaway were present, however.

When officials transferred the case to the Moline OPA office, the agents said they would continue their investigation and would report their findings to Moline. The agents remarked that they had no way of knowing that the cows had been struck by a train.

Both denied using abusive language when they called at Bastian's store at Hinckley Thursday and were confronted with the beef carcasses hanging in the cooler. Pratt said he had not counseled letting the injured cows lie in the pasture for three days while the permit was being obtained, as Bastian charged.

LOUISE PEETE SENTENCED TO GAS CHAMBER

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1 (AP)—Mrs. Louise Peete, 63, was sentenced today to death in the San Quentin gas chamber for the murder of Mrs. Margaret Logan, to whom she had been paroled after serving 18 years of a life sentence for slaying Jacob Denton 25 years ago.

Sentence was passed by Superior Judge Harold B. Landreth, in whose court a jury of 11 women and one man last week returned a verdict of guilty without recommendation for clemency.

Mrs. Peete was unmoved as sentence was passed after a new trial was denied. She will be taken to the state institution for women at Tehachapi to await an automatic appeal to the state Supreme court from her conviction.

$2,500 Decree Entered Against Packing Firm

Judge Walter J. La Buy in federal District court yesterday entered a consent decree of $2,500 against the John H. Marhoefer Packing company on charges of violating office of price administration price ceilings. On Monday the packing company was suspended from business by an OPA commissioner.

MEAT SHORTAGE STRIKES SMALL TOWNS AT LAST

Display Cases Empty; Full a Month Ago

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Rockford, Ill., June 1—The meat shortage finally has reached rural communities and small farm towns, a survey thru Illinois by THE TRIBUNE reveals.

In the last month, supplies of fresh meat have dropped from "fairly adequate" to "very poor," according to operators of dozens of village meat and grocery stores. For the first time since the war began, rural people are not getting a good supply of beef and pork.

Deliveries Cut Deeply

The small farm towns had been getting about as much meat as they needed because they not only were closer to the source of supply than big cities, but also because demand had not increased at the city rate and the rural housewife did not have as many meat dollars as her city cousin, meat store owners said.

Now, however, the big packers have been unable to make even 70 per cent of normal deliveries to the little towns. Small, non-federally inspected slaughterers who had been giving rural communities large supplies of beef and pork have had their killing quotas cut heavily by the government. The country towns now face a meat shortage on a comparable scale to that existing in the cities, the survey disclosed.

In Mahomet, population 850, H. K. Pasley, grocery store operator, reported that his normal weekly purchase of meat had dwindled from $400 to a low of about $33.

Situation Changes in One Month

Across the street from Pasley's store is one run by F. O. Jahr. He reported his meat supplies down 33 per cent and said he had begun the practice of saving most of his week's supply to sell on Saturday when the greatest number of people came to town. A little more than a month ago, his supplies were quite good, he said.

Both store owners reported they were getting "fairly decent" supplies of prepared lunch meats and several varieties were stacked in good amounts in their refrigerated show cases. This was found to be the case in almost every small meat store visited.

In Farmer City, population 1800, one chain store has discontinued its handling of fresh meats because supplies have disappeared in the last month and a half, the store manager reported.

Another chain store in the town had only fish in its meat show case and a clerk declared the same condition had existed for several days. In both stores meat supplies had been adequate until a month ago.

Losing Money Handling It

In Minonk, population 2,000, John R. Gregorich said he was planning to close the meat department in his small store. He was displaying two small pieces of round steak as the extent of his supplies.

In New Milford, population 600, Orville Holts said he was losing money handling the tiny supplies he now is getting. Buying from a local packing plant, Holts had adequate supplies of meat until five weeks ago.

The frozen food locker is a determining factor in the available meat supplies in many rural towns, the survey disclosed. Where the community supports a cold storage plant, the town people have more adequate supplies of meat as the farmers are not competing with them for the purchase of fresh meat.

Amundsen High School to Be Saluted on W-G-N

Amundsen High school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast over W-G-N at 10 a. m. today. L. Day Perry, the principal, will be heard as host, and Philip Maxwell of the Tribune staff will conduct the program. Three more pupils will be named to the roll of honor: James W. Morris of Amundsen; Philip R. Melangton Jr., Plymouth, Ind., and June Bickerton, Peoria. The Amundsen chorus of 90 voices, directed by Ada H. Nelson, will sing several selections. Marguerite Whitehall will present interscholastic news.

THEATER'S PAY PHONE STOLEN

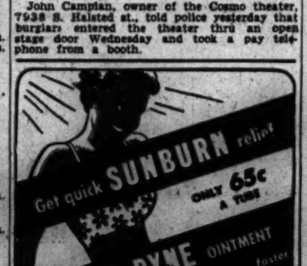
John Campian, owner of the Cosmo theater, 7938 S. Halsted st., told police yesterday that burglars entered the theater thru an open stage door Wednesday and took a pay telephone from a booth.

THEATER OF AIR STARTS SUMMER SERIES TONIGHT

The first of a series of new concert hours to continue thru the summer will be aired on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The summer broadcasts will come from the main studio of W-G-N.

A feature of tonight's broadcast will be the presentation of "Hail the Legions of Glory," an original composition by Robert Trendler and Jack La Frandre. Trendler will conduct the orchestra and chorus.

Bruce Foote will sing Joseph Myro's "Ode to a Marine"; Ruth Slater, "Bend of the River"; Penny Perry, "All the Things You are." A group of Negro spirituals will be included. The program will close with the "Oath of Allegiance," with Angelo Raffaelli as the soloist.



Wins Decree

MRS. EMILY FENTRESS OTT

Mrs. Emily Fentress Ott, 34, daughter of Calvin Fentress, socialite, prominent lumberman and banker, yesterday was granted a divorce before Superior Judge John A. Sbarbaro from her husband, John Nash Ott Jr., grandson of the late James B. Forgan, former president of the First National bank.

Mrs. Ott, who filed her suit Monday, accused her husband, formerly a lieutenant [j. g.] in the navy, and at present assistant cashier in the bank, of striking her on two occasions. She sought no alimony but Judge Sbarbaro granted her $125 monthly support money for each of four children, a $10,000 cash settlement, and title to her home at 1290 Forest Glen av., Winnetka.

She was given custody of the children, two of whom are by a previous marriage, and Ott was given the right to visit them on alternate week-ends and the custody of the two younger children for a month each summer.

INDIANAN TO WED EX-HUSBAND OF AMELIA EARHART

Maj. George Palmer Putnam, 58, former husband of Amelia Earhart, aviatrix lost in the Pacific, will marry Miss Margaret Haviland of Michigan City, Ind., on June 10, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Haviland, announced yesterday. The wedding will be in San Marino, Cal. It will be Putnam's fourth marriage.

Miss Haviland, a graduate of Western college, Oxford, O., is an executive of the mobile service division of the U. S. O. in San Marino.

Maj. Putnam, formerly a member of the publishing firm of G. P. Putnams' Sons, New York, was an intelligence office for a B-29 group which made some of the early raids against Japan. Before the war he headed several Arctic aviation expeditions of exploration. The couple will reside in Putnam's home in the high Sierras in California.

Close Campbell Park Dr. for Resurfacing Work

Resurfacing of Campbell Park dr. between Oakley blvd. and Leavitt st. will be started today by the Chicago park district. The drive will be closed to traffic while the work is under way.

FARM 'STRIKE' THREATENED IN OPA PROTEST

Toledo, O., June 1 [Special]—What amounts to a farm strike is threatened in northwestern Ohio unless food price ceilings are raised to permit farm cost of production, OPA officials in Toledo were told last night at a stormy meeting in Bowling Green, O.

More than 200 angry farmers, meeting at Bowling Green State university, declared they were not making their cost of production and revealed a slowdown in production already is in effect.

Don't Want Subsidies

The farmers told OPA officials they did not want subsidies and some declared they never had accepted benefit payments and never would.

They laid the blame for black market operations at the door of OPA price schedules and in effect dared the OPA to take any legal action against any member of a group which calls itself the Ohio Quota Marketing Protest association.

Included in the group last night were members of that association, the Wood County Farmers Protective association and others. Resolutions were adopted seeking elimination of quotas on food production and of subsidy payments either to farmers, processors, or packers.

A poll of the group on present production plans showed that not a person was planning to increase production or maintain it at present levels. Many said they had curtailed sharply the raising of beef, hogs, and poultry and several said they had virtually gone out of business.

Sees OPA Making "Liars"

H. H. Fackler of Plymouth, O., state chairman of the Quota Protest association, said he served as a member of his own ration board and charged that demands of OPA for filling out forms were "making pretty good liars of the people and penalizing the ones who tried to be honest."

He charged the OPA sought to blame the farmer for the shortage of meat, but said the shortage was caused because the farmer had been forced to produce without earning his cost of production.

H. G. Bogart, Toledo, district OPA chief, said that congress established the OPA and "you will have to have congress finish it off." He termed it unfair to lump all criticism of the government into an attack on OPA, when OPA is responsible for only such things as congress has authorized it to handle.

Barrett Takes 1st Step in Fight on 12 Cent 'L' Fare

Notice of intention to file a petition for rehearing of the Supreme court decision which authorizes the Chicago Rapid Transit company to charge a 12 cent "L" fare was filed by Atty. Gen. Barrett yesterday with the clerk of the court.

ARMY EXCLUSION POWER UPHELD BY A U. S. JUDGE

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1 (AP)—United States District Judge Pierson M. Hall today upheld the power of the army to exclude Japanese or other persons from military zones in war time, but said the army may only arrest violators of exclusion orders. He ruled that such cases must be turned over to the United States attorney under present laws.

Judge Hall's opinion was in an injunction action brought by the American Civil Liberties union to restrain Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, head of the western defense command, from interfering with the return to the Pacific coast of three Japanese, Dr. George Ochikubo, Oakland dentist; Elmer S. Yamamoto, San Pedro fisherman, and Kiyoshi Shigekawa, Los Angeles attorney.

Declaring the court had no power to review war time military orders, Judge Hall added:

Sabotage and espionage are just as serious in their consequences, if not more so, in modern warfare than a national invasion by armed men."

POLICEMAN FRACTURES ANKLE

Policeman John F. Foley, 49, of the Hudson av. station, fractured his ankle yesterday on the stairs at 3116 Sedgwick st. He lives at 1117 N. Waller av.

"You're sure now your relatives can't read, Maw?"

Maw's folks are not literary. But they have good taste when it comes to Paw's Wheaties. Easy to appreciate the good nourishment, swell flavor in those whole wheat flakes. Try milk, fruit, and Wheaties, "Breakfast of Champions." You'll welcome second helpings.

RAILROAD HELLO GIRLS QUIZZED IN TICKET INQUIRY

Nine girls who sit at a revolving table and answer telephoned requests for railroad reservations were interviewed in the Santa Fe railroad's reservation bureau in the Railway Exchange building yesterday by three state senators, members of a commission investigating reports that a black market exists in Pullman and plane reservations. The commissioners were Chairman Libonati [D., Chicago], Bidwill [R., River Forest], and Knox [R., Chicago]. They obtained information about the clerical procedure followed by the railroad. The commission will question air lines officials this morning in a meeting in the city hall.

Recall Battle

Four Chicago area men, all sailors on the destroyer Laffey when Jap suicide planes crashed into the ship last April 16 while it was on patrol duty off Okinawa, arrived home yesterday, happy that their commander, Frederick J. Becton of Hot Springs, Ark., roared, "I'll never abandon ship as long as a gun will fire!"

One of the men who kept the guns firing was John J. Kmiecik, 24, seaman 1st class, of 2443 S. Homan av., an ammunition passer on a 40 mm. gun battery. On pump duty in the after engine room was Charles W. Regin, 23, machinist's mate 3d class, of 1519 Nelson st. Regin and Werner F. Hoopman, 21, of Arlington Heights, a machinist's mate 3d class, were with the Laffey from the day it was commissioned in February, 1944.

The fourth member is Lyman L. Frey, 19, seaman 1st class, of 422 Sibley blvd., Calumet City, who was stationed between stacks on the main deck as lookout man on a torpedo tube. All the men were eager to describe the attack of the six suicide planes, except Hoopman, who merely said, "I just sat down in the engine room and prayed."

URGE LIMITING OF LEND-LEASE AID TO JAP WAR

Truman, Is Asked to State His Policy

BY LAURENCE BURD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 1—Five Republican congressmen asked President Truman today to limit future lend-lease shipments to articles needed by our allies to fight Japan.

In a letter to the President the representatives, who are members of the house foreign affairs committee, declared that all "lend-lease" supplies shipped since V-E day should be paid for in cash, unless they are used in the Pacific war.

The letter urged Mr. Truman to make public a statement of the policy he intends to follow on lend-lease operations in the future.

"Policy Obscure"

The letter was signed by Representatives Mundt [S. D.], Chiperfield [Ill.], Jonkman [Mich.], Vorys [O.], and Smith [Wis.].

"Your policy on post-V-E day lend-lease," the members wrote, "has been obscured, rather than explained, by the combined effect of your own statements, those of Undersecretary of State Grew and Lend-Lease Administrator Crowley.

"There may have been sound political and diplomatic reasons for this confusion during the last few weeks. . . . The time has come, however, when decisions must be made."

The letter recalled that the lend-lease extension act passed by congress this spring carried an amendment which administration leaders assured would prohibit use of lend-lease as a post-war instrument. Hence, it continued, "We believe no new [lend-lease] agreement can be made except with countries at war with Japan."

Signed Bill Twice

The congressmen recalled that the extension bill was signed by Mr. Truman both as Vice President and later as President.

"If you seek loopholes in the lend-lease law to extend your power to act without consulting congress," the letter continued, "we feel this would be disastrous.

"If under guise of aid for the Japanese war, you furnish help to France, Britain, and Russia, we five, and many members of congress, will feel we have been fooled. If, on the other hand, you limit lend-lease to the present war and come to congress with the vast and complicated problems we still face, aside from the Japanese war, after V-E day, we pledge you our loyal support."

U.S. DOUBLING HOSPITAL BEDS FOR VETERANS

The federal veterans administration has launched plans to increase the number of its hospital beds to 133,075, more than double the total available when Pearl Harbor was bombed, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, yesterday told members of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion in the Morrison hotel.

Since passage of the G. I. bill of rights employes have been increased from 47,000 to 55,000, and the administration has been authorized to hire 69,000. The administration is still short 1,000 nurses and will need at least 3,000 more in another year.

"Plans already launched are designed to provide a total of 133,075 hospital beds," Hines told the committee. "This compares with 61,845 we had at the time of Pearl Harbor. Of these projected beds, 90,073 will be ready for occupancy this year and 105,762 will be completed during 1946."

9,334 New Zealanders Killed in World War II.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, June 1 [Reuters]—New Zealand's war casualties up to February 28 totaled 36,747, including 9,334 killed, Walter Nash, acting prime minister, said today. New Zealand casualties in the first World war were 58,004, of whom 16,302 were killed.

U. S. DUE TO HALT MEAT EXPORTS FOR 3 MONTHS

BY ROBERT YOUNG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 1—The lend-lease export drain on the dwindling American meat supply is scheduled to be halted for three months beginning in July, government officials said today, but they admitted that the shortage which has stirred congress to wrath against the office of price administration will become increasingly acute.

American civilians will have 786 million pounds less meat to eat in the third quarter than in the current quarter, according to official estimates, despite the decision to suspend the lend-lease shipments. In the current quarter, the United States is lend-leasing 325 million pounds.

Russian Shipments Heavy

Leo T. Crowley, head of the foreign economic administration and chairman of the interagency committee on foreign shipments, had said in a report a month ago that any third quarter meat exports were "improbable," in view of the domestic supply and distribution situation and the seasonal decline in live stock slaughtering and marketings. Today FEA and war food administration spokesmen said that altho lend-lease and foreign relief allocations for the third quarter will not be given final approval until later this month, it is virtually certain that meat shipments will be suspended.

Removal of meat from lend-lease for at least three months will affect Russia primarily because for April, May, and June the soviet union was allocated 300 million pounds out of the total of 325 million assigned for export. The other 25 million pounds was assigned to Great Britain.

3 Billion Founds for U. S.

American civilians tentatively are allocated about 3 billion pounds of meat, dressed weight, for the third quarter, or 786 million pounds less than was allotted in the current three month period.

Price Administrator Bowles told a joint congressional committee today that housewives will begin to find more meat in the stores "around the first of July" as a result of issuance by the OPA today of an order requiring every slaughterer to send into each county the same proportionate quota of meat he shipped in the first quarter of 1944. Bowles admitted that this distribution control order was "overdue."

Meanwhile, Rep. Andresen [R., Minn.] said today "alibis and buck-passing from the war food administration and OPA do not satisfy meat hungry people."

Sees Black Market Legalized

Andresen, in a house speech, said people are forced to pay sky-rocketing prices "in what has now apparently become a legalized black market because of the failure of the OPA to prosecute big black market operators."

Retiring War Food Administrator Jones has tried to do a good job, Andresen declared, but he said Jones had become disheartened by having to clear his food problems thru:

"WPB, OPA, WSA, PAW, FEA, army and navy, and the interagency committee, OWM&R, OES, SPB, SWPC, WMC, selective service, veterans' administration, RFC, budget WLB, OWI, and departments of justice, treasury, state, etc."

WIFE OF JAILED INDIAN LEADER TO SPEAK HERE

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, whose press interviews attacking British stooges in India were sidelights of the San Francisco conference, will speak in Orchestra hall Monday night at a meeting arranged by the Chicago Civil Liberties committee.

She is a sister of the imprisoned Jawaharal Nehru. She was jailed for four months in 1940 under the defense of India act. Her brother and husband still are in prison.

In San Francisco she charged the British with imprisoning 100,000 Indians and shooting down many others who did not understand British orders.

CHICAGO REGION IS FACING SHORT SUPPLY OF EGGS

Chicago area residents face a short supply of eggs, it was disclosed yesterday. The situation was not reported to be as severe as in some eastern cities, where sales are restricted to three or four eggs to a customer.

The shortage in Chicago so far has reached the wholesale market, dealers, and distributors, who said they are having difficulty in obtaining eggs but added that there was no reason for housewives to become alarmed.

One market spokesman laid the shortage to heavy purchases by the army, which has contracted for 6 million cases by Sept. 15. While production has fallen off from 1944, when there was an oversupply, the number of chicks booked for later delivery was 131 per cent higher on May 1 than a year earlier. These chickens will help alleviate the scarcity after a few months.

FROM DAMASCUS TO SAN FRANCISCO

The Syrian incident should be an eye opener to Americans who expected the imperial powers to learn something from this war aside from improved techniques of killing. Europe is playing the old game of power politics according to the old rules. There is no acknowledgment of past mistakes and no inner reformation. The pious talk heard at the open meetings in San Francisco is all sham.

France recognized the independence of Syria and Lebanon, but wished to continue to enjoy a preferred position there if only to safeguard the flow of oil to France. The Syrians want real independence; in morals as well as law they are entitled to it, and this is the moment for which they have been waiting—the moment when France is weaker than she has been at any time since the Prussian war.

Inevitably American opinion is on the side of the people struggling for independence. We would be false to our own history if we took a different view.

But to say that is not to overlook the glaring hypocrisy of Britain's conduct in the matter. Britain, too, is siding with the Syrians. [As if anything that France has done or may contemplate doing to suppress native aspiration for freedom has not been repeated a thousand times in India and elsewhere thruout the empire during centuries of British oppression.]

Britain has kept a big army in the near east in recent years for reasons which have puzzled many Americans. There was no danger from the Germans there and no prospect of fighting them in that area, at least since El Alamein. The Germans were in Europe, where the British gladly turned over the job of beating them to Americans. We had three or four divisions on the western front to every one of the British and our casualties were at least correspondingly large. While Americans were doing the bulk of the fighting and dying, a great English army sat on its royal buttocks in the near east.

Those of us who asked explanation were told not to sow discord among the allies. We now have the answer, if not in words then in acts. The British wanted an army there so that their wish would be law thruout the region. Political and economic rights and privileges would be distributed according to British desires and interests.

And that's what's happening. The British served an ultimatum on the French, and the French, faced with overwhelming force, have been obliged to yield. Obviously the British are not acting on moral principle; if they were, they would free the hundreds of millions of Indians living in colonial bondage before bothering about a few million near eastern Arabs.

Mr. Churchill, no doubt, intends this incident to put France in her place. Gen. de Gaulle's government has been playing Russia against England. Events in Syria are supposed to remind the French that Russia can't do anything to or for them and Britain can; they will, therefore, go along with Britain if they know what's good for them.

It will be interesting to observe the reaction to this argument in both Russia and France, but whatever the response may be over the years, it is altogether certain that it won't accord with the rolling rhetoric of San Francisco with its emphasis on morality and law. The incident reveals that in post-war Europe, as in the Europe of the '30s, decisions will be reached on the basis of self-interest and naked force.

The Syrian affair proves also the futility of the San Francisco plan for keeping the peace. As Mr. Henning has pointed out, if the quarrel had reached the security council, France would have been privileged to veto all action restraining her. She could have conducted her war against the Syrians without interference from any one acting singly or collectively. The San Francisco plan is a scheme made to order to keep subject nations in perpetual bondage. It is Russia's guarantee that her enslavement of the Poles, the Yugoslavs, and all the rest will never be disturbed. It is England's assurance that nobody can lawfully disturb her in the possession of her imperial swag.

If the money mad, socially servile men in our delegation at San Francisco commit this nation to a scheme so demonstrably oppressive, they will betray the principles of the Declaration of Independence, the American Revolution, and the emancipation proclamation.

THE OPA PONDERS A COW

Three cows got on the Burlington railroad tracks near Hinckley, in De Kalb county. A freight train reduced one of them to unsalable hamburger and crippled the other two. The tenant on the farm notified Elmer Bastian, one of the owners, and Bastian decided that the crippled cows would have to be killed.

He had killed one when W. R. Pratt, an OPA employe from Elgin, appeared and demanded whether he had a slaughter permit, which obviously he didn't. Pratt ordered Bastian to do nothing further until he had heard further from him, Pratt. Bastian killed the second cow to end its suffering, called the OPA office in Sandwich, Ill., and was given permission to butcher the meat, store it in the cooler of his store in Hinckley, and sell it if he collected ration points for it.

Three days later Pratt and another OPA employe, George Greenaway, appeared at Bastian's store and gave him a summons to appear at the Chicago office of the OPA. They told him that there he would be given instructions about slaughtering the second cow and disposing of the carcasses of both animals. When Bastian asked them if they had expected him to let the injured animals suffer for three days while the OPA made up its mind, and then showed them the dressed carcasses hanging in his cooler, he was, by his own account, subjected to a torrent of profanity by the two OPA representatives. The agents retreated when their behavior attracted an angry crowd of Hinckley citizens.

To the OPA, apparently, the two cows presented no more than a problem of licensing a slaughterer. To Bastian, the people in Hinckley, and the local OPA board in Sandwich they represented meat. If Bastian had waited for the OPA to act the meat would have been lost.

If Mr. Chester Bowles, down in Washington, wants to know why his paid employes are held in increasing contempt by the public, and why the volunteer members of his ration boards are finding it increasingly trying to keep their posts in the face of the criticism of their neighbors, he needn't go any farther than his agent, Pratt, to find the answer.

THE END OF THE NAZIS

The miserable end of the Nazis, who ruled nearly all of Europe in their prime, completes the incredibility of the era. These men came out of the alleys to seize power. They return to the alleys to die. They are all grotesque phantasies. Unfortunately they represent a culmination of 2,000 years of experiment, experience, and development in the science, philosophy, and practice of government in Europe. That phantasy is a reality in the ruins of the continent.

These men were true gangsters. Their methods were those of criminal mobs extended to civil rule and international dealings. What to say of the mentality which in Germany gave loyalty and tribute to such fuehrers and which elsewhere paid them the compliment of imitation and coöperation exceeds the art of expression. In defeat no single tolerable quality is discernible in any of them. Those who have died died as sneaks.

Hitler, if accounts of his end are credible, was in a delirium for days and the men about him, no matter how high their rank or authority, did not dare seize him and tie him up or kill him. Goebbels, regarded for some curious reason as a master propagandist, poisoned himself, his wife, and his daughter. When panic seized the gangsters they failed to make a masterful end of it. Himmler, taken in disguise with forged papers, died of poison and was buried ignominiously. Goering tried to be a captive of distinction. His loot in painting was found to be of almost incalculable value. Himmler had a gold hoard.

The wantonness of the gangsters must have been apparent to the whole nation for years. They had begun as penniless demagogs and ruffians. They acquired vast estates and great houses and made a vast display of luxury. Evidence of looting at home and abroad was everywhere. A later generation will discover how the German historians treat the era. How would any nation like to explain it to the school child at the desk? Some of the higher military have committed suicide, probably in shame.

There has been criticism of American officers for treating Kesselring as a soldier. Has it been forgotten that Montgomery had as a dinner guest the first German general he captured in the Egyptian break-thru and entertained him by showing him just how he had been licked? Or that the Russians organized their German generals into a decoy group promising the German general staff and the army that the soviet union had no desire to destroy them? Possibly our use of Doenitz and Jodl to effect the surrender of the nazi armies and submarines could be excused in the light of the foregoing as only moderately indiscreet. The Russians made a great fuss about it.

In the treatment of the various living wretches who must answer whatever indictments are brought against them, Norway, in the treatment of its star offender, Mr. Quisling, continues to show that on the continent the Scandinavians may have preserved the saving germ of civilization. The proceedings against Quisling go ahead with all the dignity of judicial process. He will have his full days in court without the atmosphere of the vendetta. Elsewhere there seems to be little realization that the accused men may be allowed to do their final injustice to society by turning courts of justice into mobs on the courthouse steps.

As internal affairs and foreign policies develop on the continent in lynch law, human slavery, attacks on property, violence in seizing territory, national animosities and mob impulses it may be that the Nazis will find their explanation in the events which follow their extinction.

THE LOGIC OF WAR

The fires in the Japanese cities are fed to a very considerable extent with lumber imported from America. Japan has important timber resources of her own, but in modern times she has always been a heavy buyer of lumber in British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, and California. How dependent the Japanese have been on our forests is indicated by a statement in the Japan Yearbook for 1940, as follows: "The lumber market in 1938 extremely arose because of the decrease of the imports of foreign lumber."

We are engaged, then, in setting fire to houses made from trees cut down and sawed into boards by American lumbermen who sweated profusely in order to protect Japanese citizens from the weather and extremely arisen prices.

If it seems a little odd that the sons of the men who did all that sweating should now be destroying the work of their fathers' hands, consider the even greater oddity of the behavior of the Japanese. They are sending balloons across the Pacific and equipping them with cunning devices calculated to release bombs over the forests of our Pacific northwest. Thus the Japanese hope to set the forests afire and destroy the source of the materials with which new houses may be built.

MR. PEPYS IN THE OPEN

2d June—On Decoration day, decided the weatherman deserved a prize for producing a perfect specimen of late spring. As a rule, it is either too cold or too hot on Decoration day in this town, but out of the clouds and puddles of May, 1945, came a holiday masterpiece.

Went to a cemetery, like most people, for a half hour, and was struck by the number of little flags, fluttering bravely in the breeze, over soldiers' graves. They were far more numerous than they had been 10 years ago, altho few represented soldiers of this war. Twenty years hence, I thought, the cemeteries on this day of remembrance will be great fields of the red, white, and blue.

While there I visited the swan ponds and discovered that two families had hatched their eggs within the week, and their chicks, called cygnets, were taking their first swims. One pair of nesters had increased the swan population by three, but the other pair had to be content with a single offspring. The mothers and children were doing well, and the fathers were cruising around, looking for trouble and free lunch as usual.

Enjoyed an hour in the open air at State and Madison sts. last Tuesday, when THE TRIBUNE put on a noontime war bond show. Every one was surprised that it didn't rain, but the booths below the grandstand reported a gentle rain of checks, which made good news for the performers and bad news for the Japs.

ALWAYS FOUL WEATHER

I cannot write, nor can I sing,
Of summer, autumn, winter, spring,
In dainty, lace-edged metaphors
Like our fair weather troubadours.

To me the seasons of the year
Are always gumming up this sphere
With rain and sleet, or freeze and thaw,
A searing sun, or gale that's raw.

Such infinite variety
I tolerate . . . but painfully!

For just about the time I choose
To read, or golf, or write, or snooze,
I have to wrestle with the screens,
Put up storm windows, pole the beans;

There's snow to shovel, leaves to rake,
Or grass to cut, until I ache
In every muscle, nerve, and bone . . .
A fact I cannot quite condone!

I am, let's say, diverse of feather
From birds who eulogize the weather.

Asking the Boy in the Street

Among the old landmarks of London obliterated by bombs during the war, is Chelsea Old Church. It had stood since the 14th century, and its quaint, familiar tower had looked down on all the scenes that have given to the quiet suburb of Chelsea its romantic charm and history.

My mother was born in Chelsea and was christened in this church. Her home was close to Thomas Carlyle's, and as a baby she had been patted on the cheek by the great man, a circumstance not lightly to be taken, for Carlyle was not lavish of affectionate demonstrations.

Some years ago I made a pilgrimage to these haunts and sought out Carlyle's house, which, since his death, was open to the public. I was not sure of its location and inquired of some street boys where Carlyle's house might be.

"Who?" answered one with a strong cockney accent.

"Carlyle," I repeated, "Thomas Carlyle, the writer."

"Never 'eard of 'im."

"But," said I, "there's a statue of him at the end of the street."

"O, that bloke! He's been dead 'undreds of years."

EULOGY FOR EARTHWORMS

(A Brookfield Ballad)

Too oft unnoticed and ignored,
The earthworm's ways should be explored!
His mouth end's large, the tail end flat,
And now that we have settled that,
I think he merits three loud cheers,
For tho he has no eyes or ears
He irrigates and excavates
Until rainwater penetrates
Beneath the soil, so trees may thrive
And forest verdure well survive.
Yes, he should be inviolate—
But still, he makes attractive bait!

In 1898 Jim O'Leary, the gambling house man, offered to bet two to one that it would rain 21 days in May. This sounded like easy money to his customers, and the newspapers perked up their ears. Every day in May the score for rain was printed on the first pages. Sure enough, there was rainfall on 21 days that month.

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

D. F. asks: "Can letters and packages still be sent to soldiers who were prisoners of war in Germany? Is it necessary to have a request from a marine in the Pacific area before a package may be sent to him?"

Because all prisoners of war in Europe have been liberated, the war department has notified the postoffice department that mail cannot be delivered and should be returned to the sender. Men who were prisoners either will be home in a short time or will supply new mailing addresses. Packages may be sent to marine, navy, or coast guard personnel at any time without request, but no more than one package may be accepted for mailing from one sender in one week.

S. G. M. writes: "My sister's only son was killed in action. He married a year before entering service and named his wife beneficiary of his insurance. She also has applied for a widow's pension. This soldier's parents live on a farm and his father is unable to work. They have no income. Are they entitled to any government benefits?"

On a showing of dependency, the parents of the soldier are entitled to a pension of $25 a month each. Application should be made to the veterans' administration, Washington, D. C., on VA form 535. Affidavits of disinterested persons in support of the dependency claim must be obtained to accompany the pension application.

MENTAL AND PHYSICAL FACTORS IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

IT is common knowledge that more individuals lost their lives in automobile accidents from 1920 to 1935 than were killed in all the wars of the country prior to that date. Many agencies have tried to reduce this terrific toll. Laws on traffic violations were established, manufacturers incorporated safety devices, road improvements were "stepped up," and drivers' licenses inaugurated. In the postwar era more cars than ever will be on the road. Now is the time to raise our standards.

In the strict sense, the prevention of such catastrophes is not a medical problem but the physical condition of the driver must be considered. Those subject to fainting spells or dizziness due to cardiac disease, changes in blood pressure, or arterial disorders of the brain should not drive. The diabetic who is prone to develop reactions must be included in this category, unless proper precautions are taken. Occasionally a heart attack is responsible but it is surprising the number who are capable of pulling over to the side and stopping in time.

Faulty vision, even with glasses, is a factor. The man who is unable to read the license plate of an approaching car at a distance of 25 feet is treading on thin ice. Color blindness is seldom an issue as the 4 per cent of our males with this imperfection can usually sense the colors in the traffic lights. The significance of deafness is questioned when one considers how little the average person hears while riding with the windows closed, the motor vibrating, a companion talking, or the radio tuned in.

Physical defects of the extremities may play a part but each applicant must be judged separately. Those with the loss of one or both limbs may wear mechanical appliances which are adequate substitutes. Muscular weakness, stiffness, or paralysis may prove a definite handicap particularly when a speedy reaction is demanded. Special equipment to fit these needs is possible. A classic example is our late President, who employed an especially built motor car in Warm Springs and Hyde Park.

The state of the intellect is paramount. The old saying, "Drive with your head instead of your horn" is still good. Selling found that over one-half of the traffic offenders in one of our large cities were feeble-minded. Among these were some of the "accident-prone" cases who get into trouble whether they are driving or working in a plant. Mental defectives and grossly neurotic and psychotic personalities must be curbed if we expect to improve the situation. They should not be permitted at the wheel. Because our laws are simple little brains are needed to follow them. Those lacking in gray matter may get by only to become disorganized by using poor judgment in emergencies.

It is logical to assume that most of us will be responsible for an accident if we pile up enough mileage. This may occur tho we are in the best of health and our car has new tires and efficient brakes. We may not realize we are going so fast or perhaps we are in a hurry and take chances. Fatigue, day-dreaming, alcohol, or depending upon the other fellow's good sense—all offer opportunities for mishaps.

According to Selling, there are two principal requirements for safety. One is the ability to respond quickly to the elements of an impending accident long before it is necessary to step on the brake. The other is the driver's attitude toward others on the road. If a believer in the Golden Rule, even tho vision is only one-third of normal, he will probably be safe on the highway.

WRONG DIAGNOSIS

M. O. writes: Is an attack of acute indigestion ever fatal?

REPLY

In the past these seizures often were, because we did not realize that the heart was at fault. Now we know that coronary thrombosis was responsible. Indigestion still occurs, as for example, after eating green apples. This is more uncomfortable than serious.

PLUGGED VEIN

J. C. writes: What causes a blood clot to form in one leg?

Small Tales of Big Sea

"We all knew it would happen some time; we knew it the moment we saw the name Wilderness assigned to one of our ships as a voice radio call. And we didn't have long to wait. It was a clear, moonlight night when Wilderness came on the air calling another ship: 'Hello, ——, this is Wilderness. I have a message for you.' Then it happened. Came the reply: 'Ah, Wilderness! This is ——, send your message!'

"The fashion out here is to paint on the side of your ship's bridge a small Jap flag with the appropriate miniature of every Nip plane you knock down, every sub, destroyer, cruiser, etc. Recently we saw a variation. One of our tankers, weary of being smashed into by our own ships coming alongside for fuel, scraping paint, denting plates, bending stanchions, smashing lifeboats, etc., had painted on her bridge, 'They Did It to Us,' and below had listed the guilty United States vessels. After one ship's name there was a gold star, given, we learned later, because she was the only ship to send over a repair party to patch up the holes.

"The draft of new men had sailed thousands of miles on a large transport without any ill effects, or so they said. In their own minds they were old salts, but that was before they reported aboard our destroyer escort for duty. Despite their apparent confidence they were given the usual warning, 'Take a bucket with you when you go on watch the first few times underway.' As usual, it went unheeded, and for several days after standing out to sea the same faces could be seen grimacing as they swabbed the deck and scrubbed the sides below the place where they had stood their watches the night before. All this, even tho the sea was as smooth as glass, so calm, in fact, that the older hands howled with laughter when one of the boots asked, 'Gee, does this thing roll like this all the time?' One wag looked sympathetic and said, 'No, Mac, it doesn't.' The boy's face brightened, but fell again as the wag went on to say, '—only when we're not in drydock.'

"The Japs—they are a funny race. The other night we sat listening to a radio program from Tokyo. The damage wrought by the invisible imperial fleet that day, said Tokyo, had been terrible to behold, just as it had been terrible, it seemed to us, every day for weeks before. It was apparent that we had never been told of our strength, because the sunken American ships far exceeded the number we had thought had ever gone down the ways. But if we can't understand this, the Nips can and do, for as we listened this night to the sinking of 20 more American battleships, 30 more American cruisers, and 60 more American destroyers' the whole thing suddenly became clear to us when the program was brought to a close with Sousa's 'The Stars and Stripes Forever.'

"Optical houses do the best they can in figuring out relationships, but occasionally they miss. A naval officer out this way broke his glasses and sent them to an optical company in Chicago to be repaired, instructing the company to phone Mrs. —— in Evanston [neglecting to mention that she was also his wife] the minute the glasses were finished and she would pay for them. At the same time he wrote his wife, telling her about the glasses. Somehow the letter to Evanston was delayed, and one morning in the midst of bringing up their son of 11 months the young mother received a call from the optical company. 'Your son's glasses are ready,' they told her. She tried to explain that her son wasn't old enough to wear glasses, etc., but she aged considerably by the time she got it all straightened out."

"WE CAN'T TRUST AMERICA"

Du Quoin, Ill., May 28—It has recently come to my attention that some of our bureaucratic theorists have come up with the idea that it would be unfair to allow Mr. Average Citizen more gasoline at this time, as he would be in a position to get more than his share of the farmers' products by being able to drive out into the country.

Digging swimming pools in Great Britain as memorials doesn't have a thing on this idea.

TWO VIEWS ON CATS

Chicago, May 25—In regard to the bill before the legislature for cat control, we all love the songs and beauty of bird life, and wish to preserve them, but guns of boys kill more songsters than all the cats of the country have ever done. Birds stay in their nests at night. It is cat nature to be out at night and they destroy the insects and bugs doing havoc to gardens and vegetables. They keep rats and mice away. England got rid of her cats during the first years of the war, but soon found out cats had saved such a high ratio of food products, that the cost of their upkeep was trifling in comparison to their benefits, and England wanted cats back.

This bill would practically exterminate the American short haired cat. Why do away with pets who add so much happiness and joy to life?

ELIZABETH RICHARDS
Corresponding Secretary,
Beresford Cat Club of America

May 28—Why will people persist in saying cats kill rats. Cats do not kill rats. Rats are too vicious for cats. Even cats which are not fed will not tackle a rat. Cats live on birds, mice, grasshoppers, etc. They may kill a baby rat or baby squirrel but never full grown ones. I challenged any one to prove that cats kill rats several years ago and no one could prove it.

LILLIS B. HAMILTON

IT TAKES GENIUS

Chicago, May 30—Nobody should begrudge the "L" company its two cent fare increase. Think of all the ingenuity it takes to manage our new subway stations; to see that both escalators are always running downward when the crowd is walking upward, and vice versa. Or, at the very least, to see that if the man power shortage necessitates closing one of the ticket entrances, the escalator behind the closed entrance is kept running—downward—while the other one is stopped to save coal or something.

No, indeed; nobody should crab. Two cents is certainly a very fair valuation for such massive traffic engineering brains.

HARRIS K. RANDALL.

WATCH YOUR STEP, YOU!

Chicago, May 26—The large letter "J" stamped on sidewalks in the loop to admonish pedestrians not to jay walk forebodes no good. It can only mean new limitations on the "common man." I thought we were fighting a war to enlarge our liberties, not to be fenced in by new restrictions. What are the working people to get out of all this—a straitjacket?

WILLIAM N. JOHNSON

A RIFT IN THE KOREAN LUTE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 23—A certain Korean, since the second week of the united nations conference on international organization, has repeatedly charged thru the press that the late President of the United States in a "secret pact" at Yalta committed Korea to "the orbit of Russian influence."

This charge is regretted and regarded by the United Korean Committee in America and the Korean people it represents as unfortunate and indiscreet. It is unfortunate as it proposes to obtain publicity and recognition by agitation, and the means at this time is not in accord with the best interest of the Korean people. It is indiscreet in its attempt to question the integrity of the powers involved and can in no way enhance the Korean cause to a favored position. The charge, carefully investigated by the Koreans themselves, must be viewed as based on personal assumption and without tangible evidence.

The Koreans have believed and hold to the statement of the Cairo declaration that "in due course Korea shall become free and independent." They likewise have held in firm belief to the early application of the principle of the Atlantic charter that declares for the restoration of sovereign rights and self-government of peoples who have been forcibly deprived of them. They further hold that the friendship of the soviet union is to be cultivated in equal understanding as that of the United States, Great Britain, China, and other members of the united nations for the establishment of sovereign equality for Korea.

Korean recognition and freedom is not to be had thru agitation and accusation. It is to be had thru war and international will, and it is the endeavor of the Korean people to seek greater military and political cooperation of the united nations for the defeat of Japan.

Dear public...

Almost 2,000 teen-agers came to our high school fashion show (three of 'em are pictured at right!)—drank cokes—swooned over the jive! High school girls were models. One was so terrific, a talent scout has asked for her picture. It's getting to be a habit—Dottie Lamour got her start here too!

THEY SAY "FROG"... WE JUMP

And no wonder! There's nothing we like better than to pamper them in the High School Shop and around the Fourth Floor

There we keep everything they want, from A to Izzard right on one floor. We've co-ordinated colors and seasons. We're positively dripping with high school atmosphere... and underneath there's the quality the girls themselves have learned to expect.

Naturally.

EXPECT 150,000 AT HOLY HOUR IN SOLDIERS' FIELD

Rites to Be Dedicated to Christian Family

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Soldiers' field will open at 3 p. m. tomorrow to receive those arriving early for the fifth annual holy hour sponsored by the Holy Name societies of the Roman Catholic parishes of the Chicago archdiocese. The New World, official journal of the archdiocese, has predicted an attendance of 150,000. Previous holy hours were thronged for the spectacular religious dramas.

Archbishop Stritch, who will be celebrant and deliver the meditations, announced that this year's hour will be dedicated to the Christian family, and will initiate a campaign "to counteract the forces in America which are creating a growing disrespect for the sanctity of family life." The program will be formally opened at 6 o'clock by the Rev. E. J. Kelly, executive director of the archdiocesan Holy Name union, who will lead the throng in the recitation of the Angelus.

Honor Gold Star Families

Gold Star families and the sons who have given their lives for their country, will be specially honored. A total of 4,210 members of archdiocesan churches have been killed in this war. Relatives of these men will be seen in a procession in tribute to them. The procession will be led by contingents of soldiers, sailors, and marines.

Petitions for the prayers for men in service will be distributed in all churches tomorrow morning. These petitions will be placed in a treasure chest and reverently placed on the high altar at the north end of the field by soldiers leading the procession. The navy group will carry a large scroll of names of missing men, prisoners of war, and wounded. The marine detachment will carry a red heart of roses adorned with a gold star in tribute to fallen comrades.

Msgr. Byrnes to Speak

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Daniel A. Byrnes, chairman of the priests' committee on the holy hour, will speak on the theme of the holy hour and his address will be followed by two meditations by Archbishop Stritch. Solemn benediction of the sacrament will bring the music and pageantry of the hour to its climax. The archbishop will be assisted by the Rev. Edward L. Hughes, O. P., the Rev. T. E. Fitzpatrick, C. S. V., and the Rev. James C. Hardiman.

A symphony orchestra, the Catholic Casino choir, Cathedral choristers, and the priests' choir of the archdiocese will offer the musical setting for the service. The priests' choir, singing under the direction of the Rev. Charles Meter, will sing the Ecce Sacerdos, "Behold the Priest."

W. S. MILLER, RETIRED BANK LAWYER, DEAD

William Southworth Miller, retired vice president and general counsel of the Northern Trust company, died yesterday after an illness of several months. He was 71 and lived at 647 Spruce st., Winnetka. He was a grandson of Roswell B. Mason, mayor of Chicago at the time of the great fire of 1871.

Mr. Miller was born in Evanston and educated at Yale and Northwestern university law school. In 1900 he became attorney for the Northern Trust company, in 1916 vice president, and in 1931 vice president and general counsel. He also served as president of the Northern Trust Safe Deposit company and secretary of the James C. King Home for Old Men. He was considered an authority on banking law.

Mr. Miller was a member of the University club, Law club, Yale club, Indian Hills Country club, and the Chicago and Illinois State Bar associations. He leaves his widow, Mary; two sons, William Whipple and Joseph S. Miller, and two daughters, Mrs. Charles N. Proctor, Yosemite, Cal., and Mrs. Albert F. Sise, Wellesley Hills, Mass. William and the two daughters are children by his first wife, Susan, who died in 1911, and Joseph by his second wife, whom he married in 1913. Services will be held at 3 p. m. Monday in Christ church, Winnetka.

FATE OF ROADS RESTS ON STATE, ALD. KELLS SAYS

Chicago's hopes for a post-war street and super-highway program stand a slim chance of realization unless the state can be persuaded to return a more commensurate proportion of the gas tax funds which Chicago motorists now pay, Ald. Kells [28th] said yesterday.

Kells, head of the council committee on traffic and public safety, disclosed that motorists in the Chicago metropolitan area pay into state coffers 65 per cent of all gas tax funds collected in the state. They get back only 2 per cent for highway construction and repair work, he added.

He suggested an arrangement wherein the state would assume 50 per cent of the cost of the proposed super-highway system, with the city and county sharing the remaining 50 per cent between them.

This system has been adopted in Detroit, Mich., the committee was informed by Victor E. Gunlock, an engineer for the department of subways and super-highways, where it has worked out satisfactorily. Several cities in New Jersey also follow the same plan, he said, with the state cooperating.

U. S. EMPLOYES MAY HAVE THEIR WORK WEEK CUT

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—President Truman today wrote Rep. Ramspeck [D., Ga.], chairman of the house civil service committee, that he will soon authorize reduction of the 48 hour work week for federal employes in cities where there are no labor shortages.

The Ramspeck committee is considering a bill providing for regular time and a half pay for overtime beyond 40 hours. Overtime pay now is time and a twelfth.

The President did not mention the amount of time reduction, but it is believed many government agencies would soon be reduced to 44 hours a week.

BONES SURVIVE FURNACE FIRE IN MURDER TEST

The test cremation of human bones in the furnace of the flat building at 6855 Clyde av., last week proved that a human body could be entirely consumed, Dr. Wilton M. Krogman, University of Chicago anthropologist, reported yesterday to State's Atty. Tuohy.

The experiment was made to check the repudiated confession of Joseph Nischt, 30, janitor of the building, that he slugged Mrs. Rose Michaelis, 58, building tenant and family friend, and stuffed her body into the furnace last Feb. 28. No trace of the body was found in the ashes.

Dr. Krogman reported that a few small fragments of bone were found in the ashes after the test cremation but that it was his conclusion "that Nischt tended the furnace with much greater, continuous care than we did, raking and agitating the center of the fire more often and more vigorously."

Earlier Nischt appeared before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of Criminal court. Nischt's arraignment was continued until Tuesday.

BEATEN VETERAN TELLS COURT OF $500 BRIBE OFFER

Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday directed the bailiffs of his court to make an intensive search for a man who Howard Norris, 22, of 441 S. Wabash av., said offered him $500 to drop an assault and battery charge against George Wagner, 52, of 626 S. State st.

Norris said he could not identify Wagner, a wounded veteran of World War 1, as the man who struck him on the head outside a tavern at the S. State st. address in April. Norris told Borrelli he had been informed another man had struck him. He said the other man offered $500 if he would drop the case. Norris, a discharged service man who was wounded in Africa, spent 19 days in a hospital after the blow reopened a fracture.

Assistant State's Atty. John Phillips said he would consult his superiors about an investigation into possible tampering with witnesses. Judge Borrelli continued the hearing on the charge against Wagner until June 8.

DRUMMER BOY OF '61 NEARS HIS 95TH BIRTHDAY

James Crugom, 7229 Rogers av., who was a drummer in the Union army at the age of 11, will celebrate his 95th birthday Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex T. McLeod, with whom he lives. He is believed to be one of the youngest veterans of the Union army.

He enlisted in the same Wisconsin regiment in which his father, a Milwaukee physician, was a sergeant and his brother, 15, was drum major. The company tailor, Crugom related, had to cut down a regulation uniform to fit him. Born in Paris, France, Crugom has lived in Chicago since 1888.

He said he has made no special plans for his birthday, but probably will spend the day reading the newspapers and listening to war news on the radio. Crugom said he seldom leaves his home, and therefore is more interested than ever in reading and hearing of current events.

Merry Month of June Makes Romantic News

BY JUDITH CASS

NEWS of engagements and of early June brides is of interest as the romantic month of June gets under way. At a tea and cocktail party today in Evanston Mrs. Charles Stoddard Williston is announcing the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Allan Strale, to Edwin R. Eckersall of Chicago, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse B. Eckersall.

Miss Strale attended the Roycemore school and Pine Manor, and was graduated from Monticello college. Her fiancé was graduated from Northwestern university and its law school. The wedding will take place in September.

From Mrs. William B. MacColl of North Farm, Bristol, R. I., comes the announcement of the engagement of her daughter, Jean, to Lt. James Lewis Alder of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Alder of Wilmette. Miss MacColl attended Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield, Mass., and Miss Spence's school in New York. Her fiancé, a graduate of the Choate school, received his degree from Dartmouth college in 1933.

Also from the east comes news of a marriage of interest here. It is contained in the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lawrence Dugan of Elmira, N. Y., have made of the marriage May 2 of their daughter, Betty Jean, to Lt. John William Brittingham of the naval reserve of Chicago, son of Mrs. W. O. Chapman of Washington, D. C. The ceremony took place in Harvard Memorial chapel, Cambridge, Mass., with Chaplain R. E. Tupper of the navy officiating. Lt. Brittingham and his bride are at home in Ithaca, N. Y., where he is stationed as an instructor in the naval training school of Cornell university. Lt. Brittingham was graduated from Princeton in 1931, and his bride attended Ithaca college. They will come to Chicago after the war.

Other Wedding News

Robert Leslie Craig of the army medical corps are married June 16 in the garden of the Akron, O., home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Knight of Akron and Chicago. Also going to Akron for the wedding will be Miss Ford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Ford of Winnetka, and her younger sister, Edrita.

Pvt. Craig, who is being graduated from the medical school of Temple university in Philadelphia, will take his bride to Honolulu, where his parents live and where he will intern in a hospital.

When Miss Marie Donnelly returns from her classes at Webster college this week-end, she will begin plans for her marriage June 16 to Vincent J. Cushing, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cushing of Lake Shore. dr. The ceremony will take place in St. Mary's church, Evanston, with a reception following in the Evanston home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Donnelly.

Miss Peggy Donnelly will be her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Helen; Miss Kay Wheeler of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Miss Joan Harrigan will be bridesmaids. Jeanne Cushing, daughter of the bridegroom's brother, Jerome Cushing, will be flower girl, and her father will serve as best man. Mr. Cushang and his bride will live in South Bend, Ind., where he will begin work on his master's degree at the University of Notre Dame in July.

In a ceremony June 14 in St. Athanasius church, Evanston, Miss Grace Littig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ross Littig of Evanston, will become the bride of Lt. James T. Hanley Jr. of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hanley of Wilmette. Miss Jean Littig, who will be graduated Tuesday from Barat college, at which the bride is a student, will be her sister's maid of honor. Miss Margaret Lyman, the bride's Barat roommate, will be bridesmaid, and Nancy Hanley, Lt. Hanley's young sister, will be the flower girl.

Mr. Hanley will serve as his son's best man. Ushers will be Lt. Hanley's brother-in-law, Lt. Richard W. Dillon, and his uncle, Walter D. Kelly. Miss Littig's brother, Lt. [j. g.] Ross Littig of the navy, will just miss the ceremony, for he is on his way home from the Mediterranean. Lt. and Mrs. Dillon will be here from his army post in Cincinnati, O.

Birth News

Mrs. Edward Anderson Wheeler, the former Barbara Wakeley, and her infant daughter, Beth, returned to the Wheelers' Wilmette home yesterday from Evanston hospital, where the baby was born May 22. THE QUESTION

What is your opinion of yourself?

WHERE ASKED

Hotel Sherman.

THE ANSWERS

Mrs. Carl Cherin, secretary, Pittsburgh, Pa.—I know that I'm not particularly beautiful and that an electric personality can take the place of simply beauty alone. I'm fairly easy to get along with and make friends easily. But I know I have a stubborn streak that is sometimes trying to those who are close to me.

Lt. [j.g.] H. F. Helgesen, Port Angeles, Wash.—My disposition, I would say, is fair; ability is fair, and my personality is good—I wouldn't rate it any higher. I'm ambitious. Judging from my experiences I'm easy to get along with. Sometimes I over-rate myself and sometimes I under-rate myself on my abilities.

Lt. Rolland P. Crane, Salt Lake City, Utah—I would say this—that I'm not altogether dissatisfied with myself, but I realize I have faults as does everyone else. I have a pessimistic attitude toward most things with the idea that if something turns out better than I have planned, it's a pleasant surprise.

James F. Conroy, production engineer, Springfield, O.—I'm just a young American trying to get along in this world. I consider myself easy to get along with. I don't like to argue and don't believe in these petty quarrels between people. I mind my own business and believe in that old adage—"Live and let live."

Mrs. Ernest Wilewski, dressmaker, 2069 Bingham st.—Sometimes I'm moody. I get disgusted because I'm not satisfied with life. By this time I should be old enough to know when I'm happy and when I'm not. If people try to get along with me I will coöperate and try to get along with them.

Mary Forgacz, dressmaker, 3104 N. Central Park av.—I'm always happy and always smiling—because I'm still single, I guess. I like to have fun and lots of good times. I just dread being gloomy. I'm easy to talk to and easy to know—and, I think, easy on the eyes. I'm a good dancer and have a nice disposition.

De La Salle Mothers

Mrs. Charles Trauscht will be installed as president of the Mothers' club of De La Salle High school, 3455 S. Wabash av., at a 2 p. m. meeting next Thursday in the school library.

The Slim Skirt Is Back in Paris' Fashion Parade

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, June 1.—For the first time since the war, slim skirts again are high fashion in Paris. Madeleine Vramant has concentrated on unconventional, swift, and striking details for her new summer ensembles which are further distinguished by starkly tailored, straight silhouettes.

"Maison Lafitte" is the name of a fitted, white silk suit with finger tip length jacket, lapels reaching to the waist, and a plain skirt. An unusual feature is the elegant Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry fastened to flapover pockets. There are earrings to match tiny diamond, ruby, and emerald flowers set on a burnished gold frame.

A striped seersucker outfit named "Lido" has a low flaring dirndl fastened with copper coins. White bras, gored shorts of wool, and a slender fitted coat in aqua complete the tailored ensemble.

White Venetian lace appears unexpectedly around the armholes of "Ambiance," a two piece checked dress of sheer wool with a beautifully fitted straight skirt.

"Premiere Etoile" is a tight, white satin dress with cuffed decolletage, long ripple waist, and slit skirt, revealing a graceful panel of turquoise satin.

Balenciaga is showing radiant hostess pajamas of faille, taffeta, jersey, and chiffon in her swanky new salon. "Venus" is a model made of white faille with a turnover collar, fitted waist, and long sleeves. The loose trousers are fastened with twinkling rhinestone buttons. An enormous removable skirt of strawberry red taffeta is attached with a large bow in front. The loose ends fall to the floor.

Even more sophisticated are the hostess pajamas called "Helen of Troy." The black satin pants are topped with a tunic-length, amber yellow jacket of silk crepe buttoned to the waist. The shawl collar and the wide fitted cuffs are embroidered in matching amber. Glimmering spangles on white chiffon form the loose flowing trousers of "Aphrodite," a one piece garment with big balloon sleeves and a tiny waist fashioned of diagonal tucking.

Fashion flashes: Mme. Suzy has designed a petunia blue pin cushion toque slashed with variegated tails of straw attached to foot long pins. . . . Hermes has created a navy blue and white linen dress parade ensemble tailored in the back like a man's full dress suit. . . . Mercier Freres displays long, flat white furniture, including desks, dining and bedroom sets, contrasting with fresh chintz upholstery.

There's Pretty Lingerie in the Tiny Sizes, Too

BY REA SEEGER

The "junior figure sizes" are no longer difficult to find. First the designers of coats, suits, and dresses took time out to make high fashions for these rather neglected small size shoppers, presenting clothes each season that were cut, fitted, and seamed for petite figures, clothes with all the snap and dramatic details found in the larger or average sizes. Not to be caught napping, one of the country's famous lingerie makers got busy and has turned out some of the most beguiling pieces of summer and year round nightgowns, slips, and panties ever evolved for these small, but knowing, shoppers.

The cool white jersey nightgowns come in flesh and white. They are made with very brief puffed sleeves and square cut neckline, and around that neckline is a two inch deep band motif of smocking in contrasting colors—pink on white, blue on pink, and so on. Then there are gowns of pastel colored jersey with confetti printed dots in multicolors, also demure little numbers with evenly spaced dots in cool green, pink, or blue peppered over snowy white. Then check the summer sleepers, those very abbreviated models of flared shorts with a narrow tie-bra, designed for comfort on sultry nights. These come in cool white with either pastel stripes or dots.

The short panties are of white, with a couple of hearts embroidered in scarlet at the left side near the hem. A slip of white jersey has a hearts and flower band around the top, and there's a long nightgown to match. Every piece in this brand new collection is made of cool smooth jersey. Wash them, dry them, and wear them immediately, for an iron is not needed. The modest price tags help justify all the excitement of this lingerie for junior figure size.

Thru the Looking Glass

The foundation problem for the oily skinned woman isn't simple. Even more than the dry skinned girl she needs a base that will help her keep makeup intact, especially in warm weather, but she can't use anything oily because her skin has more natural oil than it can comfortably and attractively handle.

There is a brand new preparation that will interest her. It's a liquid, and one that must be shaken thoroly before it is applied with quick upward strokes of the fingers. It dries quickly, coating the skin lightly, almost invisibly, with a dull finish film towhich makeup will adhere for hours on end. The film also seems to resist the tendency of oil to ooze thru.

This was created especially for oily skin and for the adolescent skin subject to minor blemishes and oily patches. Because it is such a light weight dressing, and so smooth textured, it doesn't give the skin a heavy, over-made up look. It simply provides an oil free, matilke base to which powder and rouge will adhere sturdily and smoothly.

A fashion house created this foundation, and the two shades are just exactly right. There is a muted rose to give sallow skin a faint, healthy glow and, for those who like the illusion of bronze, a nice golden sun tan shade that completely misses that muddy, dingy tone that some tan bases have.

This should be a help to the woman who fears the wilting effect of summer sun on her too-oily complexion. It's a flattering base and a lasting one.

RWLB Member to Speak at Sheil School Monday

Arthur Carstens, panel member of the regional war labor board, will speak on "Unions and Taxation" under auspices of the Catholic Labor alliance at 7:30 p. m. Monday at the Sheil School of Social Studies, 31 E. Congress st.

Stage Note

The Shubert will be the new name of the Majestic theater when the Shuberts reopen its doors after 11 years of darkness. The new management hopes to have the big house ready late in August, but makes no reckless promises about the opening date or attraction.

The Children Must Change as They Grow

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Wouldn't you be surprised, and shocked, if your baby, your little boy, or your still older child didn't change, remained the same from week to week, even from year to year?

You would suspect, and then know, that something was wrong. Because down underneath you must know that change is a symptom of growth, that growth is accompanied by change. Yet superficially many parents aren't aware of the fact. For instance, in my mail I often find these plaints:

"My baby used to be content to be by himself, but now he seems to want to be with me a lot. He tags around and won't play with his toys as he used to."

And: "My little boy used to be so easy to handle; I never had any difficulty with him. Now he is insistent, almost stubborn, and we have had set-tos. Yet this isn't due to any change in my management."

And: "My little girl usually plays all day in our back yard. But recently she's started to run away and disobey. She goes down to the corner where the street car is, or to a neighbor's, and I can't seem to make her stay in the yard. Why is she disobedient so suddenly?"

Well, children won't "stay put." We sometimes forget that they are growing and, in the early years, growing fast—physically and mentally. What is sufficient for a baby at one stage will be insufficient at the next stage. A baby content at 3 to play quietly, at 4 will demand more adventurousness. A baby at one age may be sufficient unto himself, at the next he may crave the society of his mother. Often it only is the insistence of a child's growing demands which makes a mother realize the fact that he is growing, and makes her change in her management of him, for in that she must be flexible.

Children just won't stay Peter Pans. They have an irresistible habit of growing and changing in spite of the fact that we long for them not to, like the little girl in the poem my small sister used to recite:

"How pleasant life would be, oh dear,
If daffodils bloomed all the year—
And willow catkins stayed just so.
And own gray kittens didn't grow."

World Youth Council Delegates Will Speak at Rally Here Today

On the eve of their departure from Chicago, the World Youth council delegates who have been visiting here since Tuesday will address a rally of young persons, youth leaders, workers in youth serving agencies, and others at 8 o'clock tonight in the Skyline Athletic club, 188 W. Randolph st. The group is touring the United States to acquaint young persons with youth activities in other countries and to arouse interest in a World Youth conference next August in London. The speakers will be Svend-Aage Beyer Pedersen, international relations officer for the world council and chairman of the Danish Youth council; Lt. Zvonomir Jurisic of Yugoslavia; Miss Yang Kang, Chinese war correspondent; Miss Marie Michal of Czechoslovakia, and Ray Peng, Columbia university student. The program also will include a group of folk songs by Helen Golden, formerly of the Chicago Civic opera.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Uncertain Crop

O shades of Luther Burbank
And those with fingers "green,"
Last week some seeds I planted
Outside my window screen,
And now green shoots I'm reaping?
[But are they flower or bean?]

CULLIE.

Attention: Railroad WCGS

Now I don't care anything about it, so that's the reason I'm not going to say anything about it, but my advice to the girl who is having trouble about cabooses is to stay out of 'em.

There are these things called railroading and railroaded—the latter has to do with calabooses and not cabooses.

BILL GLOER.

They Say It with Flowers

I'd like to be added to the list of those who sing praises about the good deeds of their bosses. The girls at our office receive an orchid corsage on the occasion of each anniversary with the company. I'm wondering whether there is another company in Chicago which follows this practice—an added incentive to "keep up the good work."

Recipe for an Insurance Policy

Ingredients

7 to 11 Copies	1 Bottle of glue
2 to 5 Indorsements	1 Envelope
1 to 5 Rubber stamps	1 Inclosure letter
Patience	Taxes

Take several copies, add indorsements, and beat well. Sprinkle generously with rubber stamps. Season with taxes to taste. Sweeten with patience. Blend mixture with one bottle of glue. Pour into well licked, addressed envelope. Add an inclosure letter for extra flavor. Guaranteed to keep things cookin' all day.

Inter-Office Query

Are there white collar girls in Chicago using speed writing instead of shorthand? Could we hear from them regarding its suitability for different kinds of work.

Honorable Mention

Mary L. Dore has retired after 43 years as chief telephone operator of the Rock Island Lines. Congratulations and American Beauty roses were presented to her along with good wishes for a "happy retirement." She began as one of two operators at a manual board in 1902. When she retired, her 10 by 12 "telephone room" in the La Salle st. station controled 10,000 miles of company long distance wires in addition to the Bell Telephone system.

Louise Mczka was awarded a cute badge of merit the other day by a regular customer of Thompson's restaurant, where she is assistant counter girl. An "angel's medal," it is in recognition of her fine behavior toward a particularly argumentative patron; inscribed "Pour le Merite," it carries this citation: "This is to certify that Mrs. Maczka, while under intensive enemy barrage, did carry on with her objective far beyond the call of duty."

Jennie Richio, an Oak Manufacturing company secretary, knows that an accordion means something beside plaits. She does an excellent job by using her accordion as a morale builder to accompany her nice voice at company parties.

Woman's Club Talk

Dr. Huberta Frets Randall will discuss the "Democratic Future of the Dutch East Indies" before the Chicago Woman's club at 11 a. m. Wednesday in Curtiss hall of the Fine Arts building.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

By Christopher Hale

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Frances Stephens)

INSTALMENT XXXVI.

SYBRAND STUNNED

One of the troopers asked, "You mean to say there's a guy asleep in there?" Kim said, "Yes. Guess Eddie was right when he said he was a sound sleeper."

"You're telling me, brother?"

"No use bothering him, I suppose," Kim went on. "It's not likely Gerrit's in there."

The trooper expressed his contempt for this lay opinion by flattening a large thumb on the front doorbell. After a moment he added the banging of his left fist on the door. The other trooper asked to have Paradine's window pointed out to him. Kim went along and helped toss gravel against it. At last a light showed and Eddie thrust head and shoulders out to yawn:

"Whass mar down there?"

Eventually he unlocked the front door. He helped the troopers and Kim go thru his dusty, orderly house.

Nothing interesting was found, unless Eddie's utter indifference could come under that heading. After staring out of the nearest window he announced he was going back to bed.

"But it's a sight!" Kim cried. "And they're afraid poor old Gerrit's in it."

"Gee, I'm sorry. That's too bad. Tell the Jennesmas I'm sorry, will you, Kim? And just pull the door hard when you go out, will you please?"

As they left the house the biggest, huskiest trooper snorted.

"He sings, don't he? I ain't surprised."

Miss Warburton found Sybrand Jennesma standing with his wife in the shadow of a tree, some distance from the fire.

Sybrand stood woodenly with eyes fixed on the fire. Now and then he lifted one of his bandaged hands and held it over his face for a moment.

"Maybe he should see a doctor," some one whispered.

Mrs. Jennesma shook her head. "Leave him alone."

Miss Warburton said very quietly, "I'll be over here near the wall, Mrs. Jennesma, if you want me for anything," and withdrew. The senator drew her down to a seat on the wall beside him.

She said, unsteadily, "The awful part is that you can't do anything. I'm afraid this will just finish Sybrand. He doesn't see or hear anything. When he actually realizes what has happened, it may knock him out."

"Poor devil!"

She whispered, "I thought I saw Jerrold Corbin in the crowd. You know, Mrs. Paradine's first husband?"

"That so? How do you suppose he heard about it?"

"I can't imagine. And I rather thought he was taking care not to be recognized. But I may have been mistaken."

The fire continued to burn steadily in spite of all efforts to control it. A large pump was obtained and rigged up to use water from the river in addition to that from the inadequate well. But the river cliff was so high it cut down the flow to a small stream by the time it reached the flames.

Dawn came up behind the distant purple hills in the east. Many of the sightseers had to go home. A number of the troopers were recalled to their normal tasks.

Sybrand—gray, exhausted, silent in the pale dawn—refused to move from his position.

"Come on, let's go in, Sy." Mrs. Jennesma plucked at his sleeve. "You'll feel better if you have a little food."

He gave a retching sort of shudder, flung her one of his old glances, and moved away from her.

Mrs. Jennesma drew her purple robe about her. In the dawn light it made her look like old tallow.

"I feel just as bad as you do, Sy. But what good will it do poor, dear Gerrit for us to stand here, aching all over, and my neuritis just throbbing like a drum and . . ."

"Go on in. Let me alone," he snarled.

North, sitting on the brick wall 20 feet away, gave Miss Warburton a quick, smug glance. Mrs. Jennesma's reform was over.

Kim came from the house with a folding canvas chair and a thermos bottle. He opened the chair near Sybrand and set it up. He steadied the thermos bottle in the grass beside it.

Mr. Jennesma sat down with never a glance at Kim. As if he were in a dream and was not surprised to have chairs and coffee materialize by themselves.

But Mrs. Jennesma watched these ministrations sourly and gave a little moan.

Kim came over to her at once. His pleasant face, behind his glasses, was stiff with the effort of controlling great fatigue. The white sweat shirt he wore was scorched, torn, and dirty. But there was something in the way he smiled and offered Mrs. Jennesma his arm that made North look thoughtful.

"The cook has prepared breakfast for every one," Kim said over his shoulder. "Might as well eat, if you can. We're not thru this, by a long way."

"You're right, Mr. Kimball," Mrs. Jennesma said with a little sob of weariness. "Thanks. I will let you help me. I'm just about crazy, with my poor legs."

She hung heavily on Kim's young strength. Miss Warburton knew he had small patience with Mrs. Jennesma's complaints, ordinarily.

"Who are that young man's people?" asked Sen. North. "Don't tell me they got him off the stockpile. Real stuff in that lad."

"I don't know. He doesn't talk much about himself. I think he's from the east." Miss Warburton was surprised to realize how little she really knew about Kim.

"Hmmm. Considerable territory. He reminds me of some one. Some one I know well." North helped her to her feet. "Come, my dear, a little food will do us both good."

As they went into the hall Kim was coming out of the dining room. He beckoned to them and tiptoed to the library door, where he stabbed a finger into the gloom. The blinds were down. On the couch, face down, covered by an afghan, lay Winnie in the sodden sleep of absolute exhaustion.

The cheek that was visible was very pink, and smooth, and dirty. The bright, tousled curls were a trifle damp. Under the long lashes of her right eye was a violet smudge. There was something so childish and endearing about her, Miss Warburton thought. She glanced at Kim.

No. It wasn't. For just one unwary second Kim let his control slip. But it was enough. He met Miss Warburton's eye defiantly for a flash. So what! North missed nothing. No one spoke. They tiptoed away.

There simply isn't enough corn sirup to fill out our skimpy sugar rations: honey adds a flavor of its own to foods it sweetens, and therefore isn't a perfect sugar substitute; molasses and maple sirup contribute their own flavors, too, and maple sirup, the its delectable flavor is rarely objectionable, is hard to find and expensive when you do find it. The only way out of the dilemma is to budget our sugar rations as we budget red points, if we're wise.

A few suggestions: Less sugar for coffee all around; more raw, unsweetened fruits and fewer pies, cakes and cookies for dessert; sugarless breakfast grapefruit and cereals. It's the truth, but not much comfort, that our dietary standards are better upheld when sugar is restricted. The same can't be said for a diet skimpy on meat and butter.

"Fishburgers" are said to be going over in New York. Parboiled, mashed halibut and sea trout or weakfish are combined in equal parts, seasoned with onion, parsley and worcestershire sauce, shaped into patties, dipped in egg and crackermeal, and deep fat fried until brown. They're then served piping hot in buns, with pickle relish or catsup if you like. Sounds good, but I don't suppose they'll ever rival the genuine hamburger, and may it soon return!

Young green onions are a delicacy for the table, but some of us restrict their use in that form out of consideration for our associates. Fortunately, green onions are almost as good cooked as raw. Trimmed and braised, they're delicious. They're good creamed, too, after parboiling, and they taste wonderful combined with new peas, carrots or asparagus. Leave the onions whole with most of their green tops, for most dishes. If you make soup of them, slice them, but include most of the tops.

Cream of Green Onion Soup.
[Serves four]

2 tablespoons fat
2 cups thinly sliced green onions
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups boiling water
1 tall can [1½ cups] evaporated milk
Grated cheese

Melt fat in soup pan. Add onions and salt. Cover and cook gently until onions are tender, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Sprinkle with flour and blend. Add water and cook until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Add milk and reheat just before serving. Sprinkle each serving with grated cheese.

Bolero and Frock

Whether you're going to battle your way onto a train for a trip to a summer resort, or do the wiser thing and stay in town, you'll like this frock. Its simple lines are cool, smart, and tailored. Matching or contrasting stitching outlines the V neckline, kimono shoulders, and bolero of this model. Your husband's tie or some material purchased especially for this ensemble will wrap around the slim waistline. Style No. 3770 is designed for sizes 12 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch fabric for dress, ¾ yard of 35 inch contrasting; bolero, 1¾ yards of 35 inch fabric.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"Can the amount of shortening in a recipe be cut down if sour cream is used?"

Only if the cream has a high fat content. War time light cream is not rich enough, nor is commercially soured cream. In any event, decrease the required shortening by not more than one-third.

"Can saccharin be used in canning fruit?"

"In hard-cooking eggs a green line forms between the yolk and white. How can this be prevented?"

Simmer, do not boil, in hot water for 15 minutes. Then plunge eggs into cold water to prevent formation of this line, which is ferrous sulphide.

Five sugar stamps, good for 5 pounds each, were validated during 1944, and 25 pounds of canning sugar were available on request. This made a total of 50 pounds of sugar per person for all purposes during last year.

Allen-Benny Film Strictly on Zany Side

By Mae Tinée

Strictly on the zany side, this movie gives the good old Bronx cheer to a number of things that have been deserving it for a long time. The movies come in for their share of it, and Mr. Allen starts right out with a good whack at the endless numbers of credits you have to read before the film can begin. You must know who did everything in the movie, from the make-up to the pedicures, even tho you don't particularly care. He also does a nice parody on the courteous but firm ushers who send you wearily from one aisle to another until, finally, completely out of breath, you crawl numbly into a seat in the last row of the highest balcony, wondering why you do it.

As Floogie, a flea trainer, Allen has been having a feud with a fumigator Robert Benchley], and their children have been having what might be called a love affair. No wedding is in sight because Benchley's son needs financial backing for a mousetrap he has invented—said mousetrap, by the way, would put Rube Goldberg to shame. As you might expect, if Allen's around, Jack Benny can't be far away, and he and Mrs. Nussbaum are both present and accounted for. Rudy Vallee, Victor Moore, and Don Ameche also are on hand to help Allen form a quartet, and a fine time is had by all.

Jerry Colonna is in his glory as a crazy psychiatrist, and William Bendix does a choice bit as a gangster who really loves the bolds and trees but was forced into his lucrative profession by his mother, Machine Gun Molly.

All these characters are encountered because Floogie inherits 12 million dollars, but it's one of those on again, off again propositions.

There's a lot of fun to be had in this movie, in fact there is almost an embarrassment of riches. If you like your comedy in large, long doses, head for the Oriental—you're sure to find a hilarious audience there.

Slapstick Comedy

"SEE MY LAWYER"

A more physical and less cerebral form of humor is to be found in "See My Lawyer," which actually boils down to a sort of vaudeville show with Olsen and Johnson thrown in. There are acrobats, jugglers, singers, and eccentric dancers, with the two comedians up to their usual rough and tumble antics. In some spots it's funny in a boisterous fashion, but they don't occur too often. Unless you love your slapstick, you needn't go out of your way to see this.

Aid's Party for Blind to Be Held Tomorrow

The Chicago Woman's Aid will hold its annual party for the blind of Chicago from 3 until 7 p. m. tomorrow in the club rooms at 185 N. Wabash av. Community singing, social dancing, a buffet supper, and other entertainment have been included on the festive program, which this year has been changed from the usual weekday picnic to accommodate the many sightless persons now employed in war industry. Blind persons wishing transportation are invited to call Mrs. Ernest A. Feldmann of 181 E. Lake Shore dr., general chairman for the party, either at her home or at the club office.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Liver Sausage with Eggs
[Serves six]

3 tablespoons margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 hard cooked eggs
½ pound liver sausage
1 teaspoon lemon juice
6 slices bread

Melt margarine and stir in flour; gradually stir in milk, and stir until mixture boils and thickens, then cook about 3 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Add seasonings and sliced eggs. Combine liver sausage and lemon juice. Toast bread on one side; spread liver sausage on other side and place under broiler until hot and browned. Pour eggs over sausage-toast.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 1—Bing Crosby's boss, Buddy de Sylva, agrees with Yank's award to Bing. He declares Bing's the finest actor on the screen. Says Buddy, "Look what he's done. Go back over his record. He was a crooner. He couldn't act a bit. In 'Going My Way' his scenes with Barry Fitzgerald were out of this world. He was listening every second to Barry. On the screen, as on the stage, it's the man who can listen to the other fellow, instead of waiting for his own cue, who cops the scenes. George M. Cohan did it in the theater. Who've we ever had who could do what Cohan did? You judge a man by his achievement—not by a publicity buildup or hearsay. Cohan wrote plays, music, acted, directed, produced, starred, and put his plays on in the theater he built himself. Has anybody ever matched that in our times?" The answer was "No." . . . Louis B. Mayer's already planning quite a reception for "Pistol Packin' Patton and Jimmy Doolittle. . . . You know, if we give them the real Hollywood 22 gun salute, they may wish they'd stayed in battle. . . . Nora Eddington Flynn has not moved up to Errol Flynn's hilltop. She's still living with her baby in her father's home. Nora tells me she expects to go on living that way. She doesn't understand why folks here keep moving her into Flynn's home, when Flynn hasn't. But she's happy living this way.

Only Beginning for Angela

News that Angela Lansbury is being teamed with Bill Powell doesn't surprise me. I wrote that she was in for the biggest buildup Metro could give her. They think they've got an English Jean Harlow on their hands, and I'm inclined to agree with them. . . . Zachary Scott already is set to play opposite Ros Russell in "Sister Kenny." I don't wonder she chose him after seeing him in "The Southerner." . . . Merle Oberon's a mighty sick girl. She has sinus trouble. She preferred remaining home to going to a hospital, but she's not allowed to talk to anybody. . . . Lis Whitney is gathering pals together to give a big shindig at her ranch for returned soldiers. . . . Am I tickled! Now even the fish can read me. The South Coast News at Laguna Beach has become one of my subscribers, and glory be! They take me without a cut. . . . Mabel and Clifton Webb have arrived but can't get into their Bel Air home until June 15.

A Great Opportunity

We'll see if our big boys in the studios can take it. They're getting overseas shots like mad. Two top men from each studio have been invited by the government to go over. Eddie Mannix goes for Louis B. Mayer. Idea is for them to be shown the horrors of Nazism, Fascism, concentration camps, torture chambers, so that from now on they can keep this in mind when they're planning pictures. Those hordes of slaves from many countries must be reëducated. Pictures will teach them the meaning of freedom. . . . Sherman Billingsley arrives on June 11, but won't be able to stay for the two big parties Buddy de Sylva has arranged on the "Stork Club" set. Sherman recently bought a wayside inn in Connecticut, where the weary traveler can spend a night or week-end. First person to make a reservation there was Ethel Merman.

Never a Dull Moment

Fibber McGee and Molly write, "What a week. Your hat came off to us Monday, our son-in-law came home unexpectedly from the South Pacific Wednesday, and daughter Katherine had a baby Friday, born on their first wedding anniversary. Now at rehearsals the cast take us by the arm and lead us to arm chairs while calling us 'Grandpappa' and 'Grandmama'." . . . In Mocambo a handsome man in navy uniform said, "Miss Hopper, there's a lady here who was a prisoner at Santo Tomas and who's awfully anxious to speak to you." He brought her over to the table. Her name is Cappie Holt. She was a prisoner there for years. The first American voice she heard while there was Bing Crosby singing "Don't Fence Me In" and the next voice was mine. Said she, "I always wanted to see if your face matched your voice." . . . Harriet Parsons is doing O. K. She's preparing script on George M. Cohan's "Pigeons and People" with Cary Grant in mind for the star part. Rex Ferris of Frederics' has already sent Miss Denise Loder, Hedy's baby, a bonnet specially designed for her. And Denise's pappy has opened an account for her. . . . Harry Davenport, at 80, is celebrating 50 years as an actor and writing his autobiography titled "I Remember." . . . Claire Foley, aged 11, who's made a career in the Janie pictures [She was in stage play, "First Picture," now in "Janie Gets Married"] asked a man on the set if he'd lost $10.00. "No," said he. "Why?" "It's just my way of finding out if you're honest. I've asked the question all day and you're the second man to say 'No'."

the Hinsdale Antique Mart next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The party will be given by the James A. Hannahs, the Paul Butlers, and the Paul Robinsons at the stables of the Hannahs' Sedgley farm and will provide a refreshing interlude for the busy persons who will spend the day setting up their exhibits in the Hinsdale Community house.

Also invited to the breakfast are the women from Chicago and the suburbs who are lending exhibits for the show. Among them are Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., Mrs. George Willis, and Mrs. Richard D. Nugent of Chicago, whose exhibit, "After the Ball Was Over," includes 18th century ladies' dancing slippers, a gold headed walking stick, and an antique gold handkerchief ring with an old lace hanky, all of which will be displayed on an antique English table; Mrs. Edward Beninghoven of Evanston; Mrs. William Pope and Mrs. Harold Lawn of Kenilworth; Mrs. George D. Cain Jr., Mrs. Charles F. Elmes, and Mrs. James Sheldon of Winnetka; Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, Mrs. Willis Littell, and Mrs. Colburnt Uhlemann of Barrington; Mrs. Louis F. Swift of Wheaton; Mrs. Stevens H. Hammond of Aurora, and Mrs. Burr Robbins, Mrs. E. Payson Smith, and Mrs. L. Hyland Erickson of Delavan Lake, Wis. The public will vote for the loan exhibit it likes best, and prizes will be awarded the winners.

The Knollwood club will mark its formal opening of the season with a dinner-dance tonight on the outdoor dance floor. D. Sidway McKay heads the entertainment committee in charge of the party.

Pre-school and kindergarten pupils at the Bateman school will receive their certificates of promotion at 2 p. m. today at the school's May day fiesta, which was postponed until this month because of bad weather.

The Woman's auxiliary of Alexian Brothers' hospital will observe the institution's hospital day with a reception, tea, and musical from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 6 to 7 p. m. tomorrow in the hospital at 1200 Belden av.

Q. "I have dated often, taken girls to parties and movies, but I don't know how to dance. All my friends are going to the senior prom, and I would like to go myself, but would it be fair to ask a girl to go just to sit on the sidelines?"

A. You'll at least be willing to accompany her in the grand march, won't you? And you'll be willing to send her a corsage, pick her up at her home, take her out for a sandwich afterward, and perhaps try to struggle thru at least one dance during the evening, won't you? That's enough fun for any girl. Try to pick a gal who likes you more than somewhat; just to have you 'round to see how pretty she looks in her new formal will be enough for her.

Q. "For about a year and a half I dated one certain boy. He is overseas with the army now. I like to carry a small notebook with me and write parts of letters in it during the lunch hour or whenever I have a free moment. These scrawlings are just pencil writen notes, and I have heard that it is very poor taste to send such informal letters. . . ."

A. Your friend overseas will probably be delighted to see that you think of him morning, night, and between sandwiches and a malt. Your informal notes will seem almost like a face-to-face conversation to him. But be sure to address the envelope in pen and ink; after all, you don't know the postman as well as you know your boy friend.

Q. "Last fall I dated a cute sophomore girl from my school and then went steady with her for two months. During that time I asked her to wear my class ring and she accepted. We broke up a few weeks after that, and at the time I was afraid to ask for the ring back. But now I discover that she also has two other fellows' rings, and I might as well have mine back. . . ."

A. Next time you see the gal, ask her frankly to give you your ring back. If you don't see her any more, drop her a note and ask her to mail it. And if she doesn't mail it, just call her on the phone to remind her that you would like it back. She'll probably be willing to return it at once—the gal only has 10 fingers, you know.

Household Forum

Mrs. Fred G., Chicago—I find it advisable to reinforce buttons on my children's heavy garments as well as on their play clothes. I do this by using a small piece of material, cut circle shape, and sewing it on the wrong side of the garment.

Mrs. Elmer G., Racine, Wis.—I find it helpful to keep my ironing board and iron ready for use as I sew. As soon as a seam is finished, press it. The final pressing is easier this way, and the results have a more tailored look.

Mrs. Ed W., Battle Creek, Mich.—To wash all cloths used for waxing or oiling furniture is good insurance against odors—and fire hazards.

Kitty H., Superior, Wis.—If you use citronella in summer to help keep mosquitoes away and dislike its odor, mix it with spirits of camphor or oil of pennyroyal in equal proportions.

Philadelphia's First Music Festival Is Greeted by Chicago

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1 [Special]—Chicago greeted 70,000 spectators at the first Philadelphia Inquirer music festival held tonight in the Municipal stadium here. The greetings were extended by Philip Maxwell, director of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Chicagoland music festival. He also conducted a match lighting ceremony, similar to the one he directs each summer in Soldiers' field in Chicago. James Cagney, film star, was master of ceremonies. Among the stars appearing was James Melton, Metropolitan Opera tenor, and Oscar Levant, pianist. Eugene Ormandy conducted the Philadelphia orchestra in several numbers and the United States marine band paraded across a huge arena.

Lieder Recital Brief; Singer's Style Is Sincere

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Whatever else the lieder recital of Mady Metzger-Ziegler in Kimball hall last night may or may not have been, it achieved a record for brevity. Four groups of songs by Brahms, Schubert, Schumann, Welf, and Strauss were finished and done with in less than an hour. Without exact tabulation to back up our suspicion, it also looked like a record breaking small attendance.

It is quite possible that Mme. Metzger-Ziegler was suffering from an indisposition, for the lower part of her voice was so shrouded in huskiness that it was all but inaudible the greater part of the time. But even making this allowance, it was apparent that the general shortcomings of her vocal equipment could be charged to the natural attrition of time. One suspects that it was once a fresh and attractive voice.

To the singer's credit, however, is the simplicity and sincerity of her style. She eschews the exaggeration to which this type of music tempts so many musicians of less taste, and she makes the sense of the text clear without spitting it in your face. But her vocal incapacities handicap her too greatly to permit any effective projection of the eloquence she so plainly discerns in the music.

REPORT RIOTING PRISONERS SET BARRACKS AFIRE

Guard Slain at Army Post; No One Escapes

Indianapolis, Ind., June 1 [Special]—Army authorities disclosed today that a riot and fire at the disciplinary barracks at Fort Benjamin Harrison last night resulted in the fatal shooting of an army guard, the death of a city fireman, the wounding of three military prisoners, and injuries to six other persons.

Nine barracks were destroyed by a fire apparently set by several hundred rioting prisoners. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

"There are indications the riot was a planned affair," said Maj. Gen. James L. Collins. "Prompt and efficient action alone prevented a mass break."

No Prisoners Escape

Preliminary investigation showed none of the prisoners had escaped. Approximately 1,900 soldiers, about 17 per cent of them Negroes, were housed in the section in which the rioting occurred. The post has 2,773 United States army prisoners, many of them court-martialed overseas for serious offenses, including murder and rape.

[The Associated Press last night said that five prisoners who were missing for hours after the fire were back in custody tonight. It said the five were flushed from hiding places within the compound.]

Gen. Collins, commanding officer of the 5th service command, Fort Hayes, Columbus, O., was at Fort Harrison, 12 miles north of here, making an inspection trip at the time of the riot.

In a report to the war department, he expressed the belief the immediate cause of the riot was due to extra duty imposed on the prisoners yesterday for an infraction of rules.

Civilian Firemen Help

He said the rioting started about 9:30 p. m. when prisoners began throwing rocks at electric lights and at guards. Col. Peyton Winlock, commanding officer of the disciplinary barracks, was struck on the head by a rock thrown by one of the rioters but suffered no serious injury.

Four companies of Indianapolis firemen helped post firemen battle the flames for two hours. While fighting the flames, Everett Jackson, 49, an Indianapolis fireman, died of a heart attack.

The guard shot to death was Pvt. Elton Hendrix of Paducah, Ky. Gen. Collins said he believed the prisoners were not responsible for his death.

"We do not think the prisoners were armed," he said. "The guards fired at the feet of the prisoners who tried to get out of the inclosure. A ricocheting bullet probably struck the guard."

M.P.S RETAKE 2 WHO OVERCAME SHERIDAN GUARD

Two of three military prisoners who overpowered a guard and escaped from the Fort Sheridan guardhouse early Thursday were recaptured on the northwest side yesterday by military police.

A. P. Potens [top] and James A. Leo.

Arthur P. Potens, 38, of Akron, O., was found in a drug store at Central and Belmont avs. and directed the M.P.s to a tavern at Belmont av. and Pulaski rd., where he had left James A. Leo, 30, of 1305 N. Lockwood av. Leo attempted to flee and was captured a block away at Melrose st. and Pulaski rd. Potens said the third escaped prisoner, Leo O. Jordan, 33, was on his way to his home in Oakland, Cal.

Potens was serving a 20 year sentence for draft evasion, and Leo a 10 year sentence for desertion. Army officers were attempting to learn where Leo and Potens obtained the army uniforms they were wearing.

Thief Gets Year for Taking Three Musical Instruments

Peter C. Vermeulen, 29, was sentenced to a year on the Vandalia prison farm by Judge Harry H. Porter in Evanston Municipal court yesterday on a plea of guilty to the theft of an oboe, a saxophone, and a clarinet owned by Miss Jean Barker, of West Frankfort, Franklin county, a musical student at Northwestern university. She lives at 733 Foster av., Evanston.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

June 1, 1945

TESTS of the weed killing properties of the new chemical spray, 2-4D, were started this week on the lawns of the Wheaton farm where the farm gardener has set aside a turf area covering 3,000 square feet to try out lawn weed killers.

Lawn Sinox was sprayed over two-thirds of this test area last week and again yesterday. These two applications already have killed most of the thistles. In addition, the stems of chickweed appear to be dying and dandelion leaves are discoloring. The predominant blue grass has not been damaged.

8 Sprays to Be Made

Additional sprays of this chemical will be made once each week until there have been eight applications. It is hoped that the eight sprays will kill all weeds and leave the blue grass unharmed.

The 2-4D chemical, sold under the name of Weedone, is expected to give faster results than Sinox. Under ideal conditions, it is claimed that one application of 2-4D will kill all broad leaved lawn weeds without damaging blue grass. Weather conditions were not good when this spray was applied yesterday morning. The application was made between showers, with the temperature about 60. It is recommended that Weedone be applied when the lawn is dry and the temperature above 70. Two ounces of chemical is mixed with one gallon of water, and can be applied with any sprayer which will produce a fine mist spray.

A small section of turf containing bent grass also was sprayed with Weedone. Poor results are expected from this experiment, because 2-4D is not recommended for any type of bent grass.

Dilution an Advantage

If the Weedone will kill lawn weeds without damaging blue grass, it will have one major advantage over Sinox—convenience of application. Weedone can be diluted in small amounts of water, therefore requires no equipment except the inexpensive sprayers owned by most gardeners. One or two applications are supposed to kill the weeds. Eight applications are recommended for Sinox, and this chemical must be diluted in great amounts of water to avoid damaging the grass. Hand sprayers cannot be used. The special sprayer and hydromixer used for applying Sinox costs over $40.

Home owners should not assume that the farm gardener is recommending either of these sprays, because the tests have not been completed. Results will be announced in this column for the guidance of gardeners.

★The GARDEN★

EIGHTY FIVE tomato plants of four varieties were planted this week in the farm's large sample garden. These included 35 Crimson Cushion [commonly called beefsteak], for many years the farm's favorite variety for all-around use. Other varieties planted were 25 John Baer, 15 Rutgers, and 10 of the new Fordhook hybrids.

All of these plants were started in the farm greenhouse, and in the final stages of indoor growth were in individual five-inch and seven-inch pots. All are 12 to 20 inches tall and bearing flowers. The hybrid plants are not as tall as the other three varieties, but have larger main stems indicative of higher plant vitality.

All of the tomatoes in the large farm garden will be staked, and unless the weather is unfavorable should produce some vine ripened fruits during the first week of July. The stakes used in the farm gardens are ⅜ inch metal rods, six feet tall, used for reinforcing concrete. Each year the tomato plants in the gardens grow to the height of these rods.

STATE FINDS 450 OF 1,500 CANS OF EGGS DAMAGED

Examination by the state division of foods and dairies of a car of 1,500 cans of frozen whole eggs damaged in transit, placed under a seizure order last week-end, disclosed 450 of the cans had been damaged, Zean Gassman, director, said yesterday. Only one can was beyond redemption. The top layer of eggs where dirt had been ground in was scraped off the other under official supervision and the entire shipment released, he said. The eggs, weighing 450,000 pounds, were at the Monarch Refrigereating company, 40 E. Hubbard st. Fewer than 750 pounds of eggs were ruined.

ACCUSED OF RAPE IN MARRIAGE TO BOBBY SOXER, 13

Hubby, 19, Also Faces Perjury Charge

Mount Clemens, Mich., June 1 [Special]—In the midst of his honeymoon James Markle, 19, dapper war plant worker, was locked up in the Macomb county jail today on charges of perjury and rape in connection with his marriage Saturday to a 13 year old bobby soxer who was still in a grade school.

The surroundings were familiar to Markle, however, for a year ago he served 90 days there after attempting to defraud a gold star mother by telling her her son was alive and had instructed him to ask for money.

As he was taken from his cell for arraignment his child bride, Lola Brack, who had left her trailer home to become his wife, clung to his arm and pleaded that she be permitted to live with him.

"I love him! I love him!" she repeated over and over.

Had Courted Girl

Markle was arraigned before Justice Frank E. Jeannette and bound over to the Circuit court for trial. Bonds, which he was unable to furnish, were set at $5,000 on the rape charge and $1,500 for the perjury count.

Investigators said the young man had courted the girl for some time despite her mother's protests. He was employed at the Westinghouse navy arsenal in Warren township. She lived at Center Line, about a mile from his home, in a trailer with her mother, Mrs. Helen Underwood, a Detroit war plant worker, and her stepfather.

Mrs. Underwood said that in spite of her warnings to Markle to stay away from her daughter, a blonde, blue eyed girl who looks only her 13 years, the child was "madly infatuated" with him.

Lies About Girl's Age

Her hope was fulfilled last Saturday when the young couple appeared before Justice of the Peace Walter J. Crowley in Van Dyke and were married. In obtaining a marriage license from Macomb County Clerk Guy L. Frown, Markle had sworn that the girl was 18. This false statement provided the basis for the perjury charge against him.

After the wedding, the couple spent a three day honeymoon at a summer hotel on Lake St. Clair and then returned to Markle's home in Van Dyke, where the young husband was arrested last night on Mrs. Underwood's complaint.

The bride was placed in the custody of the Macomb Juvenile court and will be held temporarily in the Detroit Juvenile Detention home.

17,200 TAXPAYERS APPEAL AGAINST THEIR 1944 BILLS

About 17,200 complaints on real estate assessments for 1944 taxes had been filed late yesterday, the last day for acceptance, with the county board of tax appeals. Last year the number was about 65,000, and the board was not able to dispose of the late ones until November. Stanley Kosinski, secretary of the board, said the 1944 complaints probably would all be ruled on by July 15. The large filings last year were made because it was the first year of a quadrennial [general] assessment.

MANY WORKERS NEEDED TO FILL RED CROSS JOBS

The American Red Cross, which had 13,794 paid workers in the United States as of April 30, still is in need of many additional workers, the personnel department of the Chicago chapter said yesterday. Large quotas of workers are needed for paid positions in army and navy hospitals in the middle west. Women between 23 and 45 are needed to fill posts as hospital recreation workers and staff aids, while trained women of 25 to 45 years are needed as case workers for Red Cross social service staffs, it was said.

INCH LONG NAIL REMOVED FROM LUNG OF BOY, 7

Removal of a cobbler's nail, an inch long, from the lung of Clark Wallace, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Wallace, 3243 E. Murdock st., Wichita, Kas., was announced yesterday by the Children's Memorial hospital, where the operation took place.

The child inhaled the nail into his lung three weeks ago, the hospital added, and it was removed yesterday by a staff member of the hospital with a bronchoscope, a lengthy instrument equipped with a light and clasp. The boy was brought to the hospital Monday.

The hospital also said a doctor removed with forceps a closed safety pin which became lodged in the nose of Jeanette Thomas, 3, of Chicago, Negro, while she was playing.

At Mount Sinai hospital, Dr. Jacob Lifschutz removed a plastic bullet an inch and a quarter long from the right lung of Paul Scarpelli, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Scarpelli of 2819 Monroe st. Dr. Lifschutz said he was handicapped in removing the object because it was not opaque and undetectable by X-ray.

SHOE DEALER DRAWS SUSPENSION

David Cohen, owner of David's Boot Shop, 197 E. 154th st., Harvey, accused of an inventory shortage in his shoe ration account, was suspended yesterday from active dealing in rationed shoes for 21 days.

SOX DEFEAT SENATORS IN 11 INNINGS, 11-9

18 TEAMS SEEK CENTRAL TRACK HONORS TODAY

Great Lakes Is Host and Favorite

BY WILFRID SMITH

Athletes from eight states will compete today in the 20th Central Collegiate track meet at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. Eighteen colleges and universities, from Idaho to Ohio and Minnesota to Indiana, are entered in the contests which are held for a second consecutive year at the nation's largest naval training center.

Qualifying trials will start this morning at 10 o'clock and the first championship event, the one mile run, is scheduled at 2 p. m. Seven Western conference universities are included in the field which will perform before more than 10,000 navy men, the largest crowd of the track campaign in the midwest. Other team contenders, in addition to the Bluejackets, are Western Michigan, winner of the Michigan intercollegiate title; Notre Dame, which captured the Indiana state meet, and Drake university, winner of the Central Collegiate indoor championship.

One of Season's Best

The list of stars exceeds that which will enter the National Collegiate meet next Saturday in Milwaukee because the N. C. A. A. restricts its meets to undergraduates and only the National A. A. U. competition this summer can surpass the Central Collegiates since these contests have no limitations save the amateur rule. Great Lakes, with excellent facilities, is prepared to furnish the best track meet of the season since the Drake relay carnival last April.

Great Lakes, favorite to win the team title, will present Grover Klemmer, sprinter and a world record holder; Les Eisenhart, miler, and Tom Cara, quarter miler who went from Chicago's Schurz High school to the navy. Ohio State's Jack Dugger is the leading candidate for the discus championship which he won handily last week in the Western conference meet. George Fuch of Wisconsin, another Big Ten title holder, seeks the shotput championship. Fred Feller of Drake is the leader in the two mile run and Billy Moore, navy student at Western Michigan after duty in the South Pacific, leads the field in the pole vault. Moore is the national A. A. U. champion.

Three High Jump Stars Meet

For the first time since the Purdue indoor relays, three of the nation's best high jumpers will be in competition. The leader on season performance is Ken Wiesner of Marquette, National Collegiate champion last year and co-holder of National A. A. U. honors. His best mark this spring is 6 feet 7¼ inches. He will be pressed by Corp. Dwight Eddleman of Wright field, Dayton, O., former University of Illinois student, who defeated Wiesner in the Chicago relays.

Purdue's Big Ten high jump champion, Dick Kilpatrick, is in the group and he defeated Wiesner in the Drake relays. A fourth candidate for the Central Collegiate championship is John Heintzman of Great Lakes, one-time Peoria High school star.

Strong Field in Sprints

The Bluejackets will depend primarily on Cara, a 50 second man in the quarter mile; Klemmer, who will enter the sprints and the broad jump, and Eisenhart, who should win the mile and place in the half mile. Klemmer has eschewed the quarter mile, in which he shares the world record, because of a leg injury. At least he did not run this event when Great Lakes won a quadrangular meet at Michigan last month.

Klemmer's rivals in the sprints are Charles Beaudry of Marquette, who has run the 100 yards in 9.9 seconds this spring, and Ben Harvey and Boris Dimancheff of Purdue. Dimancheff was barely beaten last Saturday in the furlong by Marce Gonzalez of Illinois. Minnesota, which placed third in the Western conference games, will have Mark Brownstein, Bob Cranston, and Ray Tharp. The latter was second in the low hurdles and broad jump in the Big Ten. Brownstein was second in the Big Ten 100 yard dash and Cranston was second in the high hurdles.

For a Soldier

Underneath a galaxy of purple stars.
And I'm praying he'll come thru all the horrors of the fight
With his soul and body undefaced by scars.

For he seemed so young and gentle to be plunged in brutal war,
Where men kill with all the fury of the beast,
And to have the hands and heart of him incardine with gore
When the hurricane of battle is released.

May the good Lord watch above him till the guns of battle cease,
May the angels guide him softly on his way,
And when trumpets sound the dawning of universal peace,
May he come back sweet as when he went away. —T. E. B.

RAY WINS FROM LARRY LANE IN COLISEUM RING

Four Preliminaries End in K. O.s

BY FRANK MASTRO

Elmer Ray, Hastings, Fla., heavyweight, scored a one sided victory over Larry Lane of Trenton, N. J., in a 10 round bout in the Coliseum last night. The unanimous decision by Referee Tommy Thomas and Judges Jack Ripple and Arthur Oberg was only a formality.

The 3,930 spectators who contributed to a gross gate of $13,737, realized as early as the seventh round that Lane didn't have a chance to win but they rooted for him as he strove to go the limit without suffering a knockdown and, when he achieved that goal, cheered him as he left the ring.

It's 30 in Row for Elmer

The fact Ray scored his 30th straight victory did not come as a surprise for few in the gathering figured Lane had a chance to score an upset. Most of the fans, however, were curious to see whether Ray, who has marked up 27 knockouts in those 30 fights, could knock out the rugged Lane. When Elmer failed in that quest, the crowd was satisfied despite the fact Lane was not awarded a round by Referee Thomas and given only the third by the two judges.

Even the third round didn't start so well for the Trenton 192 pounder. Shortly after the session opened Ray connected with a right to the jaw, the effect of which only caused Lane to fight his best. Larry traded blow for blow with his 191 pound foe from Florida thruout the round while the crowd roared its encouragement.

Thereafter, however, Lane took a beating in every round except the 10th when he recovered sufficiently from the pounding received in the earlier rounds to elude Ray and jab him in the face with his left. After the bout Lane displayed a puffed hand he said he injured in the fifth round.

Four Knockouts in Early Bouts

Odell Riley of Detroit, who knocked out Johnny Flanagan last month, duplicated the feat when he floored the Chicago heavyweight in the first round of a scheduled six round rematch. The time was 41 seconds and beat the record set by Mack Parshey, also from Detroit, in knocking out Charley Polk, south side 175 pounder, in 51 seconds of the first round in the preceding encounter.

McKinley English, Detroit heavyweight and Tony Musto, Blue Island 203 pounder, also scored knockouts, the former over Lindy Elliott of New York in the fifth round and Musto over Charley Jackson, Baltimore, in the third. Jackson gave Musto a difficult time of it in the first two rounds, but in the third he walked into a punch to the chin and rolled around on the canvas until the referee completed his count.

MAURIELLO WINS OVER DUDAS BY K.O. IN 1ST ROUND

New York, June 1 (AP)—Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweight, made short work of Steve Dudas, Edgewater, N. J., in Madison Square Garden tonight, knocking out his veteran 31 year old opponent in 2:23 of the first round. Mauriello weighed 200 pounds, Dudas, 198.

The end, one of the quickest in recent Garden fistic history, came after Dudas had been floored three times. A right on the top of his head sent him down for the fourth time and Referee Arthur Donovan, not bothering to count, halted the proceedings.

A short right to the point of the chin sent Dudas sprawling for a count of six. He tried to go into a clinch when he got up, but Tami evaded his rushes and clipped him on the chin again with a right. This time Dudas took a count of nine while on one knee. He got to his feet staggering. Promptly another Mauriello right put him down for seven. When he went down for the fourth time Donovan intervened.

A crowd of 8,402 that contributed to a gross of $28,606, saw the quick finish.

MEDLINGER FANS 20; LANE WINS BASEBALL TITLE

Peoria, Ill., June 1 [Special]—Irv Medlinger, left handed hurler for Lane Tech of Chicago's City league, tonight fanned 20 batters as Lane defeated East St. Louis Central Catholic, 6 to 1, to win the state high school baseball championship.

Lane defeated Bloomington, 7 to 1, this afternoon to gain the final round after East St. Louis had defeated Proviso of Maywood, defending champion, 5 to 3, in the other semi-final.

Fans First 10

Medlinger, who returned to the mound tonight after pitching Lane to a 12 to 2 victory over Quincy in yesterday's opening game, was in perfect form, fanning the first 10 batters to oppose him. He struck out nine in a row in the first three innings and fanned the first batter in the fourth. He issued three walks and limited the Central Catholic team to four hits.

The game was scoreless until the fourth inning, when Medlinger singled, and came home on a triple by Catcher M. Majerick to give Lane a 1 to 0 lead.

Tie Score in Seventh

Central Catholic came back in the first half of the seventh when Jimmy Jacfuot scored on Ray McAteer's single to tie the score, but Lane took a three run lead in the last half of the inning when it scored three unearned runs on three walks, two errors, and no hits.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The first important juvenile race of the Chicago season, the $5,000 added Joliet stakes, will headline the Lincoln Fields program at Hawthorne today. Fourteen youngsters were on the overnight entry list for the five furlong affair which may prove a stepping stone to the midwestern championship for 2 year olds.

Topping the roster both in alloted weight and as pre-race favorites are John Marsch's Mighty Story and Mrs. Robert McGarvey's Over Night, both winners of their first starts and highly regarded by horsemen. Each will carry 122 pounds and they figure to go postward as co-favorites at 5 to 2.

Carries on Marsch Tradition

Mighty Story, which opened his career with a victory during the recent Keeneland meeting at Churchill Downs, could give Marsch a second triumph in the Joliet, for his Blue Delight won the stake in 1940. The Chicago contractor's horses also finished second in the Joliet on two occasions. Occupation, juvenile champion of 1942, was runner-up to Littletown that year, then went on to win the big futurities at Washington and Arlington parks and at Pimlico. Marsch's Errard was second to last year's winner of the Joliet, Henry Tikulski's Icangetit, a candidate for this year's running of the Kentucky Derby.

Over Night, the full brother to Night Shadow, is the best youngster to appear here this spring. In his only start, Over Night ran four and a half furlongs in :55 1-5, within a fifth of a second of the Hawthorne track record.

Nichols to Ride 20 to 1 Shot

Other youngsters which have shown well this spring and are slated to face Starter Roy Dickerson today are Hyman Friedberg's Port List, P. J. Valenti's Seaman's Pal, the S. and S. stable's Lou Jay S, and Steve Valenti's Joyce W.

Joe Cavens will ride Mighty Story, Paul Glidewell will be aboard Over Night, and Billy Nichols, leading jockey of the Chicago season, has drawn a 20 to 1 shot, Mrs. Monte Weil's Knight's Gift.

The C. & K. stable's My Night a 4 to 5 shot, accounted for yesterday's featured sixth race, the $1,800 Lake Shore purse. Only five horses started and My Night, piloted by Cavens, scored by two and a half lengths over I. C. Mishler's Lights Abeam, ridden by Bobby Campbell. Dixiana's Kona Wind was third.

LAFFOON WINS ILLINOIS P. G. A. WITH 136 TOTAL

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Ky Laffoon, who introduced himself to big league golf in the middle '30s with one of the hottest scoring streaks in the game, yesterday was in old time form as he led the Illinois qualifiers for the National P. G. A. tournament, to be played at Dayton's Moraine Country club the week of July 9.

Fortified by a set of hot irons, an equally warm putter, and his customary ration of stogies, the 39 year old St. Andrews veteran dashed over the Oak Park Country club yardage in 136 strokes, eight under par and nine in front of the field which was seeking the 10 roles allotted to the Illinois section in next month's big show.

Lightning Flashes; So Does Ky

Laffoon was more than satisfied with his morning round of 70, two under par, but in the afternoon proceeded to show that he could do even better with one of the finest scoring performances ever turned in on the west side layout—a 66 which included a slight argument with a violent combination of lightning and hail that struck the course in midafternoon. He was out in 32, missing a five footer for a 31 on the ninth green, and dashing back in 34.

Nearest of Laffoon's pursuers was the large and popular Charley Penna of Beverly, who shot 74—71—145. A stroke away from Penna at 146 were Jack Grout, in his first year as pro at Butterfield, and Art De Mane, the able Oak Park assistant. While Jack was putting together a brace of 73s, Art assembled a 72—74—146. Aside from the afternoon work of Laffoon and Penna, the only sub-par performance of the day was the 70 fired by Joe Paletti of Sunset Ridge, who missed a chance for a 69 when he three-putted the 18th.

How He Did It

Par—Out	534	543	444—36
Laffoon—Out	534	634	433—35
Par—In	444	345	534—36—72
Laffoon—In	443	345	534—35—70

Ky had his only bogey at the 467 yard fourth, where his drive turned up back of a tree. He redeemed that with birdies at the eighth and ninth, where respective 6 and 9 iron shots left him 3 and 5 feet from

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 1—The White Sox, in the face of difficulties such as being pushed back into a tie in the ninth inning, finally put the Senators down for the count in the 11th tonight, 11 to 9, in a battle that featured a lot of strange names as well as some strange baseball. The latter was represented by five Washington errors and explains why James Dykes' boys did better in the run than the hit column.

According to the most reliable reports, there were five Washington pitchers on the job at one time or another, the first of three being Johnny Niggeling. The Sox matched this assortment with three, the starter being Joe Haynes, who was yanked after the Senators had taken the lead with four runs in the eighth. By the time the home ninth opened, the Sox were back in front but it was only a matter of minutes before Johnny Johnson had been knocked out and the score tied.

Passes Give Sox Decision

A fellow named Walter Holborow showed up in the 10th as the Senators' fifth pitcher and he did well enough in that inning. Earl Caldwell, who relieved Johnson in the ninth, was equally effective. Then Johnny Dickshot singled off Holborow to open the 11th and the 9 to 9 tie began to dissolve. Guy Curtright bunted and was safe on Holborow's bad throw, after which Tony Cuccinello sacrificed. Roy Schalk was purposely passed, filling the bases and Holborow couldn't recover his control until after he had walked two more, forcing two runs across the plate.

George Case opened the Senator first with a single to center and took third on George Myatt's hit. Case went home on Joe Kuhel's fly to Curtright. Case single with one out in the third. He was still on first with two out but, when Kuhel singled to right, he kept right on moving until he reached the plate, being aided by Moses' momentary fumble.

This Was Easy

The Sox didn't have to do much to get their two tying runs in the fifth. With one out Schalk singled. Cass Michaels also singled and Alvin Powell not only fumbled the hit but made a wild return throw, the two miscues enabling Schalk to score and Michaels to reach third. He scored on a passed ball.

The three run Sox fifth began with an out but developed something of promise when Kerby Farrell singled and Dickshot walked. They moved up an extra base when Fermin Guerra lost one of the Niggeling's knuckle balls. Curtright walked, filling the bases and Cuccinello also walked, Farrell scoring. Vaughn was charged with an error on what should have been a hit for Schalk, Dickshot scoring. Curtright scored the third run on Michaels' fly, putting the Sox in front, 5 to 2.

Carrasquel Leaves Early

Kuhel opened the sixth with a double to left and scored on a single by Vaughn but the Sox recovered the run as soon as Alex Carrasquel showed up in the eighth. His first act as successor to Niggerling was to pass Curtright, who scampered to third on a hit by Cuccinello. Schalk hit a fly ball on which Curtright scored, but when Michaels followed with a double down the left field line Carrasquel was removed in favor of Santiago Ullrich, who handled the next two batters without difficulty.

The Washington eighth that knocked the Sox into arrears for the moment opened with a scratch single by Myatt and a double by

JAKUCKI YIELDS 3 HITS; BROWNS BEAT A'S, 4 TO 0

Gutteridge Gets Homer in 3 Run Eighth

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1 (AP) — The St. Louis Browns, behind the three hit pitching of Jack Jakucki, blanked the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 0, tonight.

Jakucki started off the scoring, getting a triple to left field in the sixth. Don Gutteridge brought him home on a single. In the eighth Jack reached first on an error by Bobby Wilkins. Gutteridge then hit his first homer of the year. Another error and a single by Junior Stephens accounted for the fourth run.

YANKEES WIN, 9 TO 2

New York, June 1 (AP)—Floyd Bevens turned back the Cleveland Indians with five hits today as the New York Yankees stretched their league lead to two games with a 9 to 2 victory.

Bevens struck out eight in coasting to his fourth decision on a 14 hit Yank attack against Starter Al Smith and Hale Kleine.

RED SOX, 6; TIGERS, 4

Boston, Mass., June 1 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox defeated the Detroit Tigers, 6 to 4, today, two walks in the fifth inning pushing over the deciding runs. After Bob Johnson and Johnny Lazor singled and were sacrificed along by Eddie Lake, Jim Wilson gave an intentional walk to Jack Tobin, filling the bases.

Dave Ferriss, pinch hitting for Emmett O'Neill, walked, forcing Johnson home, and Wilson was replaced by 18 year old Bill Pierce, who walked George Metkovich to force in the second run.

After walking Metkovich, however, Pierce settled down, allowing one hit and striking out four men during the rest of the game.

GRANGE QUITS AS PRESIDENT OF U. S. LEAGUE

The circuit was organized last fall with plans to enter teams in Akron, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, New York, and Chicago, with an eighth franchise undetermined.

It was reported the United States league refunded franchise deposits, but some representatives indicated they have not given up.

Grange insisted he resigned because "the office requires a big promotional job and my insurance business prevents me from giving it the necessary time."

Other league officers include Arthur H. Ehlers, president of the Interstate Baseball league, vice president; Sports Editor Howard [Peg] Parsons of the Erie [Pa.] Daily Times, secretary; and Charles A. Burns of Akron, treasurer.

18 CITY LEAGUE TEAMS IN RELAY CARNIVAL TODAY

A total of 380 entries from 18 schools will compete in the seventh relay carnival for City league high schools in Key Branch stadium, Roosevelt rd. and Central av., at 9:30 a. m. this morning.

LET WAR DEBTS DIE, AID TRADE, C.E.D. ADVISES

Policy Is Suggested in Tariff Hearing

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—A committee of business leaders proposed today that the United States cancel all World War I. debts and World War II. lend-lease obligations if necessary to clear post-war trade channels.

The Committee for Economic Development advanced this idea in a statement to the senate finance committee urging approval of the administration's request for authority to lower tariffs and continue reciprocal trade agreements. The senate committee is conducting hearings on the proposal, already approved by the house.

Filed by William Benton

William Benton, vice chairman of C. E. D., filed the statement in behalf of the research committee, which includes Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston; Chester C. Davis, who holds the same post in St. Louis; William C. Foster, vice president of Welded Steel Products, New York; Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation and C. E. D. chairman; Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Beardsley Ruml, New York banker.

Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] has suggested cancellation of World War I. debts and Assistant Secretary of State William L. Clayton has told the committee that the 10 billion dollars defaulted from the war never will be collected.

Urges Prompt Settlement

The C. E. D. recommended repeal of the act of 1934, which bans private loans to defaulting nations, and also:

"Prompt settlement of all foreign government debts to the United States arising from World War I. and of all net obligations to the United States arising under lend-lease or otherwise for goods and services actually used up in World War II."

The C. E. D. said "if the cancellation of any of these obligations is the most effective method of settlement, they should be canceled." Lend-lease goods available should be used to help reconstruct war-torn countries, the report said.

GRAINS RECOVER FROM EARLY DIP TO CLOSE MIXED

Grain futures closed irregular yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after rallying from a weak opening. Rye showed the most strength on the comeback, ending ¾ to 1⅝ cents a bushel higher. Wheat closed ⅝ lower to ⅜ cent higher, corn unchanged to ⅛ lower, and oats ⅛ to 1⅛ lower.

Wheat led the early decline on reports of steady improvement in the grain car supply and disappointment over government failure to increase the June subsidy to millers of wheat flour, except in the Pacific coast area. July wheat rallied 1⅝ cents from its low on mill buying to meet several large government flour orders scheduled for acceptance next week.

Rye moved erratically over a wide price range and the near-by delivery closed ¼ cent higher. It had sold off 2⅜ after July rye at Winnipeg broke the limit of 5 cents.

Chicago Board of Trade directors, after the close, fixed new ceilings on all wheat futures at $1.80½, up 3¼ cents, in line with recent government action raising cash wheat ceilings a like amount.

PREDICTS NEAR RECORD ILLINOIS PEACH HARVEST

Springfield, Ill., June 1 (AP)—The 1945 southern Illinois peach crop promises to be one of the largest ever harvested, the state agriculture department reported today.

E. C. Secor, superintendent of markets, said peach sets were exceptionally heavy in the Carbondale area, heart of the state's commercial fruit region.

Parley Called on Return of Rail to Owner

Attorneys for the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad and for the government yesterday were invited by Federal Judge Walter J. LaBuy to a conference to consider means for turning the road back to its owners. Judge LaBuy ruled last month that the office of defense transportation was in illegal possession of the railroad, which it had seized on March 21, 1942, under an order issued by the late President Roosevelt.

Judge LaBuy suggested the conference after Howard Doyle, United States attorney for the Springfield district, told the court that George P. McNear Jr., Peoria, president of the road, may not accept a return of the road under present circumstances.

Universal Defiance Charged

Doyle said that the line was a one man railroad and that McNear had defied every agency, including the President, before it was taken over by ODT after McNear refused to arbitrate a labor dispute that resulted in a strike late in 1941. McNear had charged employes with attempting to enforce "featherbed" [made work] rules at a time when railroads were short of man power.

After referring to the several millions of dollars the government may have made thru operation of the line and to the question of public interest, Judge LaBuy inquired if the road had been returned to its owners. Doyle said that so far it had not, but that the government did not wish to keep the road indefinitely.

Labor disputes between the employes and the ODT, but not between the employes and McNear, have been settled. Doyle indicated that McNear was not willing to accept the ODT settlement.

McNear Withholds Comment

At his office in Peoria later McNear said he did not care to comment on the case while it was before the court.

The railroad last year filed a complaint against the ODT seeking to stop certain proposed improvements and asking return of the property. On May 19 Judge LaBuy ruled in favor of the railroad and overruled the motion of the government to strike the complaint and dismiss the suit. At yesterday's session government attorneys were given 45 days in which to file an answer.

The government is the defendant in the present action thru ODT, which is a government instrument. Holly Stover, as agent for ODT, is general manager of the T., P. & W.

ICKES AND FIELD SELL WINNETKA ESTATE, STORES

Secretary of Interior Ickes and Marshall Field yesterday sold Winnetka real estate holdings for cash. Ickes received $65,000 for his 5½ acre estate on Tower rd. It was bought by Ralph Horween, secretary of the Horween Leather company and former special assistant attorney general in charge of investigating petroleum code violators for Ickes in Washington. Horween, now at 530 Willow rd., Winnetka, will move July 2.

Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke, of George W. Reinecke, Inc., negotiated the sale. The house contains 16 rooms and six baths. It was built about 30 years ago at a reported cost of $125,000. The land fronts 470 feet on Tower rd., west of Sheridan rd.

The Field property, at the southwest corner of Linden av. and Gage st., was sold for $80,000 to Harry S. Sandberg, president of the Great Lakes Plating & Japanning company, Chicago. It is improved with a one story building containing five stores. Gustav E. Beerly was attorney. Ward Farnsworth & Co. and Chester M. McGrath were brokers.

THIRD KENTUCKY MINE CLOSES IN MEAT PROTEST

Pikeville, Ky., June 1 (AP)—Tom Raney, district representative of the United Mine Workers, today reported a third eastern Kentucky mine closure in recent weeks because of an acute shortage of meat in the coal fields.

Two hundred miners of the Elk Horn Collieries company at Farraday, were idle and Raney said no action had been taken to relieve the situation.

I. C. CHIEF ASKS EQUALITY WITH RIVAL CARRIERS

Improved Services Are Predicted

Wayne A. Johnston, president of the Illinois Central railroad, said yesterday he was not apprehensive over competition for the railroads from other forms of transportation after the war and asserted that if the government will give the roads "some semblance of equal opportunity" they will take care of themselves.

"Of course we are going to have post-war competition in transportation—intense, keen competition," Johnston told the Executives' Club of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman. "The last 25 years have witnessed no greater rivalry in any line of endeavor than that of competing forms of transportation.

Future Holds No Fears

"The railroads have survived that ordeal. I know of no reason to shrink from anything the future may have in store for them. Make it truly a struggle for survival of the fittest and the railroads will not be found wanting."

Johnston predicted vast changes in the railroads after the war, asserting:

"I am confident that the next five years [granting an early end of the Japanese war] will witness the greatest transformation in the tools and methods of the railway business that we have ever had in anything like that period of time."

He said the transformation would be chiefly in modernization.

Add Warborn Improvements

"As promptly as materials and man power become available we will add all the other things we have since figured out, plus the new developments that can be garnered from what our suppliers and all industry have meanwhile learned," Johnston said.

He predicted that after the war all freight service will be on faster schedules than before and the schedules will be maintained with the same fidelity as those of the finest passenger trains; that there will be improvements in freight terminals to expedite and protect shipments, and to reduce expense of handling; that special service and equipment will be provided for freight moving in carloads, particularly perishables and other freight requiring speed.

"There will be better power, better cars, better track, and elimination of terminal delays," he explained.

WESTERN RAILS ASK DETAILED TRUST CHARGES

Lincoln, Neb., June 1 (AP)—Defense attorneys today again asked the department of justice to be more specific as to charges contained in the government's anti-trust suit against the western railroads.

"In the government's reply to our request for more specific information, it is charged that we are asking for more than 900 items of information, and they say that this is the kind of case where they ought not be required to be specific, because it is so complicated," said R. V. Fletcher, Washington, D. C., speaking for the Association of American Railroads.

"But in this suit, 149 corporations and individuals are defendants. The 47 railroads involved have 1,400,000 people employed. Any act of any one of these 1,400,000 persons during the past several years might be taken as proof of alleged conspiracy."

Nelson Expected to Join Big Merchandising Firm

New York, June 1 [Special]—Donald M. Nelson, former WPB head and before that an executive of Sears, Roebuck & Co., will accept soon a position with one of the largest merchandising organizations in the New York area, it was reported today. Nelson has been in New York recently discussing his future with potential new associates.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

[Blank & Stoller Photo]

Frank F. Fowle of the engineering firm of Frank F. Fowle & Co. and Robert L. Anderson, superintendent of public works in Winnetka, will receive the Octave Chanute medal for 1944 from the Western Society of Engineers Monday. The medal is awarded to Chicago engineers for the best papers on electrical, civil, or mechanical engineering presented before the society. Fowle's paper described the 100th anniversary of the first iron steam boat in the navy and on the Great Lakes. Anderson wrote on grade separation in Winnetka.

W. Earle Pashley yesterday was elected president of the C. F. Pease company, manufacturer of blue printing machinery and paper. He has been with the company 26 years, serving as advertising manager, general sales manager, treasurer, and vice president. He succeeds Thomas Lord who will remain on the board of directors and serve as a consultant.

In compliance with office of defense transportation regulations, the annual convention of the Public Utilities Advertising association has been canceled. A business meeting of officers, directors, and committee and regional chairmen will be held.

Richard L. Staggs, who operated flour mills in China and Japan and a saw mill in the Pacific northwest before he started work with Commonwealth Edison company as an armature winder in 1920, has retired from his post as supervisor of safety and training for Edison.

Fred J. Steffens, national sales director and coördinator of the National Association of Tobacco distributors, will conduct six classes on tobacco merchandising in Illinois. Four are scheduled for Chicago and one each in Effingham and Elgin.

American Steel and Wire company has appointed Marvin S. Brown superintendent of engineering and maintenance at its Joliet plant.

Mrs. Penny Trick Harvey has been appointed assistant reservations manager for American Airlines in Chicago.

Earl F. Hopkins has resigned as manager of the La Salle hotel to become manager of the Eastgate hotel and vice president of Managers, Inc. Managers, Inc., operates the Eastgate and St. Clair hotels.

Bankers Irked by Treasury's 'Policing' Plan

Bankers in Chicago expressed resentment yesterday over the order of the treasury department requiring all financial institutions to file reports of unusual currency transactions. They were especially irked by being "put on the spot" in doing police work for the treasury.

The order requires the financial institutions to report any transactions in amounts or denominations which, "in the judgment of the financial institutions, exceed those commensurate with the legitimate and customary conduct of the business, industry, or profession of the person or organization concerned."

Resent Mention of Penalties

They are required to report transactions involving $1,000 or more of United States currency in denominations of $50 or more or involving $10,000 or more in any denominations, unless they know the transactions are legitimate and customary.

"The banks have been doing a good job all during the war and are resentful of the position in which the order places them, requiring a decision as to whether a customer's transaction is legitimate or not," said Harry C. Hausman, secretary of the Illinois Bankers' association.

"They are especially resentful that Secretary Morgenthau saw fit to call attention to the fact that violations of the war powers act, under which this order was issued, carry a $10,000 fine and 10 years' imprisonment."

Protests Sent to A. B. A.

He said the I. B. A. had received several protests. It was passing them on to the American Bankers' association for any action the A. B. A. may wish to take in the nature of a complaint to the government.

Some bankers said the order would require much extra work by employes and one suggested that it likely would tend to halt transactions in the denominations covered.

TOP, AVERAGE CATTLE PRICES SET JUNE PEAKS

All former June 1 price records were shattered in the Chicago cattle trade yesterday when choice steers brought a top of $17.85 a hundred pounds. The sale was within 15 cents of the all-June record of $18 which was established in 1918. The steer average of $16.95 also set a peak for June.

Cattle supplies were extremely small and bidding continued lively for the dwindling volume at generally stronger prices. The majority of steers sold for $16.25 to $17.65. Other cattle were steady to higher.

Hogs held firm at ceiling prices and were highest for June 1 in 25 years. The scant lamb supply, mainly new crop animals, sold quickly at fully steady prices.

ECCLES OFFERS TAX PROGRAM RETAINING EXCESS PROFIT LEVY

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve board chairman, today proposed a post-war tax program he said would encourage investment in new business ventures and penalize money "put into existing ventures for speculative capital gains."

His program, given to the house small business committee, was:

1. Elimination of "double taxation" on corporations by exempting from the corporate income tax all profits paid out in dividends which would be taxed in the hands of persons receiving the dividends.

2. Retention of the excess profits tax after the war, but at a reduced rate "from the present 95 per cent maximum to, possibly, 65 per cent." He suggested the excess profits tax exemption be raised now from $10,000 to $25,000.

3. Reduction of the corporation combined normal and surtax income tax from the present 40 per cent to about 25 per cent.

"There is a tendency in current tax discussions to consider the excess profits tax as a tax to be discarded immediately, once the last shot is fired," Eccles said. "I disagree. Some reductions in business taxes will be possible and helpful, but we should not give all the benefit to the corporations with excess profits."

Rail, Industry Issues Turn Stocks Higher

New York, June 1 (AP)—Renewed investment demand for rails and industrial specialties turned prices higher in today's stock market, enabling favorites to start the new month with gains of one to several points at eight year peaks. Transfers totaled 1,430,000 shares, compared with 1,210,000 on Thursday's relapse.

Among issues at new highs were American Woolen preferred, up 8½; Commonwealth and Southern preferred, up 5¼ on securities and exchange commission on approval of its recapitalization; Canadian Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, M-K-T preferred, American Woolen common, Wyandotte Worsted, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and Pacific Mills.

RAIL BONDS RISE

New York, June 1 (AP)—Railroad bonds generally were higher today, altho issues of some lines dipped fractions to more than a point. Georgia, Carolina and Northern 6s of '34 rose 3¾, Lehigh Valley 4s of 2003, 2¾, and Seaboard Air Lines refunding 4s of '59 certified, 2½. Southern Pacific 4½s of '81 were up 2 and New York, Ontario and Western refunding 4s of '92 gained 1¾ on sales totaling $552,000.

Turnover was $11,060,000, compared with $9,810,000 Thursday.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange were irregular yesterday in turnover of 28,000 shares. Volume leaders included Raytheon Manufacturing preferred, Chicago corporation, and Asbestos corporation, each down ⅛, Curtiss-Wright, up ⅛, and Swift & Co., up ⅜.

CANADA TO GET 10,000 LOW PRICE CARS THIS YEAR

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1 (AP)—Canadian automobile manufacturers have received permits to make 10,000 passenger cars this year, all of which will be allocated to essential users, Munitions Minister Howe announced today. The price board will set prices.

Howe said production probably would begin during the last quarter this year. The permits were mailed Wednesday to General Motors of Canada, Chrysler of Canada, and Ford Motor of Canada.

The company's large cotton merchandising and processing operations are conducted thru 31 domestic and 10 foreign compress and warehouse units and 147 domestic and 76 foreign cotton gins. It also operates 39 cottonseed oil mills, half of them in this country. Foreign plants are in Latin America and Egypt.

Cotton, purchased thruout the growing areas, is sold to textile mills and other consumers or exported. Hedging operations are conducted on various cotton exchanges.

William L. Clayton, assistant secretary of state, who formerly was active in the company's management, owns 13.59 per cent of its capital stock and holds voting rights on 26.77 per cent, owned by family trusts. Outstanding are 1,501,031 shares of $21.80 par value, issued under a recapitalization plan last April. A public offering of the stock, made at that time, did not represent financing by the company. The business was originally established as a partnership in 1904.

Earnings as adjusted to the present stock were equal to $4.34 a share in the fiscal year ended July 31, 1944; $4.46 in 1943; $5.94 in 1942; $2.88 in 1941; $4.44 in 1940. A small net loss was shown in 1939. In the 1944 fiscal year, $2,148,238 was distributed in dividends, but no dividend has been paid on the present shares.

Funded debt amounts to $15,788,600. As of last July 31, current assets totaled $124,879,921, and current liabilities $76,441,214.

DEMANDS ARMY YIELD HUMMER PLANT TO WARD

Avery Brands Long Tenure Illegal

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., demanded of Secretary of War Stimson yesterday that the army be removed immediately from possession of the Hummer Manufacturing company, a Ward subsidiary at Springfield, Ill., because productive efficiency of the plant has been restored.

The army seized the plant May 21, 1944, under a Presidential order after a 17 day strike by 450 members of the International Brotherhood of Machinists [AFL], called because Ward had refused to accede to a war labor board order granting the union maintenance of membership.

Contract Gets Approval

Altho the army was in possession, explained John A. Barr, director of labor relations for the company, no attempt was made by it to enforce the WLB directive which had caused the strike. Then the company and the AFL union continued negotiations and agreed to a contract last Sept. 16 which excluded the provision for maintenance of membership.

This contract, including increased wages, then was submitted to the WLB and was approved.

About two weeks ago, Barr said, altho the union no longer seemed interested in the maintenance of membership provision, the army officials in charge began to enforce the old WLB directive.

Immediate Possession Asked

"Ward demands that you order your representatives to cease coercing Ward employes to support the union against their will," Avery wrote Stimson, "that you order your representatives not to discharge any employe because of his failure to support the union, and that you immediately return possession of the Hummer plant to Ward.

"The President's order of May 20, 1944, directed you to return the property 'within 60 days' after the productive efficiency of the plant had been restored.

"In direct violation of the executive order and of the [war labor] disputes act, your representatives have refused to return this property altho more than a year has elapsed since production in the plant returned to normal.

'Delay Being Aggravated'

"Your delay . . . is being aggravated by an attempt of your representatives to enforce that form of the closed shop called maintenance of membership . . . the sole cause of the labor disturbance."

Avery said that the army on May 17 notified employes who had failed to maintain themselves in good standing during the last year that they would be given seven days in which to reinstate themselves or be discharged.

"At the end of the seven day period," Avery's letter to Stimson said, "62 employes, over 23 per cent of the employes, had refused to reinstate their union membership. Your representatives now threaten to discharge each of these employer unless they support the union.

"Altho you have long overstayed your leave . . . you propose not only to remain in possession but to do irreparable injury to Ward and its employes by granting a union demand which Ward has always contended is illegal as well as unfair and uneconomic."

TRUMAN ORDERS ARMY TO SEIZE COTTON PLANT

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—President Truman today ordered the army to seize and operate the plants of the Mary-Leila Cotton Mills, Inc., at Greensboro, Ga. The order said the war program is being "unduly impeded" by interruptions of operations as a result of a labor disturbance.

The Atlanta regional war labor board directed that an agreement with the CIO Textile Workers be extended pending negotiation of a new agreement. The company, following a public hearing last April, advised the board that it would not comply with the maintenance of membership and checkoff provisions of the expired agreement.

The union took a strike vote under the war labor disputes act and a strike began April 2.

Warns Auto Supply Rise Will Be Slow

The average motorist probably will be unable to buy a new automobile until late 1947 or early 1948, J. J. Cavanaugh, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Motor club, predicted yesterday.

J. J. Cavanaugh

He said manufacturers probably would turn out approximately 6 million passenger cars between July 1, 1945, and Jan. 1, 1948, but that all of these and perhaps more would be rationed to essential users—doctors, nurses, police, and fire departments, ministers, and others.

Warns Against Repair Delay

Cavanaugh spoke at a luncheon of auto dealers, garage men, and service station managers in the Palmer House. He urged them to combat a growing disposition of motorists to delay or cancel major repairs in the hope or getting a new car in the next six or eight months.

"A very dangerous optimism is spreading about the new cars coming out soon," Cavanaugh said. "The American public is sadly offbase in its thinking on this subject. Some persons are beginning to cancel repair jobs because they think that thru a manufacturing miracle they will get new cars in 60 or 90 days or six months.

1948 Time to Get in Line

"After a thoro canvass of the major auto manufacturers we have figured that 215,000 cars will be built in 1945, 2 million in 1946, and 4½ million in 1947. These will go to the essential users.

Cavanaugh said unofficial suggestions have been made in Washington that war veterans should be given priority in new car purchases. Such action would put other motorists a year or more farther from new car ownership.

PRESSED STEEL WILL END TANK OUTPUT JUNE 30

Production of medium tanks at the Chicago plant of the Pressed Steel Car company will end June 30, the Chicago ordnance district announced yesterday. About 3,100 workers will be released between now and July 1. The company plans to retain workers necessary to continue its production of self-propelled artillery carriages.

The contracts canceled amount to 172 million dollars and represent 2,775 medium tanks and spare parts which were scheduled to be produced thru next December. About 450 subcontractors will be affected. Ernest Murphy, president of Pressed Steel, last week said the company's schedule for medium tanks and self-propelled guns had been cut back 60 per cent.

Col. John Slezak said the company's production record has earned it "a definite place in the forefront of American war manufacturers." To date it has produced more than 12,000 armored vehicles, including both General Grant and General Sherman tanks. The war man power commission will channel displaced workers into other vital war jobs in the Chicago area.

INCREASE STEEL ALLOTMENT FOR USE OF CIVILIANS

Washington, D. C., June 1 (AP)—Third quarter allotments of steel for domestic nonmilitary uses are 330,000 tons larger than in the first quarter, the WPB announced tonight, but refrigerators and washing machines will be the only two items receiving steel allotments which did not get them before.

Some other civilian allotments, however, will be larger. These include farm machinery, buses, trucks, and construction components such as plumbing and heating equipment.

Allotments for all purposes in the third quarter total 14,309,000 tons of carbon and 1,839,000 tons of alloy steel, about the same as in the two preceding quarters. In addition to the allotments for essential production, WPB estimated about 500,000 tons of "free" steel will be available to industry to purchase on the open market without priorities.

FARM MACHINE GAINS CHECKED BY SHORTAGES

Castings and Labor Top Problems

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

Shortages of gray and malleable castings and of man power are the two most serious problems faced by farm equipment manufacturers who have been called upon to provide farmers with the tools to increase food supplies, industry leaders said yesterday. The war production board has just eased manufacturers' restrictions for June to expedite the much needed production and as of July 1 all quota restrictions will be removed.

Hundreds of items are included among the castings which the industry needs. They are produced in foundries and there, too, the problem is one of man power. The foundries thruout the war have found it
